Quick Thinking by Victim Aids Police in Arrests of Burglary Suspects

By George Ogden

WEST COVINA - On Tuesday, December 10, 2013 at approximately 7:45 p.m., the West Covina Police Department received a 9-1-1 call regarding a burglary that had just occurred in the 600 block of S. Charvers Avenue. The victim told on-duty officers he confirmed two male Black men inside his home upon en- tering. Both suspects fled the residence and the victim called 9-1-1 on his cell phone. However, one of the suspects walked back to the victim and forcibly took the phone away. Both suspects were in a vehicle parked in front of the residence. The victim was not injured. The victim did something smart. When he first arrived home he noticed the Lexus he parked in front of his home and, because he didn’t recognize it, he wrote down the li- cense plate number.

The West Covina PD Forens- ic Identification Unit (FBIU) re- sponded to the location and conducted an extensive inves- tigation. During this process, the FBIU was able to locate and lilla- te the Make/Model/Color of the follow-up investigation con- ducted by West Covina Police Department employees. The fi- 200 m Ultimate Sports Complex in the 2700 block of Tol-

Steven in Alhambra. Detectives arrested two suspects without incident. The suspect vehicle was also located at the scene. Arrested for Burglary and Robbery were: Joshua Wash- ington, a male, 28, 6 feet 2 inch tall of Alhambra, and is currently being held on a $50,000.00 bail bond.

Fremont, a male, 18, 6 ft 190 lbs of Alhambra and is currently being held on a $50,000.00 bail bond. Fire destroys the old building were the Great Wall was estab- lished. Wongs and his family took pride with the restaurant and the community. They believe this was the best service and food. In the years before, Ben and his family occasionally had come back to the restaurant. The family retired from operating the restaurant and sold the building a few years ago. An attempt to open a new restaurant and it was believed it was sold again. The new renovation allowed drug addicts, tran- sients and homeless who came by the restaurant and use the building. Extra- parished in the area seemed to help, but it still was believed they were climbing a step fire security fence and using the building. Many believe they would have eventually broken into the building and burning it down. Many in the community are devastated at the loss of the build- ing that held so many memories.

In January of 2013, it went on the market again for $85,000. Two years ago, they reduced the price by almost $170,000 being the asking price at $680,000. Both the police and fire de- partments are investigating this as an arson fire.

Robert Tafoya, who is also a City Attorney for South Pasadena, was hired as city attor- ney. Many in the community are shocked and speculate that this could be a result of the firing of CEO Vijay Singhal and City Attorney Joseph Geller. Others believe that the city cannot afford to lose the services of its two top attorneys. A new city attorney is still being sought by the West Covina City Council.
The Monterey Park Bruggemeyer Library is currently seeking paid interns for the spring 2014 session. "We're now accepting applications from interested students," said Diana Garcia, Reading Rockets Coordinator at dgarcia@monterey-park.ca.gov with the subject line “Reading Rockets Tutor Internship Application," the Library announced. The application requirements are as follows:

- A letter of recommendation from a professor or supervisor.
- Transcripts for your course work.

Waste Management presents its 2014 ‘Thankful for the Environment’ holiday campaign

Waste Management is encouraging the public to recognize the importance of recycling and creating less waste during the holiday season with its “Thankful for the Environment” campaign.

This year’s campaign is centered around a holiday wreath created using recycled and environmentally friendly materials. The wreath is displayed in the company’s corporate headquarters in Norcross, Georgia, and will be shared via social media to help educate consumers about the importance of proper waste disposal.

The campaign encourages consumers to think about the waste they produce during the holiday season and to consider ways they can reduce, reuse or recycle those materials. By participating in the campaign, consumers can help make a difference in their communities and contribute to a cleaner environment.

To learn more about the campaign, visit www.thankfulforgenvironment.com.

Choosing A Christmas Tree

I have no desire to be impressed by the lovely things Wendy and I both desired when we were young. There are a dozen criteria that must be met: the tree must be fresh-cut, cheap enough, a Christmas tree, a wooden star that has not fallen off during the season. It must also show the effects of advancing age, and a few new items we wish to see. The bottom line is: one must spend one dollar per inch of trunk. Since our past experience has shown that our artificial tree is not only short but skinny!

We suppose as older we mind our hard ears to be broken by Christmas Carols. We were not children of the 1930s, or the 1940s, or the 1950s, or the 1960s. There are a dozen criteria that must be met. Our Christmas in Egypt, a wooden star that has fallen off during the season. It must also show the effects of advancing age, and a few new items we wish to see. Low interest rates may induce risk-taking, and without proper supervision, it can go too far. This is reflecting a normalization of financial system risk and a return to prudent risk-taking, rather than with monetary policy alone. The Federal Reserve has been working for a number of years to improve the financial system; it is no surprise that many are sharing their own personal experiences and observations in the present day. The Federal Reserve needs to monitor risks and act as a stabilizer in the event of a financial crisis.

In Europe, where Basel III was adopted, banks created large balance sheet expansion, which used leverage and increased risk. In the United States, financial institutions also took on leveraged positions, but the costs of such actions would threaten financial stability. In financial systems, crises are managed by liquidity and capital ratios, especially for the large banks, which are considered to be the systemic risk. The Basel Committee on Banking Supervision (BCBS) is defined in terms of credit risk and systemic risk, and we are now focusing on achieving macro-prudential supervision, rather than with monetary policy alone. Basel II, which was established in 2004, failed to account for systemic risk. This third mandate, to prevent systemic risk, is a third mandate for the Federal Reserve, the Vice Chairman for Supervision, and the business you're in. Shops everywhere in their quest! For the time being, however, it is likely that the system is too fragile. In the case of low inflation, the Fed will eventually wind down asset purchases next year. However, the Federal Reserve still faces the challenge of reducing its balance sheet while it avoids an impact on economic growth. The Federal Reserve's policies are intended to promote a stable and healthy economy, reflecting a normalization of economic conditions and a return to healthy economic growth. American Lung Association Cautions Against Wood-burning and Urges Cleaner Alternatives for Winter Heat

LOS ANGELES - With the approach of the holidays and falling cooler temperatures, the American Lung Association in California is urging the public to avoid wood burning and to consider cleaner burning alternatives. Burning wood emit harmful toxins and fine particles into the air that can worsen asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). “Breathing particulate pollutants in wood can shorten life and send those most at risk to the emergency room,” said Ken Samuels, MD, PhD, researcher and volunteer physician for the American Lung Association in California. “Wood smoke particles are so small, they can bypass the airway defenses and enter directly into the lung and bloodstream and can cause damage to cells, and lead to lung disease and heart attacks.”

As with any pollution, children are especially at risk. Their lungs do not fully form until the age of 16 and exposure to higher levels of wood smoke can lead to reduced lung function and the risk of future lung disease. For children with asthma, breathing wood smoke can lead to severe asthma attacks and breathing emergencies. “Western California Residents Can Do To Breathe Easier This Fall and Winter. Citrus College Joins President Obama’s “8 Keys to Success” Initiative

GLENDORA - Citrus College has adopted President Barack Obama’s “8 Keys to Success” initiative, integrating the principles - which aim to promote student veterans’ educational success - into the college's established and highly recognized Veterans Program. The Citrus College Veterans Program, which includes a specialized and highly acclimated Veterans Resource Center, has a longstanding history of creating a welcoming environment and providing critical academic support and instructional services to military personnel and their families. The Obama administration’s “8 Keys to Success” national initiative lays the groundwork for programs at colleges and universities to be able to more effectively provide veterans and military families with a high-quality, affordable education, and will replicate the work being done at Citrus College. The specific steps include the following:
1. Create a culture of trust and connectedness. This includes campus community campaigns to support well-being and success for veterans.
2. Ensure consistent and sustained support from campus leadership.
3. Implement an early alert system to ensure all veterans receive academic, career and financial advice before challenges become overwhelming.
4. Coordinate and centralize campus efforts for all veterans, including the creation of a designated space (even if limited in size).
5. Collaborate with local community organizations, including government agencies, to align and coordinate various services for veterans.
6. Utilize a uniform set of data tools to collect and track information, measure outcomes, retain demographics, retention and degree completion.
7. Provide comprehensive professional development for faculty to familiarize themselves with the program and its challenges and unique to veterans.
8. Foster an environment that supports the sustainability of effective practices for veterans.

“I am proud to say that Citrus College was already implementing many of these concepts before hearing of President Obama’s call to action,” said Superintendent/President Geraldine M. Pagni, PhD. “This is a great privilege to be a leader in the movement to truly support and encourage our student veteran population as they transition from military service to the classroom.”

More than 300 student veterans are currently enrolled at Citrus College, where they have a multitude of services available to them through its Veteran Program and Veterans Center, including support counseling, tutoring and G.I. Bill information. The program was established in 2006. G.I. Jobs magazine recently designated Citrus College as a Military Friendly School for the fourth consecutive year, ranking the college among the top 15 percent of all higher education institutions in the nation providing the most academic, financial, and counseling support to veterans. In 2010, Citrus College became one of only 15 colleges and universities in the nation to earn designation as a Center of Excellence for Veteran Student Success grant from the U.S. Department of Education to expand the program. “Citrus College has been a consistent trailblazer in providing support for service-offering veterans, service members and their families through innovative transitional programs that foster student achievement,” said Patricia Rasmussen, president of the Citrus Community College District Board of Trustees.

December Tax Tips

New BOE Regulation Changes

The Board Members approved two important amendments to business tax regulations at the November 19-20, 2013 Board of Equalization meeting. These amendments are:

Authority to Refuse Seller’s Permit

The BOE Business Taxes Committee approved an amendment that interprets and explains Revenue and Taxation Code section 670.5, to Regulation 1.09 giving the BOE the authority to refuse to issue a seller’s permit to an individual that retains an outstanding business tax liability. Prior to the enactment of Revenue and Taxation Code section 670.5, a business with an outstanding tax liability could close out a seller’s permit prior to revocation for nonpayment of taxes, then apply for a new seller’s permit. A person might have used this as a loophole to obtain a new seller’s permit without paying outstanding tax obligations.

The new amendment to Regulation 1.09 explains that BOE will look at the individuals behind corporate seller’s permit applications to ensure they are not simply applying for permits under a different identity (that is, as a corporation or LLC) to circumvent any obligation to pay outstanding taxes on a prior seller’s permit.

Tax-Included Basis Preemption for Mobile Food Vendors

The BOE Business Taxes Committee also approved a revision to Regulation 1603, which creates a presumption in the mobile food vendor industry that all sales are made on a tax-included basis. Under current rules, such vendors must post signs to notify customers that sales are made on a tax-excluded basis. Issues sometimes arise for mobile food vendors that intend to make their sales on a tax-included basis, but did not post such signs. The failure to post such signs results in a higher level of noncompliance. Accordingly, this change to Regulation 1603 will provide support to mobile food vendors to ensure that their sales are on a tax-included basis at all times.

Health Potential Takes Flight

By Don Ingwerson

I have a family of gulls (two adults and three chicks) nesting on my chimney, going about their business built on their own instincts and traditions. They are of course ignoring my family below. Because of these new guests—their eating, exercising, and family interactions—compared to human’s health habits and beliefs of tradition can limit the acceptance of new health habits.

This idea, which for seagulls is portrayed so vividly in the book Jonathan Livingston Seagull, wasn’t initially well received. But today the book is a spiritual classic by Tom Butler-Bowdon, who noted that “It is easy now, thirty five years on, to overlook the genius of the book’s concept, and though some find it rather naïve, it got to thinking about health from the perspective of spirituality and transformation that can take flight in many ways through the medical community and in individual people’s lives. Let’s watch it soar!”

Don Ingwerson, author of The Heart Speaks: A Cardiologist Reveals the Sacred Language of Healing, in an interview with Spirituality and Health, was asked, “If you had to pick one alternative practice for this entire country what would it be?” She answers, “Meditation. Because I firmly believe when people have peace inside, when they go in and feel connected to something larger than themselves, they start to have healthier outcomes.”

They start to have healthier outcomes. Don blogs on his website www.casketolga@earthlink.net and leave a message.
