Foster Kids Celebrate New Families on National Adoption Day

By Sally Jeun Southern California Edison

The past year has been a time of uncertainty for Simona Bustos as she waited to adopt her two granddaughters, Carly, 3, and Angel, 5. Bustos has cared for Carly and Angel since birth, but had limited legal parental rights in the foster care system. She feared they might get separated from their three older siblings, who were already under her legal care due to family circumstances.

She finally set aside her worries Friday afternoon as Los Angeles Superior Court Commissioner Stephen Marpet declared Carly and Angel, smiling and dressed in matching outfits, were officially adopted in a Monterey Park courtroom overflowing with teddy bears and balloons.

"The adoption is very important to me because Carly and Angel will be able to grow up with their brother and sisters," said Bustos in Spanish through her pro bono lawyer from Southern California Edison. "I love all of my grandchildren dearly, and I do not want to lose my family or Carly and Angel were among more than 230 foster children in Los Angeles County adopted into 'forever families' as part of National Adoption Day. About 5,000 adoptions took place across the country.

year for about 10 years through the opportunities made possible by SCE's partnership with Public Counsel, a nonprofit law firm that provides free legal services to children and families, many of them Spanish-speaking.

"It's been incredibly helpful that SCE has been able to assist our monolingual Spanish-speaking families," said Karen Ullman, adoption director of Public Counsel. "Because of the language barriers, sometimes our non-English-speaking families have had a difficult time accessing services and funding, so the advocacy work that SCE has done for those families has been especially significant."

After the adoption ceremony, Carly and Angel walked outside the courthouse hand in hand with their full entourage — grandma, big sisters and brother, Forrest as well as their social worker.

Angel might not fully understand the significance of her adoption, but she's sure about one thing. "I love my abuela (grandma)," she said.

After 40 Years, Cynthia Hernandez Laid to Rest in Glendora

By Jayam Rutnam

GLENDORA - It was an unusually windy morning, at 10 a.m. on December 2, 2016 at the Oakdale Cemetery in Glendora, when family and friends of 18 year old Cindy Hernandez gathered to bid a final farewell to an "angel." Cynthia May "Cindy" Hernandez' remains (ashes), were "laid to rest" in a small vault on a wall facing the offices of the Oakdale Memorial Park. Reverend Jeff Frohner, of Our Savior's Lutheran Church in San Clemente, officiated at the remembrance ceremony. He said "It is a hard day. We shouldn't be here." He asked the attendees to sing "Jesus Loves Me." It was a very touching and emotional cer-

Cindy was born on June 7, 1958 to Romaldo and Gloria Hernandez. She was the second of three children. When Cindy was three years old, her mother and children left her husband in Texas and relocated in California. Gloria eventually divorced Romaldo and then married Thomas Desham, who became a loving step father to the three chil-

Cindy had just graduated from Charter Oak High School in Glendora the year she disappeared. It was on a Thursday evening, on August 26, 1976, that she was eager on seeing a specific movie, which was finishing its run at the Fox Covina Theater. It was the last show of the day, at would be taken off the screen the next day. Cindy got into her white lot and parked.

Gloria and Thomas got worried when Cindy did not return home that night. Thomas and their son Morrie went to the theater Cindy's car parked in the lot. They went to the police who treated the situation as a teenager who ran away from home! Cindy's frustrated parents could not convince the police that Cindy would not run away. Four days passed and the police released the car to the family and treated it as a missing person case.

Two months went by. A mountain cabin owner and his dog were enjoying the mountains. The dog was barking outside. The owner went out and found the dog with its paws around a human skull. A rib cage was later found under the

The Glendora Police Department's Lieutenant Tim Staab (now the Chief of Police) decided to open this VERY COLD case in 2012. Sergeant Marty Amaro (now retired), assisted by Detective Matt Fenner were assigned. They took the DNA of Cindy's mother, biological father and sister and compared it to DNA's of the remains of many people. It took over six months. They found a match. The DNA of Cindy's skull and ribcage matched the DNA of Cindy's family. It was a bitter sweet feeling for Cindy's mother, who while she was happy to hear that Cindy was found, she also found out that Cindy was dead.

During the Glendora Police Department's investigation, the trail led to San Bernardino County, where the bones were found. Charges were filed against Larry James Allred. The now 62year-old Allred pleaded guilty to killing Cindy and was sentenced to life in prison. He will be eligible for parole in seven years!!!

Larry Allred had a previous record of raping a young girl. He served 90 days in a Youth Farm in that case. After the murder, he was arrested for kidnapping and fraud, in an unrelated case, for which he served 2 years of a 4 year term.

According to information gleaned from the trial, Allred pulled alongside Cindy's vehicle, got out, approached her with a knife and grabbed her. She fought hard and in the ensuing struggle he strangled her to death. Allred then put her lifeless body in his vehicle and drove to his mother's mountain home in Twin Peaks, California. He then buried her in a shallow grave in the compound.

The son of a "good family," Larry Allred was referred to as "the bad seed."

According to Gloria Desham, he showed no remorse during the court case, as a matter of fact, his behavior at the hearing could be referred to as being "pompous."

Retired Sergeant Marty Amaro, Detective Matt Fenner and Chief Tim Staab were among the officers of the Glendora Police Department who were present at the funeral service. Also at the service were Glendora Council Member Karen Davis and Deputy District Attorney Denise Yoakum, who did an exceptional job in prosecuting the case, and obtaining a guilty verdict.

At the cemetery, Gloria Desham thanked the police officers and the prosecutor in the case. She also gave them fresh baked cookies. Gloria said "You brought my baby back!"

Assemblyman Holden Introduces Student Transit Pass Bill

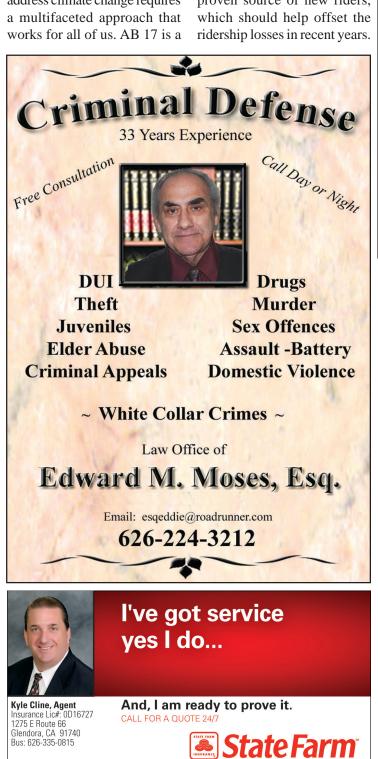

SACRAMENTO – Assemblyman Chris Holden (D-Pasadena) introduced AB 17 to enact the Transit Pass Program to assist with student public ridership. Public transit fares have risen considerably in many areas across the state. This bill addresses the lack of sufficient pedestrian, bicycling, and public transit opportunities in lowincome and working class com-

Recent reports suggest public transit ridership is decreasing across California, causing several public transit agencies to come dangerously close to missing the "fare box" revenue targets mandated by the federal government. Without reversing this trend, California will have a difficult time decreasing its petroleum use and achieving greenhouse gas emission reduction goals.

"California's leadership to address climate change requires pragmatic solution to offer transit passes for students to fuel their education and making sure that less fuel is used to get them there. This bill would save money for students, reduce our carbon footprint, and energize urban transportation infrastructure."

Planning continues to be a huge need for active transportation—especially in lowresourced communities. Planning funds enable the development of meaningful and transformative infrastructure proposals that make the most of our limited state dollars for active transportation, all while addressing community residents' identified mobility and safety needs. The Transit Pass Program will provide low-cost, effective transportation options to budget conscious students, while providing local transportation agencies with statistically proven source of new riders,

Brian Saeki Named as New Covina City Manager

COVINA - The Covina City Council has selected Brian Saeki to be the new City Manager for the City of Covina. The selection process for the new City Manager began with a nationwide search through a professional recruiter resulting in over fifty interested applicants. The applicant pool was narrowed to seven candidates to be interviewed ultimately leading to Saeki being the Council's top choice.

Mr. Saeki has over nineteen years of public service experience and is currently the City Manager for the City of San Fernando - a full service city with just over 175 full and part time employees. His other experiences include working for the cities of Downey, Rosemead and Arcadia in various positions including Community Development Director, Assistant City Manager and Economic Development Manag-

Mr. Saeki is very familiar with Covina and the San Gabriel Valley having both lived and worked here for over twenty years. He continues to call the San Gabriel Valley his home where he is raising his two young children. Professionally he is a member of the International City Managers Association and the California City Managers Foundation and has served on numerous regional taskforces. Academically he holds a B.S. in Urban and Regional Planning from Cal Poly Pomona and a M.S. in Public Administration from California State University Northridge.

The City Council is expected to approve his employment contract at the next council meeting on December 6, 2016, and he will assume the position just after the new year.

Mayor Kevin Stapleton said "I and the council are excited to have Mr. Saeki join us as our Covina City Manager. We are confident he will bring his leadership and team building spirit to accomplish great things here. He comes with a unique experience of leading a full service city and having worked for contract cities. His depth of experience in economic development promises to invigorate our efforts to overcome the economic downturn of the recent past and lead Covina to new heights."

Charter Oak Unified School District First Annual Christmas Parade and Fireworks Show on December 9

COVINA – Charter Oak Unified School District is the leading district in the San Gabriel Valley with outstanding employees that offer exemplary programs and services. The district is excited to feature their amazing accomplishments and offerings at the Charter Oak Holiday Parade on December 9 at 6:00pm.

Get in the holiday spirit and set your chairs up along Mangrove Avenue, Cienega Avenue, Bonnie Cove Avenue and Covina Boulevard to view the parade. (Parade starts and ends at Charter Oak Park.) After the parade, browse the Holiday Festival, visit vendors and partake of the food trucks at Charter Oak High School! Bring blankets to set up on the Charter Oak High School Stadium field to watch the fireworks display. (Blankets only; no chairs. No food or drinks allowed on the field.)

Los Angeles County Supervisor-Elect Kathryn Barger said she is honored to participate in the inaugural Charter Oak Holiday Parade, "Charter Oak is an exemplary school district with many wonderful programs that I am excited to see featured in the parade. Excellence in education is evidenced by the support and participation of the staff, students and community throughout Charter Oak Unified." Dr. Hendricks, District Superintendent, is happy to see the excitement, and even some competition, among the school sites. "We have over 60 participants in our parade and some of the plans for the entries are being kept top secret. It will be great fun to see the results of everyone coming together to support our school district."

Portantino Sworn in as State Senator for District 25

Portantino's first day of legislative session promotes three key legislative priorities

SACRAMENTO - Sen. Anthony J. Portantino (D-La Cañada Flintridge) joined other newly elected Senators in the 40-member upper house of the State Legislature. With his daughter Sofia by his side, Portantino was sworn in as the State Senator for the 25th District.

"I'm honored to join the California State Senate and appreciate the many friends who helped me get here. I'm excited to be in a position to work on issues that are important to my district," commented Portantino, who previously represented the area as Assembly Member for the 44th District.

Portantino used the first day of the legislative session to promote three key legislative priori-

Portantino introduced SB 25, which seeks to create a plan to fully integrate a guaranteed K-14 education. In the Assembly, Portantino was a champion for greater cooperation between community colleges and high schools. SB 25 takes these efforts further, creating a complete K-14 education model in place of separate K-12 and post-secondary education models.

"At a time when our economy demands that our students are better prepared, it is imperative that our education model changes with the times," added Portantino.

Always focused on "good government" reform and transparency, Portantino re-introduced SB 24, which updates the Political Reform Act to create better and more accurate financial disclosure requirements for elected representatives.

"Looking at Washington, it is clear that it can be hard to get elected leaders to recognize the importance of transparency. I hope that with all the recent focus on conflict of interest, now is the time for California to lead by example and embrace greater disclosure," commented Portantino.

Portantino also introduced SB 23 to extend necessary funding for California's Umbilical Cord Blood Collection Program. Portantino created the Cord Blood program while in the Assembly but its funding is set to sunset next year. SB 23 extends the funding to continue the important public health program for another decade. Because of Portantino earlier efforts, the University of California Davis Hospital has been storing cord blood stem cells and using them to cure leukemia and other blood-related diseases.

"Saving stem cells and curing cancer go hand in hand, and I'm very excited to have found a bipartisan effort to aid that cause. It was very important to me that I begin my time in the State Senate, on issues that save lives and have significant impacts," concluded Portantino.

Sen. Portantino represents about 930,000 people in the 25th Senate District, which includes Burbank, Sunland-Tujunga, Shadow Hills, Atwater Village, Glendale, La Cañada Flintridge, La Crescenta, Montrose, Pasadena, Altadena, South Pasadena, San Marino, Sierra Madre, Monrovia, Bradbury, Duarte, San Dimas, Glendora, La Verne, Claremont, and Upland.

Sierra Vista High Transforms Library into Tech-Rich Student Collaboration Center

Project is part of a $175,000 infusion of new technology

BALDWIN PARK – Sierra Vista High School will hold a grand opening at 9 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 8 for a renovated library that features five tech-infused stations where students can work together on group projects.

The renovation is at the core of a $175,000 transformation that re-envisions how the space can foster collaboration.

"We have increased our career pathways in the areas of technology and now we need our library to reflect this growth and be a resource to our students," Sierra Vista Principal

Christine Simmons said. "The modernized library will open new opportunities for students to collaborate with the digital devices and other resources they need."

Two stations are set up in private rooms; three more are in the library's main room. Each includes a flat-screen TV that can be connected to student laptops via Bluetooth, wheeled chairs and upgraded Wi-Fi. The private rooms feature stereo sound systems.

As part of the tech expansion, students can check out 25 new HP laptops for in-library use and work in a computer lab that hosts 20 HP desktops. Sierra Vista High School plans to buy iPads and Mac desktops next year. The project will serve as a model for campus transformations across Baldwin Park Unified.

"These tools are critical to our students' efforts to prepare for college and the increasingly complex challenges of today's job market," Superintendent Froilan Mendoza said. "Our goal is to create areas where technology, collaboration and learning meld seam-

Time to Bury the Hatchet and Move Forward

I started watching the 8 a.m. Sunday news shows where journalists interview politicians or political players. The journalists were throwing out names of President-Elect Trump's cabinet and other appointments that have been made and still need to be made.

I was switching channels back and forth - trying not only to escape the commercials, but catch all the commentary I could. Maybe switching channels I missed something, but I wasn't hearing a lot of complaints about the appointments that have been made so far.

I think I picked up something about the phone call from Taiwan not being appropriate because it would upset China. But then it was pointed out President Obama called and had conversations with Cuban President Fidel Castro and that was, in this columnists opinion, a more egregious act than receiving a phone call and taking it out of pure courtesy and appropriate protocol from a democratically elected woman President from Taiwan. All in all, a very quiet Sunday morning after the raucous election we all went through and almost got used to Republicans have successfully captured the Presidency, the House of Representatives and the Senate but it will be no smooth ride on implementation of any of Trump's proposals.

California will be front and center and ready to battle. Sanctuary cities is the first issue surfacing as a concern to locals - big and small - because of the threat to withhold federal funds from those32 cities nationwide who protect undocumented immigrants. A sanctuary city is defined as a city that has adopted a policy of protecting illegals by not prosecuting them for violating federal immigration laws.

And, a side note here. It is not local law enforcement's responsibility to enforce immigration law, it is the feds who are suppose to do that. But it is also not appropriate for local governments to shield illegal immigrants or remain uncooperative with the feds when they attempt and create a better and less ex-

Former Mayor of Glendora enforcement.

Everything I've read indicates President-Elect Trump's targets on the immigration issue are those undocumented immigrants here who have committed crimes and are roaming the streets or incarcerated in local jails or our prison system. I have heard testimony from those who have lost children and other relatives at the hands of illegal immigrants who refuse to obey the law. Repetitive drunk driving offenses eventually killing while under the influence; repetitive acts of violence; and, infractions with deportation only to come back and reoffend are the targets first up. Why would anyone want to protect a criminal, especially those who have committed violent crimes? Or worse, repeat offenders? Do we really need them to be in this country?

The second issue that has become extremely important is Obamacare and speaking generically, all health care in general. In my organization we've seen the insurance costs rise dramatically with additional promises of somewhere between 13% to 20% additional increases in the next two years. The Trump promise: To provide health insurance that is more affordable for everyone without taking away some of the most desired and needed aspects of health care insurance. Pre-existing conditions, coverage for children still at home because of a bad economy and no job yet - these are important to the average citizen. I haven't heard that will disappear.

Shouldn't President-elect Trump be given the chance to find

Annual 'Wish Lists' For Holiday Gifts For The Kids Available At Haynes Family Of Programs can fulfill a child's holiday wish

LA VERNE - Santa's helpers interested in helping give the kids at the Haynes Family of Programs in La Verne something to wish for this Christmas are invited to pick up a wish list for holiday gifts - and then come back for the annual gift wrap party and holiday lighting festivities.

Children's "wish lists," designed to make sure every child has a gift to open on Christmas morning, are now available at Haynes Family of Programs for holiday gift ideas.

The wish lists, which are available by e-mail or on handwritten Santa cards, provide an opportunity each year for members of the community to help bring holiday cheer to the 72 boys and teens in residence (ages 7 to 18), 190 boys, girls and teens with autism, developmental and learning disabilities attending school on the La Verne campus (ages 5 to 22), and nine young men who have "aged out" of foster care.

Community members also by donating a gift card (to Target, Walmart, Kohl's, movie tickets, etc.), donating unwrapped gifts that will be matched to a child's wish list, or making a tax-deductible donation to help support the Haynes Family of Programs holiday gift campaign and activities for the children. Gifts typically average $25 to $35 in value and should be delivered to the Haynes campus by Friday, Dec. 9.

In addition, volunteers are invited to join the annual holiday gift wrapping party from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 13, to help wrap gifts and enjoy holiday treats. Volunteers or groups of volunteers are asked to bring wrapping paper, tape and gift tags.

Thrivent Financial will provide children's personalized safety identification information, also at no cost.

For more information, contact (909) 593-2581, ext. 583.

pensive way to create a health care program that perhaps we would all eventually be happy with ... or least as happy as one can be with insurance? Why wouldn't we want to have more affordable health care?

A victory for Trump this week included saving Carrier Corporation but with potshots being fired over providing tax incentives to allow them to stay. We now have 1,100 people going into the holiday season with a paycheck and that warm fuzzy feeling of having a job and being able to pay the bills. Trump said he was going to create / save jobs and he has done that. What's the problem here?

Los Angeles area has seen some improvement in job growth but manufacturing still is pretty much a flat line. Our corporations have left California and some have left the country taking jobs with them leaving workers here unemployed. It is time to remedy that situation. If President-elect Donald Trump can do that by offering tax incentives, we should be supportive. At least let him provide the incentives to stay until the environmental and tax rate issues can be adjusted to allow companies to be able to afford to stay in this country rather than fleeing to areas with less restrictive laws.

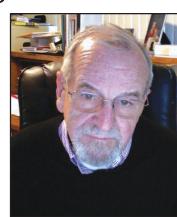

The election is over and Donald Trump won that election much to the surprise of many and the same many Washington D.C. establishment people are now in the process of burying the hatchet and moving forward. We should all take two steps back, take a deep breath and give the new President a chance to prove himself by making good on those campaign promises that will make America Great Again.

Reaching Toward Greatness

At some time in the past, was the United States a great nation whose former greatness now needs to be recovered; or is ours a nation whose greatness lies somewhere in the future; or are we a nation that is great today? I suppose the answer to that question lies in how one defines greatness-what it means to be a great nation.

There have been nations or empires scattered throughout history who were powerful enough to control everything around them-to the farthest reaches of the known world. Their military might could not be challenged. Their cache of weapons was capable of destroying everything and everyone it touched, and still they longed for more. "Build up our military" was a political sales pitch. Their economic hegemony determined not only the rise and fall of the world's markets, but also who should survive and who should not. Their doctrinal convictions dominated religion. Their borders were secure, and they kept out the unwanted. These mighty world powers were able to rid themselves of those they found unacceptable. Their national might was largely in the hands of strong men. One thinks of the powerful rulers we have recently deposedor tried to: Saddam, Kaddafi, Muburak, Bashar al-Assad. The conquering strong man may himself have been a misogynist, a sexual predator, someone who ridiculed the disabled, a liar and a cheat. He may have amassed a great fortune on the backs of those beneath him, and called himself smart for using obscure tax laws that provided him a way to pay nothing. When in power he might have made certain that those who had also amassed fortunes were treated to even greater wealth. He might have considered himself to be the leader of the world, and with that egotistical image belittled what he believed to be weaker nations. But if he frightened enough of his own people into feeling unsafe in a dangerous world, it did not matter what he had done or what he believed. He and his ambition would prevail.

One thinks back to such a strong man who said, the night after he became his nation's chancellor, "the Christian faith will safeguard the soul of the German people." But for him and his party, religion was used as a weapon against those in his nation who did who did not bow to the to the twisted cross version of the Christian faith. To make good on these claims, he eliminated those he believed to be a threat-including 6 million Jews. He amassed what he believed to be the most powerful military force on the planet, and used that might to control Europe. It was only when the rest of the world-or most of it-said "stop!" that he, his party and his nation were brought

A nation that believes in this definition of greatness will build walls to keep undesirable neighbors out, and then cross over those walls to establish settlements and even cities on land that is not theirs. And it would make certain that these whose land it occupied did not have the same military might the occupying nation possessed, and were limited to throwing stones and firing rockets which did little more damage than firecrackers.

Am I talking about Germany, or Israel or the United States? Perhaps I am talking about any nation wherein the shoe fits.

A nation holding that definition of greatness will ignore what the scientific world knows to be true, even if the crisis threatens everyone's survival. If, for instance, climate change interferes with national hegemony or does not promote domestic economic growth, it is to be discounted, and the world's scientists ridiculed.

The leaders of such a nation will spin a web of racial slurs, covering the language with softer euphemisms-such as "urban poverty" or "reverse discrimination," and will appoint to high positions long-time racists who may have modified their rhetoric, but not their convictions. A government which begins to live out of this perspective will market its philosophy internally to whomever it believes feels left behind, or marginalized, or overtaken by anyone who looks or talks differently, or has recently arrived from elsewhere.

For those of us deeply distressed about the present implications of the above definition, it will become clearer whether our newly elected President, who will come into office without winning the nationwide popular vote, will take this path or seek a very different definition of what makes a great nation. In a few weeks I will suggest what a very dissimilar definition of greatness might look like.

Crime is Up, We Should Be Able to Kill When...

Today, crime is up. Even though the statistics show that the crime rate hasn't increased that much is because of the politicians and legislators who have decriminalized many crimes. They consider some misdemeanors not a crime, when in the past they were. Assembly Bill 109 was passed because of overcrowding in our prisons allows prisoners to be released early after serving hardly no time at all for their crimes. These people are among us. Granted, some of these are petty criminals, however there is a high-volume of dangerous felons that are being released under this program. Do you know where they are? They are in your neighborhood.

Let's go back in history. Back in the 1800s, the method of transportation was a horse. You could saddle it up, or attach it to a buggy to get to places you need to go. They took people to work, to the doctor, to the stores and towns. If someone was to steal that transportation and become a horse thief, you could basically shoot them on sight with no repercussion as long as there was validity to the fact that they stole a horse. Today our method of transportation is our cars. The horse and the car has a lot in common. They are critical for transportation to get from point A to point B. One you put gas in it, and the other passes gas. Seriously, if you think about it, there's no difference in what they are used for. You can shoot a horse thief and become a hero. If you shoot a car thief, chances are you could go to jail for protecting your property. My question is, why can't we kill these people that steal from us whether it be a car, our wallets, or property? They say the punishment doesn't match the crime. If you try to physically stop these people from committing a crime against you or your property, you can bet your butt, that these criminals will try to kill you. They say, that killing a car thief doesn't match the penalty for the crime. I would like to know who made up that rule. If somebody is breaking into your house with your family there and you blow them away, he should be given a

George Ogden That's just the way it is!

You always heard that if somebody's breaking into your house and you end up shooting them outside, you need to drag them inside the house to make it legal. Don't even think about doing that. That is not the truth at all. The fact of the matter is, if you are "in fear of your life" under any circumstances and you have to defend yourself by killing the aggressor, or to protect somebody else from harm, you are good to go. If there is that opportunity to get them to surrender before they are neutralized, then make that effort. Remember, if you are in fear of your life, or the life of somebody else, most likely this will be a justified homicide.

You often hear, "call the police because they are only minutes away." However, you often hear this, "the police are only minutes away when only seconds matter."

One thing is, don't be stupid and run around like a cowboy shooting up the bad guys. If your house is being broken into and you call the police, and you go outside with a gun to protect you and your family from the criminals breaking in, when the police arrived, it is not a good idea to run out to them to let them know you're the homeowner with a gun in your hand. Good chance those police officers may be the last living thing you see. If the police arrive, immediately get into your house and if it is safe to disarm yourself, do it. You do not want to answer the door with a firearm in your hand. It is not healthy. Chances are, that these criminals that are committing these crimes such as graffiti, breaking into houses, stealing cars, robbing and beating people and so on, are often armed and there is a good chance they will kill you to try to get away from being caught. Do what you can to protect yourself and your family. If you can't safely neutralize the situation, give up the property and/or back off. If you have a concealed weapons permit and you are out and about, and there is a crime going down against somebody else or yourself, be careful. Chances are that there are other people involved in committing the crime that you don't know about.

An example is, many years ago, an off-duty law enforcement officer by the name of Pompeii was in a supermarket when a take over robbery occurred. After witnessing a beating of an employee, the officer felt the need to make a heroic effort to stop this action and save this individual from further harm or possibly death. He pulled his weapon and identified himself as an officer and basically got the drop on the thieves that he could see, but sadly, he did not know about the another party behind him who had a gun and killed him. You need to be careful about your surroundings. Don't compromise your own life or the lives of others by trying to be a hero. If you carry a concealed weapon, and you see officers in trouble and you attempt to assist them, you better be damn sure that they know you are the good guy. If not, they may mistake you for an armed crimi-

I can't help but feel that we should go back to the old days and protect ourselves and our family and those that are in need. I look at it this way, if you are committing a crime, no matter how petty or how serious, there's a good chance that you may be armed and could put my life in danger. If I try to prevent you from committing that crime, or try to take you down for committing said crime, without question I would give you the opportunity to stop what you're doing and be allowed to be taken into custody. If you challenge me and threaten me, take a look at me and I want you to think, "Is this the last living thing I want to see before I die?" I am over weight and ugly, so think about it.

nal and drop you in a flash.

If you want to commit crimes against the people, and you should happen to die in the process no matter what you are doing. I'm okay with that.

Completely As They Seem

Things are not always what they seem, and recent events clearly exemplify that fact. Consider that Hillary Clinton was a favorite in nearly every poll leading up to the election, but Trump won.

In campaigns, things are often intentionally made to seem what they are not. Consider that "Crowds on Demand" is an American publicity firm where you can hire a lot of strangers to attend your event. The owner of the company has even admitted that people running for Congress, the Senate, and even the Presidency have used his services to appear to have more supporters. "Our business is about cultivating perception. Its basic marketing," founder Adam Swart said in The Atlantic. Early on, the article says, the Trump campaign hired actors for his appearances. This may or may not have impacted the recent political 'black swan' event that occurred, but it was a tactic many employed. Having someone else make things 'seem what they are not' is one thing, but doing it to yourself is another thing. Consider that Facebook is under fire because of not only the "fake news" phenomenon, but also what many call the algorithmic bubble effect. If you are not familiar with this, Facebook has "smart algos" that identify what you like to see and feed you similar information while suppressing opposing information. This potentially has far-reaching effects, allowing a tremendous segment of the population to see life through rosecolored glasses of their own making. This is especially true of the recent presidential election. We obviously need to reassess and come to terms with our new information age - one where facts seem to have less value and 'eyeball time' has more value. "Spin" seems far amplified compared to prior eras. Perhaps there will be a shift back to facts and traditionally unbiased media, if there is still such a thing.

Three weeks ago, it seemed that Financials, Industrials, and

in the Economy? What's up i

Economic Analyst & Former Glendora Mayor

Healthcare were cursed to spend their days dwelling near the bottom of the worst-performing sectors lists. Well, once again things were not what they seemed. Looking at the past few weeks' performance of Financials alone, it would seem that we are in a totally different era altogether. The rotations in the market have been violent and eye-catching. Last week's market looked very different from the market of three weeks ago.

The Standard & Poor's Financials Sector Index has rocketed more than 12% since the beginning of November. For a sector that seemed unloved for so long, this change is certainly refreshing to many. Banks have been leading the charge as Trump's victory may have positive implications for banks in regards to Dodd/Frank regulations. The Federal Reserve's stated reasons for procrastination regarding interest rates now seem less convincing. The data is more positive and the election is out of the way.

Naturally, this has had a more negative effect on sectors sensitive to rates. Real Estate, Telecommunications, and Utilities have been punished substantially for the past three months, as has Consumer Staples. What was previously the strongest sector, Information Technology, has taken a clear back seat to first Financials, and now Industrials.

Creeping up on us is the shockingly inspiring nine-month performance of Financials, much of which can be attributed to action in the most recent weeks. Financials, Industrials, Energy, and Technology (despite facing recent pressure) seem to be where the focus of inflows is Still, things may not be what they seem. Politicians like to create perceptions. We create, even if unknowingly, our own perception. Almost everywhere you look, what lies beneath the surface is not necessarily what we expected.

Whether you supported Trump or not, he is our President-elect. The public has spoken and this election was voted on and decided the same way our prior elections have been. Our freedoms entitle us to support our new President - and also to voice our opinions for things we don't agree on. That's what makes America the place it is. Given that a Trump victory was supposed to tank the markets - and didn't - that perception is also not what it seemed. The markets clearly like a Trump victory, or at the very least they like the end of the uncertainty surrounding the election.

As we struggle to make sense of a dynamically undulating market, we must view everything with healthy skepticism. Short covering in weaker sectors, for instance, may not just end there. These weaker sectors may now possibly become the engines of a new bull market. Only time will tell, but there is much many can be excited about in terms of sector rotations now. It will be interesting to see what unfolds, to say the least.

We have a habit of constructing reality around perceptions. This becomes tricky when our perceptions are created for us by others, or even worse, through our own bias by ourselves. Michelangelo said: "If people knew how hard I worked to get my mastery, it wouldn't seem so wonderful at all."

I welcome your questions and c o m m e n t skenherman46@hotmail.com

Your Money - Ask Julia

Is there a way for me to legally increase my taxable deductions for 2016?

If you are a homeowner, make your January mortgage payment in December so that you get that extra amount of interest deduction. If you are close to reaching the limit for the medical expenses deduction, and were putting off a medical procedure until 2017, reschedule for 2016. Or, purchase a long-term care insurance policy, as this also counts under the medical deduction. Making a contribution to an individual IRA might help, too. It would be best talk with a CPA.

Which is best: an annuity, or life insurance with a cash account?

It depends on your specific situation and needs, and what you want that investment to do for you. Each product has its own advantages. Life insurance offers you a higher payout for your beneficiaries if you were to pass sooner than later, and some of the money you pay is used to cover the premium. Life insurance with a cash account offers you the death benefit, plus the tax-advantaged potential pot of money to access while you are alive. Annuities can be a way to save for retirement, with companybacked guarantees that you cannot lose your money. There are long-term annuities, and there are immediate annuities with scheduled monthly or annual payouts. If you don't qualify for life insurance, it's a simple choice to go with an annuity.

Other than the obvious, what are the advantages and disadvantages of annuities with a bonus compared to those without a bonus?

Annuities with a bonus often offer to pay lower interest rates, whereas annuities without a bonus sometimes offer a higher interest rate. It's all a matter of figuring out what's best for each individual. Although I can inform you through this column, it's in a very general way. Each person has their own current situation along with different goals on what they want their money to do for them. An individual analysis of these details is necessary to determine what is most suitable for you.

Is it possible to take some money from my retirement account at work and move it into an IRA?

This type of move is called an "in-service distribution." Check with H.R., or see if your retirement plan document indicates whether or not your employersponsored retirement plan permits you to roll over some of these funds into an Individual Retirement Arrangement while you are still working for that employer. If allowable, and if done correctly, it should not cause a taxable event, and there should be no early (pre-age 59 1/2) withdrawal IRS penalty of 10%. Some may be wondering why you want your own IRA. Reasons for moving some of your retirement money are: freedom to participate in a wider range of allocation choices, better guarantees (like a guarantee that you cannot lose your principal), better protection in case the company goes bankrupt, and more control over distribution to beneficiaries.

My grandfather recently died. He'd named me as the beneficiary on his annuity. Is this like life insurance? How do I make the claim? I am so sorry to hear about your loss. How you file the claim and receive that payout depends on that specific annuity policy's rules, whether or not it's within a trust, or if your grandfather set up any other payout guidelines. For right now, do nothing until you thoroughly review the annuity policy. A life insurance agent, or a call to the annuity company can help. Trying to make the claim incorrectly can result in a considerable loss of funds.

Transmission repairs have become an interesting phenomenon in the automotive repair industry. I thought I would share some information with you that could result in saving you money!

- Most cars will start to experience transmission issues around age six
- When a check engine light illuminates, 20% of the time it is because of the transmission. • 50% of those issues can be
- fixed easily • 80% of repair shops, because they don't have enough knowledge about transmissions will tell you it needs to be replaced. That is because for them it is just easier to replace the entire thing

since they don't know enough about transmissions to fix it or don't want to be bothered with it. Many consumers are keeping their vehicles longer these days due to the economy. We make sure we help in this area. Consumers might opt to buy a different car rather than pay to repair their current one if the cost is high. Replacing a transmission is a lot to pay for a repair and if the vehicle will need more of the same, say in six months, I am completely up front with them. I want them to make the right decision for them and for their bud-

If you feel you are having transmission problems, before you pay out an exorbitant amount of money to have it replaced, ask what the problem is exactly. A really good shop, like Certified Automotive Specialists, can save you a lot of money! The average repair shop just guesses instead of investigating.

Sometimes, of course, it really does need to be replaced but again, a shop that really knows what they are doing will give you options rather than "just replace it" as a solution.

If you suspect your vehicle is experiencing transmission problems, give us a call! We'll tell you upfront what the problem is! We want to be the solution to your vehicle problems!

When Getting Arrested Becomes An Opportunity To Heal

thing most people think of as a positive experience. For Leslie Caldwell, however, getting pulled over while under the influence of alcohol changed the course of

This wasn't Caldwell's first time driving under the influence (DUI), and it wasn't her first time being caught. She had four prior offenses; the most recent where she was jailed for 35 days. As a single mother of three young children, Caldwell knew that this arrest, as a reoffense, was much more serious and could result in a much longer time in jail—and probably the loss of her children.

After her last arrest and incarceration, Caldwell swore she would never drink and drive again, but while incarcerated, she didn't learn about her problem with alcohol and related depression, and she didn't explore treatment. She didn't know where to get help. Three months later, Caldwell was under the influence and behind the wheel again. Drinking had become her way of coping and managing with life and parenting stress and she believed alcohol was helping her.

Caldwell's story, unfortunately, is not unusual. Even when the warning signs are there, many people have a difficult time reaching out for help, although they realize they have a problem. Not only are people with mental health and substance use concerns more likely to find their way into the criminal justice system, they end up staying incarcerated longer than individuals who were arrested for similar offenses who don't have these issues. They're also at a higher risk of being homeless, unemployed and without family support—and this, in turn, places them at higher risk for being rearrested later in

Getting arrested isn't some- Helpful Alternatives To Incarceration

> Specialty courts deal with specific cases, such as those involving mental health, drugs, veteran's issues, and domestic violence. These courts work to identify people struggling with such problems and find strategies to help them recover, live healthier, and make better choices. Adults and youths can avoid jail or have their sentences greatly reduced by agreeing to participate in community "diversion programs" designed to help them heal. There are more than 3,000 program sites across the country, many of which are supported with funding and technical assistance by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), an agency in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

While it is most helpful to identify a person with mental health or substance use issues before incarceration, there are different points at which a person might be referred to a community program: when engaging with law enforcement, at initial detention or a first court appearance, in jails and courts, when released from jail and re-entering the community, and during probation or parole. Any one of these points in the process can be an opportunity to identify someone needing help so that underlying concerns can be addressed and jail time can be minimized. SAMHSA provides screening tools, technical assistance, and other guidance to help mental health professionals, judges, law enforcement officers and others in the criminal justice system to effectively use diversion programs for nonviolent offenders—and to help the public to understand how these programs are good for individuals,

These court-based programs can also give people with prior arrests who are in recovery the opportunity to help others in similar situations. Some are hired to help identify and work with those who have just entered the system. These peers can more easily recognize the circumstances involving mental health and substance use disorders that can ultimately lead to an arrest. Their personal lived experiences make them valuable members of the treatment team as mentors, volunteers, or paid specialists.

In the last and most serious arrest, Caldwell was incarcerated for 18 days, during which her attorney told her about a DUI and substance abuse treatment program as a possible option for release. She applied and was accepted into a program referred to by the Behavioral Health Treatment Court in McMinnville, Tenn., a program supported by a SAMHSA grant. She received a lesser charge and was released to a substance abuse treatment rehabilitation clinic, where she spent 36 days working on her sobriety. After that, Caldwell had to commit to an 18-month DUI program. It provided outpatient treatment three times each week and talk therapy with a supportive counselor. She also talked with the counselor intermittently if she was struggling with an issue or with her sobriety.

Three years later, Caldwell is still in recovery and visits the DUI treatment program to stay connected to that support. She also regularly does cognitive behavioral therapy worksheets to help her look at things differently-from the negative and heavy, to the positive and hopeful. She's earned her GED high school equivalency and is in college, and she works with a law firm. She's aspiring to higher achievement-both for her career and as a mother.

"I was really depressed and thought nobody could relate to me-so I became a functional alcoholic," said Caldwell. "Then I met other people who were going through the same kind of struggle. That helped me to start out and it helps me now. It's so much easier doing this than living with actions that I regretted."

Caldwell completed the courtordered diversion program successfully and she continues a church-based recovery program now. The DUI program continues to be a support as well and she speaks with new groups of students to share her story and offer understanding and hope. When she has a bad day, she talks with her therapist and she has an exercise routine to help manage the stress.

"I am a good mother now. The kids know that there are consequences for their actions and I don't just let them do whatever they want, as they could before," said Caldwell. "They aren't on the path I was on-they have structure and are doing well in school. We're all in a much better place."

One-On-One Computer Tutoring Available at Glendora Public Library

GLENDORA - Do any of these situations sound familiar?

- You inquire about a job, only to be told that you must apply online. You visit the company's website, only to discover that you must have an email account to submit your application. But you've never used email before.

- Your daughter, who lives in another state, posts pictures of your grandchildren on Facebook. You'd like to view them, but you have no idea how to do so.

- You need to submit a legal document. You are told to fill it out online and then submit it electronically as an attachment. But you don't know how.

- You are secretary at your church, and you want to create a flyer for the upcoming fall potluck. You'd like to make it eyecatching, but you don't know how to include pictures.

These are just a few examples of everyday activities that can be achieved much more easily if one has a minimum of computer knowledge.

If you would like to improve your basic computer skills, the Glendora Library can help! We have a dedicated corps of young volunteers available for thirtyminute tutoring sessions.

You can get personalized instruction in various subjects,

JFED Players Community Theatre Ensemble Announces Auditions For "Curtains" By Rupert Holmes

MONROVIA – Auditions for CURTAINS The JFed Players Community Theatre Ensemble's next production, will be held in mid-December with performances scheduled for mid-March. CURTAINS was the final collaboration between Kander and Ebb, creators of CABARET and CHICAGO.

Set in 1959, CURTAINS is a musical satire of backstage murder mystery plots. The story begins when the untalented star of the musical within the musical, Robbin' Hood of the Old West, is murdered during her curtain call. The plot unfolds as Lieutenant Frank Cioffe, a police detective and musical theatre fan, arrives to solve the case and ends up saving the show and, perhaps, even finding love.

Come and audition for this fun musical. We need singers, dancers, actors - principally young adult and up. Auditions will be held at 7 pm on Sunday-Tuesday, December 18-20, and Thursday, December 22, 2016, at the Jewish Federation, 114A Lime Ave., Monrovia. Performances will be in March at a venue in the San Gabriel Valley.

Celebrate this year's holiday cards from the Arbor Day Foundation offer a unique holiday giving opportunity with conservation benefits that will endure for generations. And again this year, Give-A-Tree • Returning for the seventh cards can be purchased individually and with customized text.

Cards can be purchased for $5.95.

 Purchasing the Arbor Day Foundation's coffee helps preis $13.49, including shipping.

• The Foundation's Trees in Celebration program allows the giver to honor loved ones while supporting crucial conservation efforts. For each dollar donated, one tree is planted in a highneed forest, and recipients are given a certificate showing them where the trees were planted.

• Give the gift of membership with the Arbor Day Foundation and recipients will be sent 10 free trees, which will be shipped at the right time of year for planting. Membership levels vary and begin with a $10

"The holidays are a time for thinking about others, and as you do, take a moment to think about what you can do to protect the beauty and splendor of the earth," said Matt Harris, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation. "We encourage everyone to give gifts that will have a lasting impact for

Azusa VFW Post 8070 Hosts Disabled Veterans Thanksgiving Dinner

By Jorge V. Rosales

AZUSA - On Saturday, November 19, members of the Azusa Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 8070, volunteers from several military veterans' organizations and members of the community welcomed and entertained over 150 injured veterans from three area hospitals, the VA Loma Linda Healthcare System in San Bernardino, the Sepulveda VA Ambulatory Care Center in West Los Angeles, and the VA Medical Center of Long Beach. The injured veterans were transported on chartered buses and medical facilities handicapped vans paid by various groups within the VFW, including the Military order of the Cootie, Pup Tent 38. The event was the 45th annual Thanksgiving dinner and entertainment celebration in gratitude for their sacrifices. Three years ago as a tribute to one of the founding members of this dinner, World War II Combat Veteran, the annual event was officially named "The Jim Rose Disabled Veterans Thanksgiving Dinner." Jim Rose, who had just turned 95 year old on March 30, 2016 and suddenly died three days later, was a U. S. Army veteran who fought in the Pacific Ocean theatre during World War II, a Purple Heart recipient, and a former Commander of Post 8070 for numerous years. He was one of the original members who started the thanksgiving dinner for hospitalized disabled veterans in 1971 after a visit to the Long Beach VA Hospital for thanksgiving. This year Mr. Rose's daughter volunteered in helping with the preparations for the dinner in honor and memory of her father.

"The annual tradition to feed injured veterans started in 1971 when Joe and Shirley Twombaly, Jim Rose, and Korean War Veteran John Moreno were returning from the Long Beach VA Hospital after having helped feed hundreds of injured veterans there. It was then that they decided to invite the disabled veterans to eat back at the Azusa Post so that they had the opportunity be outside the hospital environment. The VA hospitals embraced the idea and the injured veterans loved it," said Jesse Martinez, Vietnam War Veteran and current Commander for VFW Post 8070.

Buses and vans started arriving around 10:30 am for the dinner which started at about Noon because of a delay by the bus from Loma Linda. Every injured veteran was welcomed and greeted by post's veterans, Mayor Joe Rocha, the young Marines, and volunteers who catered their dinner plates, drinks, and desserts. Each meal consisted of turkey, mashed potatoes, stuffing, sweet potatoes, cranberry jelly, rolls, and for dessert apple or pumpkin pie. The meal for close to 200 people was cooked under the direction and coordination of professional Chef who volunteered his time.

During the ceremony Mayor Joe Rocha and Councilman Robert Gonzales helped serve dinner and clear the dishes for the guest veterans. Also during the ceremony, Commander Martinez and a Cootie Member presented a $1000 donation to each of the three hospitals for use as they pleased in treating injured veter-

"This is more than just a Thanksgiving Dinner for our injured veterans. Instead vets come here for a sense of togetherness and hope. What our guest veterans really enjoy is the fact that they feel acknowledged and thanked for what they have done and for their sacrifices," said Martinez.

As injured veterans departed, each was given a gift bag filled with snacks; toiletries, a blanket, and a small American flag so that they could remember the day they had spent in Azusa enjoying a full Thanksgiving meal and entertainment.
