Students Partner with Chick-fil-A to Impact Learning Environment for Children with Special Needs

AZUSA - A group of Azusa High School students partnered with Chick-fil-A to transform their lunch period into a Luau celebration for special needs classmates, as part of their culminating community Impact Project.

Students involved in the Chick-fil-A Leader Academy, a national high school leadership program focused on impacting communities through action, spent nine months engaging in community projects to build their leadership skills and to make a difference in the lives of others. For their final project, they chose to support their fellow students in Azusa's Life Skills program, a class that helps develop students with special learning needs.

Students were treated to a festive lunchtime celebration that included Hawaiian leis, music, dancing and a free lunch provided by Chick-fil-A. In addition, the Life Skills program was presented with three new iPads to further enhance learning in the classroom.

"Today is the culmination of everything they have learned in making a difference in the lives of others," Azusa High School Principal Ramiro Rubalcaba said. "Our students decided to dedicate resources to show our 'buddies,' or special needs students, that they are important and capable of success through education just like any other student."

With the help of Azusa Chick-fil-A Restaurant Operator Carlos Mayen Solorzano, students applied for a special grant to pay for the iPads and to host the luncheon.

The celebration welcomed Azusa Unified Board of Education President Yolanda Rodriguez-Peña and Superintendent Dr. Linda Kaminski. It also drew the attention of Azusa Mayor Joseph Rocha, who addressed students and teachers in attendance.

"Our philosophy in Azusa is to serve others regardless of our differences. That is what I see demonstrated here today and so I would like to recognize our Azusa Chick-fil-A Leader Academy for making this day possible through their kindness and generosity," Mayor Rocha

New Flag Pole Dedicated at VFW Post 8070 in Azusa

AZUSA - Azusa VFW Post 8070, located at 250 East 1st Street, recently had a flagpole dedication.

Sometime back, a drunk driver exiting the 210 Freeway crashed through the fence and took out the original flagpole.

The Post went on a fund raising campaign to raise money for a new flagpole. They wanted to relocate this new pole so there would not be a similar situation in the future. A number of companies came together like Athens Disposal and Vulcan Materials to help make this happen.

Quartermaster and Azusa City Councilman Uriel Macias emceed the event and gave praise to all those that helped out. He also presented dozens of certificates to those that helped with the project.

Hector Elizalde, Deputy District Director for Congresswoman Grace Napolitano was on hand to make a presentation. Also attending was Mayor Joe Rocha, Azusa Police Chief Sam Gonzalez, West Covina's Commissioner and VFW Commander George Ogden.

The Color Guard raised the flag and gave a rifle salute in honor of the new flag and pole.

The well attended event had a reception which included plenty of food from the "Big Guy Grill" and cake was served.

top performing community colleges by the Campaign for College Opportunity is a reflection of the institution's commitment to providing students with the academic preparation they need to achieve success."

The state's associate degrees for transfer were implemented four years ago and have been a collaborative effort of the California Community Colleges and CSU system. Otherwise known as "transfer degrees," they provide community college students with guaranteed admission to the CSU system and priority admission to a CSU campus.

According to the California Community College Chancellor's Office, the number of transfer degrees awarded in 2014-2015 was nearly double the number awarded the year before.

"Upon enrolling at Citrus College, the majority of students indicate that transferring to a four-year college or university is their ultimate goal. The entire college community is dedicated to providing these students with the resources needed to make this happen. One way in which we do this is with associate degrees for transfer," said Trustee Keith. "It is an honor to have our efforts recognized by the Campaign for College Opportunity. Being labeled a 'Champion for Higher Education' is a remarkable acknowledgement of institutional progress and inspires us to continue our efforts with even greater enthusiasm."

Fiscal Year 2016-2017 Budget Approved by City Council

BALDWIN PARK - Following an overview of the City of Baldwin Park's financial activities, councilmembers unanimously approved a $60 million budget for the 2016-2017 fiscal

The proposed budget was presented to City Council during a special meeting on Monday. The budget presentation outlined expected revenues and expenditures for the coming year. More specific details of the budget were itemized in a 67-page report prepared by Director of Finance Rose Tam and Chief Executive Officer Shannon Yauchzee.

In the report, City staff projected that the City's General Fund revenue would be $26,974,890, a 2.2% increase from last year's budget, and $27,034,233 in expenditures, with a small deficit of $59,343 for the 2016-2017 fiscal year. This is very good news, as previous analysis projected a deficit of $1.4 million to $1.8 million for the incoming fiscal year.

The recently approved 2016-2017 budget will provide staff with standard increases for the Cost of Living Adjustment (COLA), as well as benefits in accordance to recently approved contracts with various employee groups. It will also account for an increasing cost in retirement contribution and retiree health insurance with CalPERS, as stated in the proposed budget.

Yauchzee shared that he and his staff kept in mind the theme of "Reserve, Conserve, and Revenue" as they made considerations for the proposed budget. "The objective of the budget is to continue to build and conserve a

Pacheco noted that money accrued from potential incoming taxes should help eliminate the proposed deficit before June 30, 2017. City Gives Green Light For Green Energy Projects

BALDWIN PARK - City Council members gave the green light to move forward with a series of projects to update several community facilities with energy efficient systems. The council also voted unanimously to award a $3.4 million contract to ConEdison Solutions, a company that specializes in cost-effective energy services, to spearhead the

Now within the next few months, ConEdison will begin making improvements and installing photovoltaic (solar) panels along the rooftops of various city operations facilities.

Shannon Yauchzee, Chief Executive Officer, said that also delineated in the project is the installation of new transformers and energy efficient lighting at the city yard, as well as at Barnes and Morgan parks. ConEdison will additionally install an energy efficient air conditioning system at the Esther Snyder Community Center gymnasium.

"The gym has never had air conditioning, so this is definitely going to help out," said Manuel Carrillo, director of the city's Department of Recreation and Community Services.

Carrillo added that installing a cooling system at the gym should make the venue more available for the hundreds of visitors who visit daily, especially during the summer months.

Yauchzee said all improvements under the project should be completed within the next six to nine months. Almost immediately, however, officials and residents will begin to see the perks of the upgrades. "There will be a reduction in the city energy costs, and we will be saving the city and tax payers money in the long run," he said.

Yauchzee noted that Baldwin Park will save an additional $40,464 in operating costs, including maintenance labor, and equipment replacement costs thanks to the upgrades.

The idea for the energyfriendly improvements came from the city's Energy Efficiency and Green Projects committee, which was developed two years ago. This entity was created to help research projects and alternatives to help keep the city ecofriendly. Yauchzee said other firms were originally considered for the project's conceptual designs; however, ConEdison had the best presentation.

A majority of the $3 million project will be paid through a loan from the California Energy Commission (CEC), according to the officials. The estimated $450,000 in project costs will also be covered through an internal city loan, at no interest, from the Future Development Fund. City officials will also pursue potential rebates to further offset the cost of the project, they

U.S. gas prices have declined 37 percent from June 2014 to May 2016, and California's gasoline excise tax rate has decreased every year since fiscal year 2013-14. Former Mayor of Glendora Sen. John Moorlach (R-37 SD) Orange County, has the distinction of being the only Certified Public Accountant and Certified Financial Planner in the California State Senate. He predicted the Orange County bankruptcy in 1994 and was then appointed by the Board of Supervisors to serve as the County Treasurer-Tax Collector and using his 5 step plan led Orange County out the largest municipal bankruptcy ever. Moorlach has lots to say about Gov. Jerry Brown's recent state budget. "California has a $170 billion unrestricted net deficit, an increase of $54 billion since last year, the LARGEST net deficit of all 50 states. This deficit severely threatens California's short and long term financial health. While Governor Brown has been watching the state's spending, he only has two years left in this position. The next governor is going to have an interesting predicament to deal with if the legislature doesn't pay attention now."

Moorlach points out California has one of the highest income, sales and gas tax rates in the U.S. According to the Tax Foundation that puts California fourth in overall tax burden on a per capita basis. Tax Freedom Day for Californians is April 30th each year. That means you and I are working 4 months of every year to support programs the state majority leaders create, mandate and hand out with a variety of excuses.

Every university and think tank in California expresses concern about providing housing the younger generation can afford, especially young families. So we build massive complexes with units that become smaller and smaller with little or no yards and promote them with a promised smaller price tag.

We've just gone through a huge debate over the increase in the minimum wage with promises of eliminating the poor and poverty stricken but ignoring the reality of lost small businesses and jobs in areas that have already implemented a higher minimum wage.

Maybe it is time to take a look at the tax burden, not only income, sales and gas taxes, but the ment employees to come to checkbook.

on-going and ever increasing push for bonds - particularly the general obligation bonds that are bleeding out the state general fund and in many instances, ones our grandkids will be left to payoff. I've heard the Senator speak on several occasions and he is very concerned about the unfunded liabilities of pensions and health care for retired state workers. The Legislative Analyst's Office estimates there is a $340 billion liability facing this state that must be addressed. Incurred debt, deferred payments ... the biggest concern at this point is the CalPERS, CalSTRS and UC unfunded pension debt reaching $180 billion. CalPERS is the state retirement system for government employees and according to the Legislative Analyst Report, Key Liabilities, the $140 billion needed to make that system fully funded is being addressed, in part, by the CalPERS board and problem should be resolved in 30 years ... but also suggesting there are more corrections to be made if that deadline is to be met. And, 30 years sounds like a long time to me. CalSTRS, the teachers' retirement system, could face depleted funds by 2040 if measures are not taken now to begin the process of fully funding this retirement system. The combination of the massive unfunded liability and fast growth rate into the system, will take a combined arrangement of additional contributions from the state, teachers and districts with estimates totaling over $5 billion per year by the early 2020's.

Health care costs have gone up with the implementation of Obamacare and many see those increased costs registered on their paychecks coming right off the top of the check as charges the employer is no longer pick-

In addition, funding for retired state employees' health benefits could total $1.8 billion over 30 years based on 2013-14 estimates. Dan Walters article in the Sacramento Bee reported, " ... the state is spending more than $2 billion a year on health care for retired state employees - up more than 80% in the last decade according to Gov. We haven't even touched the infrastructure maintenance issues when we talk about these big dollars in the hole. Moorlach's Budget Notes say California has 31,827 miles of major roads and at least 34% are rated in poor condition. American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) shows in their 2012 Report Card for California's Infrastructure we are dealing with:

- 678 high hazard dams
- 2,769 structurally deficient bridges
- Poor road conditions are costing motorists $703 year
- $44.5 billion is need for drinking water over the next 20
- $29.9 billion is needed for wastewater

An OpEd piece in the Orange County Register by Reason Foundation's Adrian Moore titled An Infrastructure Crisis com-

First, California needs to get far more bang for the bucks already being spent. Texas spends about one-fourth as much as California per mile of highway, but Texas' highways are the 11th best in America, while California's state highways rank 45th in the latest Annual Highway Report. For every mile of highway it has, Texas spends $3,800 on administrative costs. California spends over $47,000 on administrative costs for every mile of highway it has. It shouldn't be 12 times more expensive in California than it is Texas.

There needs to be some serious discussion about these numbers that Senator John Moorlach is bringing forward and serious plausible solutions that our legislators are willing to start implementing ... and I think that should start to occur before the November elections.

And, by the way, I've said since the day I started dabbling a little in politics, what we really needed in government was fewer lawyers and more CPAs and housewives who understand what ..." It might be time for govern- a budget is and how to balance the

Sen. John Moorlach - One Of A Kind Interesting Packaging. Deceiving!

Interesting that when you go to the store, you see certain products and you ASSUME the package is accurate. It may say one thing or the package appears rather large only to find out it isn't exactly what it says it is.

The one that I have fun with is the "Pound Cake"... Really? No, not really. Before you buy the pound cake, read the package and see if it is actually one pound and/ or 16 ounces. Check out this one that I saw in the store. The pound cake is only 10 oz. Would this make it a 10 oz. cake or a 5/8 of a pound cake?

I am sure that you have bought crackers and found the box only two thirds full. Why don't they fill the box or put it in a smaller package? Simple, they want you to think you are getting more then what you actually are.

Same with potato chips or any kind of chips for that matter. You open the bag and it looks like somebody beat you too it and ate half of it before you got to it. Remember "Good and Plenty" candy. I used to eat them all the was never full anymore. I thought I was getting jipped, so I quit eating them.

How about those chocolate cover cherries? You buy a box and there are only six in there. The package is large enough for twelve, but they offset the cherries when they package them.

I am sure they are working on a plan to reduce the size of our toilet paper. Most likely it won't be as wide, so we will have to be more careful how we use it.

"That's just the way it is!"

Congratulations, parents of high school graduates! But wait...your job isn't done...

By Barbara R. Dickerson Citrus College Governing Board Member, Area 1

A major milestone in the life of a parent is the day their child graduates from high school.

It may seem like only yesterday you were helping your child take those first tentative steps. Now, you are watching him or her, dressed in a cap and gown, walking across a stage to receive their high school diploma.

Earning that diploma serves as evidence of your child's maturity, self-discipline and the ability to complete a difficult task. It also signals the successful conclusion of a long-term commitment on the part of you, their parent. Congratulations-you've done a great job!

But what now? You've spent years nurturing and encouraging your child. Now it's your job to support them as they take the next step-enrolling in college and preparing for a career or profession that will lead to a happy, productive life.

The act of enrolling in college might seem complicated, especially for first-generation college students and their parents. You may have concerns about whether or not your child will be able to navigate the complexities of college admission and ultimately be successful in their college experience. However, there is help available that will decode the process.

As a member of the Citrus College Board of Trustees, I can assure you that Citrus can get your child started on the path to higher education. The college can provide them with information on a variety of careers, as well as the programs of study they will need to pursue those careers. Prospective students can also learn about opportunities to complete the first two years of a bachelor's degree and transfer to a four-year college or university. Perhaps most importantly, there is information on financial aid and a variety services that will help your child be successful in their classes and complete their college goals.

As the parent of a college student, your belief in the importance of college will be critical to their future success. A recent report by the National Center for Education Statistics shows median earnings for 25- to 34-yearolds rose significantly with higher levels of education. For example, a high school graduate might expect to earn $30,000 a year, while a person with a bachelor's degree can expect to earn $59,000.

whose parents have high academic expectations and who offer consistent encouragement for college have positive student outcomes. But, as the parent of a college student, your role will be different than it was in the past. You will no longer be your child's monitor and advisor, instead you will be encouraging him or her to make good choices, manage their time and money wisely, and become a responsible, indepen-

So here you are, parent, at the culminating point of a demanding 18-year job. It may feel bittersweet, but remember that high school graduation is not the end, it's a beginning to the next part of your child's educational jour-

There is an old proverb that says there are only two lasting gifts a parent can hope to give to their children. One of them is Research has shown that youth roots, the other is wings.

Should We Stay Or Should We Go?

When the business day came to a close on Thursday, it was almost unanimous on Wall Street that the British vote would be to "stay" in the European Union. Even some of the official proponents to "leave" the EU conceded early in the vote count. But then (based upon results coming late in our evening) the unthinkable happened: Britain voted to leave the European Union. The vote surprised global markets because investors underestimated how people around the world were diverging from the political and business elites. The U.K.'s decision to cut itself from an economic and somewhat political union with Europe may well extend beyond the EU's newly redefined borders.

Certainly, the global financial markets, after having mistakenly bet on the Brits remaining within the European Union, are flashing monumental warning signals that this breach may lead to the dissolution of the entire experiment we know as the EU. The British pound, as has been widely reported, has suffered its biggest single-session decline in history, while its value against the U.S. dollar has dropped to levels not seen since the fall of 1985.

The fear, of course, is that a dissolution of the EU as a single, unified economic entity, with its own currency, could collapse, leading to the reintroduction of single-nation currencies; the revival of national central banks; competitive currency devaluations across the Continent; and, quite possibly, the re-awakening of ancient hostilities that dominated the European political landscape for decades, if not centu-

While that may be taking this moment to an illogical extreme, the sentiment that drove the Britons, led by Nigel Farage, to exit the EU, is quite visible across Europe, whether it's the far-right movement led by Le Pen in France, the AFD in Germany, or even the current movement led by Donald Trump here in the U.S.

In the nearer term, the violent moves in global markets present a clear and present danger to an emerging recovery in the European economy while leading to deepening economic weakness in places already in recession.

As Fed Chair, Janet Yellen, rightly pointed out in her semiannual economic report to Congress, a "Brexit" would present yet another in a series of global headwinds that will keep the U.S. economy from reaching its true growth potential.

While overseas central banks scramble to insulate their economies from this latest crisis, the Fed may very well be forced to take back its lone rate hike of this cycle.

Yellen has said that helicopter money, Milton Friedman's concept of dropping money into the economy that would go out as tax rebates, is something the Fed might "legitimately consider" but only in "a very abnormal, extreme situation." The question is: Will the U.K. vote roil markets so badly that it puts the Fed - and the economy - in an extreme situ-

For its part, the Fed released a statement Friday morning amid the post-Brexit vote fallout, that it "is carefully monitoring developments in global financial markets." They also indicated that it indeed is ready to provide market liquidity through dollar swap lines, which are currency agreements that ensure cash is flowing through the global markets. The Fed took similar measures during the financial crisis.

Traders on Wall Street now believe the already-dovish Federal Reserve won't be raising interest rates at all this year. As the market digested Thursday's U.K. vote to leave the European Union, market participants sharply ratcheted down expectations for the U.S. central bank.

There's now virtually no chance of a rate hike at the July Federal Open Market Committee meeting, according to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange's fed fund futures tracker, which indicates a 7.2 percent chance of a quarter-point rate CUT at the

Looking out to December, there's only a 16.3 percent chance of a rate hike, while traders assign an 11.9 percent probability to a cut.

Happy 4th of July!!

Please make an effort to keep this 4th of July a safe and happy one for yourself and others by obeying the laws for fireworks. If you drink, don't drive (take a taxi or have a designated driver). Celebrate and be thankful for your freedom and your rights, but not at the expense of others. Thank a soldier! Read the Constitution, Declaration of Independence, and Bill of Rights. Listen to some patriotic music. We must recognize our responsibility to maintain our freedom for those who have died, those of us living now, and those who have yet to be born.

What do I do now? The stock market dropped like a rock with the news of "Brexit." Is it going to get worse? Should I sell my stocks I have?

Let the dust settle. You can get a much better look at the big picture by taking the time to look at the stock market charts over a period of, at least, 2 years. You've heard the saying, "Buy low. Sell high." You own a number of shares. Right now, those shares have lost value. At this time, for the same amount of dollars, investors can buy more shares of stock. The stock market took a nosedive because many investors 'panic sold,' afraid of the unknown changes that the British exit ("Brexit") from the EU might cause. The Brexit has been voted on, but will take a couple of years to come to fruition. If more European countries follow suit, there will be a period of ups and downs in the global stock markets.

This is why I encourage my clients to diversify their investments into different types of investment products. Having all of your investment dollars in stocks makes you vulnerable to all the ups and downs. By having some of your investment dollars in fixed, or fixed-indexed products, you avoid such volatility. My clients, with these types of investment products, are not privy to all the gains of the stock market, and they do not suffer from the losses. Their investment dollars and subsequent gains can be locked in every year on their policy anniversary (date of initial investment).

A bit of good news from the Brexit: Economists are making an educated presumption is that the Feds will delay raising rates this summer. This means that interest rates for mortgage loans could remain low.

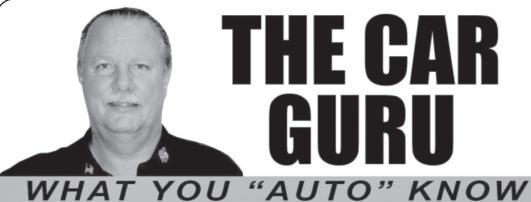

How do economists figure out if our economy is getting better

Economists look at statistics compiled by the Census Bureau, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, for example, and conclude whether the economy is in a slowdown or a recovery. The consumer-related indicators are: employment, retail sales, newhome sales, personal income and spending, and the consumer price index (oil and food excluded). Of course, there are un-ending arguments regarding what should be included or excluded in these reports. As we know, resulting reports can be altered by the detailed information sourced. In other words, facts can lie. For example, if they only count fulltime employment, what about all the folks who lost their full-time employment and are now working one or two part-time jobs? If they only count those receiving unemployment benefits, what about those who have used up their benefits but are still unemployed?

from customers wanting an estimate and they were concerned because we charge a fee to test before we do any actual repairs. One wanted to know why their car's check engine light was on, especially as the car was running just fine. They said a neighbor came over and offered advice and a diagnosis of what he thought the problem might be.

I appreciate the helpfulness of friends, neighbors and tow truck drivers as they care enough to try to figure out what a car problem might be. Many times they have been right but just as many times they have been wrong. Whatever their diagnosis might be...it is still just a guess! Professionals (whether it is an auto repair shop, home air conditioning repair, the dentist or doctor), would never give a diagnosis or attempt "a repair" without first testing circuits, components or in humans taking temperatures, blood pressure, drawing blood, taking x-rays and more to see what the problem really is.

The customer then asked me to "just plug in that box" that tells you what's wrong with the car. I am to this day puzzled why so

"magic box" that we plug into a car that tells us what is wrong with the car! If that "magic box" were available, I would buy several and I would not need a staff of expert technicians who have years of experience, training, and over $20,000 worth of tools and equipment. That would greatly reduce my payroll and operations cost. I could just hire low paid mechanics to replace the parts the "magic box" said were bad. I wish our business was that easy.

Please believe there is no "magic box", but there is a scan tool that gathers information and data to point the technician in the right direction to test the circuits and components that may have failed.

What has happened over the years is many inexperienced shops or mechanics plug in the scan tool and retrieve a code. The code is what lets the technician know what item(s) need to be tested. Here is an example. A PO300 means a random misfire has occurred in the engine. With this code alone many shops will sell you spark plugs, clear the code and hope it is fixed without

Two times today I had calls many people believe there is a any testing fee. Sometimes you get lucky and it fixes the code, other times the light returns in a few days to a week and they sell you more parts (We call these shops "parts replacers" and they keep replacing and charging their customers until they finally get it right).

> Most professional shops will charge a fee to test items such as fuel pressure, the fuel injectors, coils, all the sensors, vacuum leaks, fuel trims, spark plugs and other items related to the code. Once testing is complete, an accurate repair can be performed, saving you time and money, because the concern is fixed the first time and there is no need to return for more parts.

> As cars become more computerized, the systems are more difficult to test! Please beware of anyone that will just replace parts and not test to identify the con-

MTA Makes Adjustments To Gold Line Schedule To Meet The Demands Of Increased Ridership

LOSANGELES COUNTY -MTA Director Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich joined and MTA Chief Operating Officer, Jim Gallagher and incoming MTA Chair John Fasana to announce implementation of Gold Line schedule adjustments to reduce overcrowding and to meet the demands of an increasing ridership base in the cities of Arcadia, Monrovia, Duarte, Irwindale and Azusa.

"The Gold Line extension from Sierra Madre to Azusa has proven to be extremely successful since opening in March—just in the first month the line performed 40% percent above its anticipated ridership," said Antonovich. While riders are satisfied with the service, some comments from a recent Metro survey were concerns with crowded cars, infrequent trains and some confusing train schedules to Azusa. "To address these challenges, Metro will make important improvements to week-Line," he added.

Trains will now run every seven minutes during the peak commute hours - with every train making all stops to and from Azusa. The previous train schedule was every 12 minutes from Sierra Madre Villa to Azusa station. The new service change simplifies the schedule, reduces customer confusion, and evens day peak-hour service on the Gold out train loads. It also eliminates the inconvenient transfer for customers traveling to new Foothill Extension stations.

Overall transition from sixminute headways to sevenminute headways also reduces the impact of crossing gates on traffic signals and street operations – making it more efficient, resulting in less train layover time.
