Citrus College Dedicates New $19 Million Visual Arts Building

GLENDORA-After several years of planning and nearly two years of construction, Citrus College visual arts faculty and students have a new place to call home. During the dedication and ribbon-cutting ceremony held Tuesday, September 6, college officials, faculty, staff, students, dignitaries and community members celebrated the much-anticipated opening of the Visual Arts Building.

The $19 million project brings nearly 37,000 square feet of educational space online for the college. The facility replaces the original Arts Center, built in 1964. The new Visual Arts Building, home to Citrus College's rapidly expanding arts programs, features studios equipped for drawing, painting, printmaking, digital design, transmedia, animation, mixed media and photo and video production, a 150-seat lecture hall, an art gallery, computer labs, a ceramics lab, general purpose classrooms, faculty offices and a space for Citrus College's student newspaper, the Clarion.

"I can only imagine the future artists who will be educated in this very facility," said Geraldine Perri, Ph.D., superintendent/

Citrus College held a festive dedication program for the new $19 million Visual Arts Building on September 6. Superintendent/President Geraldine Perri, Ph.D., joined the Citrus College Community District Board of Trustees for the ribbon-cutting ceremony. president of Citrus College. She said the building's development reflects the college's deep commitment to the arts industry and its emerging occupations. "While the Visual Arts building will surely contribute to developing talented students who will make their mark on society, Citrus College's dedicated faculty and staff have a long record of success, having prepared hundreds of outstanding artists for thriving careers."

Faculty and staff began moving into the new building in August, eager to turn the aesthetically pleasing facility into a highly effective learning environment. "The new Visual Arts Building at Citrus College was designed to create unlimited collaborative opportunities for visual and performing arts students," said Robert Slack, dean,

Visual and Performing Arts. "The expansion of design, production and interactive media curriculum can now be successfully realized."

Throughout the years, Citrus College has earned a reputation as a leader in visual and performing arts education. "We have created a legacy that will have a lasting impact on generations to come. This extraordinary new Visual Arts Building is part of that legacy," said Dr. Perri.

The three-story project was funded by Measure G, a general obligation bond measure approved in 2004 by voters in the Citrus Community College District. "The Visual Arts Building is an example of 'Your Measure G Dollars at Work' and I thank you, members of our communities, for supporting Measure G in 2004," said Mrs. Susan M. Keith, president, Citrus Community College District Board of Trustees. "I also want to express my heartfelt gratitude to our elected officials from all levels of government and our partners in education for their steadfast support of Citrus College," added Mrs. Keith.

During the dedication, Citrus College received certificates of recognition from Congresswoman Judy Chu, 27th Congressional District; Congresswoman Grace Napolitano, 32nd Congressional District; Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich, Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, 5th District; Senator Carol Liu, 25th Senate District; Senator Dr. Ed Hernandez, 22nd Senate District; Assemblymember Chris Holden, 41st Assembly District; Assemblymember Roger Hernandez, 48th Assembly District; the City of Azusa and the City of Glendora.

After the ribbon-cutting ceremony, guests enjoyed refreshments, listened to a live performance from The Castaways, a Citrus College student musical group, and were led on tours of the new Visual Arts Building by student ambassadors.

Larry James Allred has confessed to the killing of Cynthia May Hernandez > with anything concrete to move on. Sadly it became a cold case, but looked at often.

After 40 years, there was a break in the case. A convicted felon Larry James Allred, 62, confessed to the killing of Cynthia May Hernandez. He took a plea deal and he pleaded guilty on Friday, September 16, 2016 at the San Bernardino County Court hearing. Allred had been convicted in 1975, of kidnapping a woman at gunpoint in San Bernardino County and raping her. A quick release for some reason had him kidnapping Hernandez in 1976. A short time later, and while on parole in 1978, he was convicted of kidnapping two teenaged girls, 16 and 17, where he brutally raped them over the next seven days. These are the crimes they know about.

The plea bargain to the firstdegree murder charge will most likely result in a life sentence at the October 17 sentence hearing. Finally, after all these years, there will be closure for the family.

DUARTE - In commemoration of the anniversary of 9/ 11, Andres Duarte Elementary held a special ceremony that has been conducted at the school on an annual basis for the past 15 years under the direction of teacher, Cindy Mitchell.

The whole school gathered together and each student council member shared an inspirational reading focused on remembering the heroic men and women who made sacrifices for our freedom.

Special guests included Marines, Corporal Ryder and Private First Class Joya. Corporal Ryder also shared a statement about remembering all those who died and those protecting our freedom now. Student representatives from each class, parents and staff placed flowers in a vase in memory of those lost on this day 15 years ago.

The school decided this was the perfect time to start a community service project of their own to support the people in the military who protect us on a daily basis and to emphasize the importance of helping one another through difficult times. Class President, Emanuel Dominguez, announced the school would be participating in a fund raiser for an organization that trains shelter dogs to be companions for Veterans suffering from PTSD.

Also, Andres Duarte will be the designated Toys for Tots drop-off location for the district that is coordinated by the Marines.

We hope all members of our community will support these efforts. For more in information, contact principal, Joilyn Campitiello, at (626) 599-5101.

Also to honor the victims of 9/11, the American Red Cross held a Blood Donation Drive on Monday, September 12, between 1:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. that was open to the public at Royal Oaks Elementary.

27 Arcadia High Students Named National Merit Scholarship Semifinalists

ARCADIA - A remarkable 27 students from Arcadia High School have been named National Merit Scholarship Semifinalists. This prestigious recognition represents less than one percent of high school seniors in the United States. The semifinalists will have an opportunity to compete for roughly 7,500 National Merit Scholarships worth about $33 million.

"Going into the test, I wasn't sure what to expect, because the class of 2017 was the first to take the redesigned PSAT/NMSQT," said Arcadia High Senior Simone Chu. "I'm really glad that the education I've received in AUSD prepared me for anything and everything that might come my way-and I'm ecstatic to have been named a National Merit Semifinalist! The long wait for results was nerve-wracking, but finding out that the work I put in had paid off made it all worthwhile."

Approximately 1.6 million juniors in more than 22,000 high schools entered the 2017 National Merit Scholarship Program by taking the 2015 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/ NMSQT), which served as an initial screening of applicants. Of the 16,000 semifinalists named, about 15,000 are expected to advance to the finalist level. Last year all 15 Arcadia High School semifinalists were named finalists. In 2014 all 31 Apaches who were named semifinalists were also named finalists. The same trend occurred in 2013 with the 22 Arcadia High students who were recognized.

"This is always such an exciting and distinguished honor for our students," said Dr. David Vannasdall, Superintendent of Arcadia Unified School District. "It also speaks volumes to the quality of teachers we are fortunate to have throughout the entire district."

To become a finalist, the semifinalists and their high schools must submit a detailed scholarship application, in which they provide information about the semifinalist's academic record, participation in school and community activities, demonstrated leadership abilities, employment, honors and awards received, and satisfy other academic criteria.

More than half of the finalists will be awarded a National Merit Scholarship, earning the Merit Scholar distinction. In February the finalists will be notified, and scholarships will be awarded starting in April and concluding in July.

Assemblyman Holden Elected to Chair the California Legislative Black Caucus

SACRAMENTO – Assemblyman Chris Holden (AD - 41) has been elected by his colleagues to chair the California Legislative Black Caucus (CLBC). Lawmakers joining Assemblyman Holden to the newly elected leadership team include Assemblymembers Shirley Webber (AD - 78), vice chair; Sebastian Ridley-Thomas (AD - 54), secretary; and Kevin McCarty (AD - 7), treasurer.

"Together with my colleagues, I look forward to continuing our efforts to advance equality, justice, and opportunity for all Californians."

This past year, the CLBC, held multiple "Black Minds Matter" informational briefings throughout the state with the Education Trust–West Organization to address California's nearly one million Black Youth, including one hosted by Assemblyman Holden in Pasadena. The briefings brought elected leaders, educators, stakeholders and community leaders together in order to better implement policies that close the opportunity and achievement gap for California's Black Youth.

The CLBC takes policy positions on numerous bills, advances a two-part policy agenda – an education and black enterprise initiative, and provides scholarships and leadership opportunities for Californian's Black Youth.

Established in 1967, the mission of the CLBC is to provide full inclusion of California's African American residents in every aspect of California life – from education, employment, housing, health, commerce and government services.

BALDWIN PARK – Baldwin Park Unified's 10th annual College Fair will provide families with college and career guidance through workshops, panels featuring alumni and their parents, and visits with college representatives on Saturday, September 24 at Sierra Vista High School.

The event, which typically draws more than 1,000 students and their families, features programs that address the needs of high school, middle and elementary students who are exploring college and career choices.

This year's keynote address will be given by Dr. Dan Lopez, president of No Excuses University, a program that fosters the creation of a college-going culture at public schools.

"Our college fair offers an inclusive array of options for students to consider, from our excellent local community colleges and career training programs to extraordinary colleges and universities in California and across the U.S.," Superintendent Froilan N. Mendoza said. This year's workshops include guidance on filling out the University of California application and its series of short essays, private and out of state college options, a financial aid overview and information for undocumented students who qualify for programs under California's Dream Act.

One panel features graduates from each Baldwin Park Unified high school who are now attending college; another features parents of former students who now attend college.

In addition, representatives of 21 colleges have already confirmed their attendance, ranging from Rio Hondo College to Harvard and from UC Santa Barbara to USC.

Career fields are also well represented, with a panel scheduled to discuss fields in information technology and representatives attending from Baldwin Park Fire, Baldwin Park Police, the U.S. Army and the Marine

Azusa Library Empowers Residents with Free Citizenship Classes

AZUSA - Azusa City Library's Inspired Citizenship Program is empowering residents by creating a pathway to citizenship. According to the U.S. Census, 31 percent of Azusa's population was born outside of the United States. Immigrants often face barriers to citizenship given their low or interrupted education and limited English proficiency. Inspired Citizenship helps residents break barriers to fully engage in their community as U.S. citizens.

Citizenship applicants must be able to speak, read and write enough English to pass the naturalization exam. The citizenship classes concentrate on civic and history lessons. Students gain knowledge and understanding of the fundamentals of U.S. history and government. Students are encouraged to attend a citizenship class in combination with an English as a Second Language (ESL) class where they can focus on their English skills.

The Inspired Citizenship Program also partners with community resources such as legal clinics to help residents complete the nauralization application and to answer questions. Our residents benefit significantly from these services.

Citizenship Classes are free and advance registration is not required. Classes are held on Tuesday mornings from 8:30 AM to 10:30 AM, and on Tuesday evenings from 6:15 PM to 8:15 PM.

Volunteers --- The Program is seeking volunteer adult tutors for both the ESL and Citizenship programs. Past volunteers have described the experience as "lifechanging" - for both them and their students. Tutors are not required to speak a language besides English or have any prior experience. Training is provided.

If you would like more information, or are interested in volunteering, please call Dolores Sanchez at (626) 812-5273 or email at

School Spin is Costing Billions to Trillions

By Lois M. Shade Former Mayor of Glendora

How many school bonds, committing how much money, does it take to make California school systems the best in the nation? Or even just provide our California kids with a competitive edge going into college or out into the real world?

In June this year, there were 45 local school bonds on the primary ballot with a face value of $6 BILLION. 40 of those 45 bond requests were approved.

November ballot will be no different. 184 school districts I've heard are asking for $25 BILimprovement bonds. That's face value, not the actual cost of those bonds. Rule of thumb on bonds, actual cost is almost double the amount of face value when you add in the interest.

On the November ballot, aside from the local requests made by school districts, is a $9 BIL-LION bond requested by the State of California. That $9 BIL-LION turns out to be a total cost of $17.6 BILLION or $8.6 BIL-LION in interest over 35 years. That bond will cost the California general fund $500,000 a year initially, increasing in later years.

LION – face value – in school That's general fund money that will not go to law enforcement, money that will not keep criminals in jails and prisons and not be used to build more incarceration units, leading to more and continual early release of criminals. Question – how old will your children and grandchildren be when that bond is paid off in 35 years?

When Prop 13 passed limiting property taxes, there was a provision allowing school districts to pass additional taxes through voter-approved bonds but only if a supermajority or 2/3 voted to pass the measure. In November 2000, voters passed Prop 39 reducing the 2/3 requirement for passage to 55% thereby making it easier for these bonds to get approved. General obligation bonds are for capital improvements only, not for staffing or operational costs.

One local school district in a June ballot measure managed to get an $850 MILLION bond passed that will end up costing property owners in that district $1.9 TRILLION when paid off. While property owners were promised an estimated maximum of $25 annually per $100,000 of assessed property value, were they reminded they already pay $38.25 per $100,000 on a previous bond? That's $63 and some change each year on their property tax bill for the next 25 years for each $100,000 their home is worth. And if they live in a college district and unified school district both with a bond on the ballot, how much more will eventually end up on their tax property tax bill?

To sell the voters on one ships with area employers to fill local job placement" and "meeting earthquake safety standards". You need a TRILLION dollar bond issue for the first two on the list? And, the third means you've allowed students, our kids, to go to a school that doesn't meet earthquake standards? Why is this school still open? And, the one reason that really fascinated me - "When Secretary of State Hillary Clinton visited, it was really difficult for us to host large groups of community members and students". Of course none of those "spin" items, including Hillary Clinton, appeared on the official bond statement.

I found a website thanks to HJTA (Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association) called Big Bad Bonds TM. They have listed all the school districts, including college districts, and what they have and are proposing in the way of bonds. They also warn to watch out for the buzz words, "the spin", used to sell these projects like leaky roofs, asbestos and aging facilities. They encourage you to read "the plan" which your school board should have adopted and should explain exactly what you are voting for and should get for the money your board is asking you to spend.

Introducing themselves and the site as the Clearinghouse Opposing the Coming Deluge in School and Community College Bonds, Big Bad Bonds want all to be aware:

"There is a full-fledged, multi-billion industry that has grown up around school construction bonds, primarily Proposition 39 bonds because of the low rate of voter approval needed. Some of these firms are consultants or advisors whose main purpose is to manipulate voters into passing bonds from which the firms profit immensely. The starting point for these firms is not what a district needs, but how much it can persuade the local taxpayers to buy off on. Therefore, I classify these firms as parasites. "

If your district is looking at a bond, don't shut them out but ask questions, look at the plan and don't settle for a lot of "spin" from a consultant firm turning big bucks and asking you to pay for it. Check it out: http:// www.bigbadbonds.com.

Our Vote Does NOT Count!!!

By George Ogden

For those of you that think that our vote counts, you better think again. The Electoral College is a total of 538 votes. Breaking this down, 435 are Congressional votes. This covers about a population area of 710,000 people (today). Each state has 2 Senators that can vote and the District of Columbia with 3 votes. Total is 538 votes and this is what actually votes for a president. A candidate can win the vote of the people by getting the majority of the votes, but that won't guarantee the presidency.

Here are some examples, and this isn't something new, as our history shows. In the year 2000, George Bush and Al Gore. Did you know that the majority of the people voted for Gore, but the Electoral College voted in Bush? Gore had 50.9 million votes and Bush had 50.4 million votes and he won. Electoral College vote was 271 Bush and 266 Gore. So it appears that a few Senators didn't care for Al Gore. Our vote did not count.

Back in the late 1800s, there were also controversies. In 1888 Ben Harrison beat Grover Cleveland, but Cleveland won the popular vote. In 1876 Rutherford Hayes won over Samual Tilden, when Tilden won a ton more of the popular votes.

One interesting election was between Kennedy and Nixon. Kennedy had 303 Electoral votes and Nixon had 219 votes. Kennedy barely won the popular vote by around 100,000 votes out of the 68 million votes cast by the people. Why such a "huge" spread of electoral votes??? Here is how it works... There is no Constitutional provision or Federal law that requires Electors to vote according to the results of the popular vote in their states. Some states, however, require Electors to cast their votes according to the popular vote. These pledges fall into two categories-Electors bound by state law and those bound by pledges to political parties.

George Ogden That's just the way it is! vice president. Each state has as many electors as it has senators and members of the House of Representatives, for a total of 538. (The District of Columbia gets three electors even though it has no representation in Congress.)

2. In December, the electors meet in their respective state capitols to cast their ballots for president and vice president. States may or may not require their electors to vote with the popular majority, and they may or may not give all of their electors to the winner of the statewide popular vote.

Isn't that just great?

NOW, here is something else you may not know... Your vote does NOT count when it comes to the Senate and Assembly. Here is an example. The City of West Covina had on the ballot to "form voting districts within the city". This would mean that each district would have an elected councilmember... Only "that" district would vote for their own personal representative. This do districting within their city whether the people wanted it or not. This appeared to be more of a racial implementation because of statements thrown around that certain people were not represented. Hernandez was once on the council for West Covina. He claimed that "His people were not represented on the West Covina Council." The fact of the matter is, all races seemed to have been represented one time or another.

When people didn't care for that statement, feeling that it was racist in nature, the tone change. In an attempt to clean up the statement, it was referred to the South-side of West Covina. This was questioned as there have been in fact people from the southside elected to council including Roger Hernandez himself. The problem is people from that area don't run for council. As of today, there have been a number of South-side people who were on the council in recent years and all have become Mayor of West Covina with the latest being the honorable Fredrick Sykes.

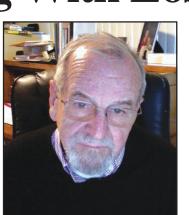

The people of West Covina will be forced into Districting with the passing of an Assembly Bill. The Assembly passed this bill and the majority of these representatives don't have a clue as to where West Covina is. They don't care about the will of the people, which is what the majority of the people want. A handful of people, assembly members,

I must admit I have never been preoccupied with sports. I have until recently been a somewhat less that average golfer, and in my years in Australia I did play rather vigorous competitive squash. But my TV sports viewing has been limited. I may have watched a couple of Super Bowls and the national championship college games, but beyond that I can't say I have seen more than a handful of basketball, football or any other big time sporting events, and I have never been to one.

I have, however, had a longtime passionate interest in major bleachers where as a member of the Knot Hole Gang I got in for 25 cents. There was no television in those years, but at night I would take my little radio under the covers and listen to Byrum Samm describe the game. Alas, the A's were miserable, managed from the dugout by Connie Mack in a black suit and black tie, who would get up and go home about

My next pastorate was in Chicago, and only common decency prohibits me from saying anything about the Cubs and the White Sox during the seven years I lived in that city.

It was on to Kansas City for 20 years. By that time I had lost interest in supporting just another loser. I attended a handful of games, but the Royals did little to warm my cold, cold baseball heart

After five years in Australia where I did support a local Australian-rules football club-the Saints who played in a field right across the street from where I lived—I have ended up in the Los Angeles area. I had expected to back the Dodgers-perpetual winners-but the Angels stadium was just 40 minutes away, so the Halos became my team. Except for one year of glory, the Angels were perpetually assuring their fans that they would be better next season. My guess is that if you look in any recently published sports page, the Angels would be lodged near the bottom of the standings. I've found a winner in my marriage to Wendy, and have done better in picking Presidential candidates, so what is it about my drive to support baseball losers? Was it just an accident of geography where my team was always the local bunch, or have I spent my life fighting for the underdogs? Whatever it is, I will continue to say to whomever I have chosen to root for, "We'll get 'em next year."

1. The outcome of the vote in each state determines a slate of electors who then, in turn, make the actual choice of president and would break West Covina up into four or five individual sections independent of each other. Therefore, the people would be subject to taxation without representation. Some districts would get funding from the city coffer and the people outside of that district would have "no say so" on how THEIR tax money is spent. This is wrong. The people saw this and this ballot proposition was hugely voted down. They clearly said "NO" to this horrible idea. Assemblyman Roger Hernandez supported this idea and when it was voted down by the people he authored and/or supported an assembly bill that would require cities with a certain population to be required to voted to have districts formed in West Covina. To hell with the people, to hell with their vote... it means nothing. Therefore, "taxation without representation" in just one of major problems that they have will cause the people of West Covina.

Oh, did I forget something??? West Covina is not alone; other cities will also have this dumped on them.

So many Americans have given so much serving in the military with many giving their lives to protect the right to vote and to vote who will govern and/or lead us. Apparently, this means absolutely nothing to the chosen few in Sacramento.

league baseball. Even that, however, has been limited to one team at a time, basically the club nearest to where I have lived. But alas, the teams I have supported have almost always been losers.

From the time I was about three until I graduated from high school, I followed every inning played by the Philadelphia Athletics. One of the highlights of my childhood was the Saturday my father said, "Tomorrow we are going to skip church–which we NEVER did-go to Shibe Park, and watch the A's play a double header against the New York Yankees."

Wow! We actually sat in the grandstand. Most of my attendance at that ancient stadium the sixth inning. The team was so bad-always in the basementit was finally moved out of Philly when Connie Mack died, and after a couple of tries in other cities ended up in Oakland.

After seminary, my first pastorate was in Washington D.C. where I rooted for the Washington Senators—another miserable outfit. Washington might have been first in war and first in peace, but was last in the American league. That jab may have come from the same sportswriter who commented at the end of a season that the Senators had lost 12 in a row after which they went into a slump. The team finally gave up in the nations capital and became the Minnesota Twins.

School and Drug Usage -What Can Be Done?

By Don Ingwerson

For my grandkids and others, going back to school is a time of excitement and potential as they reconnect with friends and get back to a learning environment. But for some, especially college students, returning to school can have a dark side as alcohol consumption and drug abuse continue to adversely affect many students' school experience. According to a recent report by the US Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, on any given day 1.2 million fulltime college students drink alcohol and more than 703,000 are using marijuana. Consumption by high school students is also a concern. And statistics show that US prescription drug overdoses kill more people than car crashes.

Although for years studies have encouraged moderation in consumption, recently the call to address these disruptive behaviors before they develop at early ages has become more pointed.

I'm sure each of us can understand the myriad pressures that a student faces - to fit in, get that scholarship, perform well athletically, etc. To help, I've always been in the designated driver group. From that point of support, I have always had a deep desire to help those around me, because I've found that turning to spiritual truths about our identity leads to lasting health and satisfaction.

A few years ago, I explored spiritual ideas to help those struggling with painkiller addiction. While the Food and Drug Administration supports a shift to medication alternatives, and holistic and even regular medical practitioners advocate using alternatives to pain medication, I have found holding to spiritual truths in prayer, and sharing these truths - such as one's innate innocence and freedom as the expression of divine Love - able to bring about complete healing.

For example, years ago my wife and I were leading a group of students through Europe, and on the last evening an adult leader from another American group contacted us and told us that he had a girl they were preparing to send home, as she had been troublesome. She had been drinking and doing everything she shouldn't while on the trip. They knew she was of the same faith as my wife and I, and requested that we go to her room and try to help her. We went to her room and found her ill and semi conscious from alcohol consumption. As we prayed about this situation, we realized we had to see the pure, spiritual identity of this girl - created and cherished by

God. We took out a copy of the Christian Science Sentinel, which included an account of healing of a person in a similar situation, and crossed out that person's name and put this girl's name in its place. We left the article under her pillow, and continued to cherish her spiritual identity as we traveled back to America, knowing her group would get her safely back to the States.

A year later back home, we attended a church that we hadn't been to in quite some time. As we walked into the edifice, this girl that we had met in France was ushering. She came down the aisle and gave us each a big hug, and after the service she told us how she had awakened from her stupor in Paris the morning after our visit and was a changed person. Her parents told us that the only similarity to the daughter that left them for Europe was the picture on her driver's license. She had found her real, God-given self without a single vestige of drug use or immorality remaining.

That is one specific example of the joy and freedom that spiritual discovery can offer students. "It is our ignorance of God, the divine Principle, which produces apparent discord, and the right understanding of Him restores harmony," wrote Mary Baker Eddy in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, a book that explains the relationship between spirituality and wellbeing. Eddy found that prayer can help us look beyond a limited, materialistic sense of self - a self apart from God, and that this is integral to restoring and maintaining health. As this school year begins, my hope is that the spiritual dimension of each student's identity be cultivated in conjunction with his or her academic and intellectual abilities. Looking beyond the physical, social, and emotional aspects and bolstering the spiritual identity of the person would go a long way toward reducing the perceived need for and use of stimulants, thus improving individual health while imparting a satisfying feeling of joy and freedom.

What Can We Expect From The September FOMC Meeting?

The next meeting is coming fast and the FOMC is once again falling victim to Murphy's Law. After weeks of jawboning markets into acceptance of a September hike, its justification has significantly diminished in the past week.

>Car sales. August vehicle sales were down 4.6% from July, meaning consumption likely fell, too.

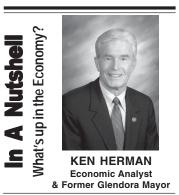

>The jobs report. There were plenty of jobs in August to justify a hike based on what the Fed says, but not enough based on what the Fed has done in the past. The 151k payroll rise is not a deal breaker, but reduced the likelihood of tightening.

>The Institute for Supply Management numbers were super weak. These should have been a deal breaker if not for recent volatility casting doubt on their usefulness. A drop of a point or two in one or the other index is one thing. A seven-year low in the economy-weighted combined composite index is quite another.

>The Beige Book was awful. Richmond Fed President Lacker suggested the FOMC should ignore the ISM survey, and perhaps they will. Ignoring the Fed's own Beige Book survey will be more difficult as it sent a much clearer-than-usual message. After all, it's not just the book's cover that's beige. The contents are typically such a mishmash of conflicting signals, rendering its guidance boringly directionless.

Not this time, however. As Bloomberg's Richard Yamarone wrote, "Sitting on the sidelines would be the most prudent move given the lackluster details of this Fed report." According to the survey, consumer spending ranged from "modest gains" to "slowed noticeably." Prices ranged from "unchanged" to "modestly higher." The most telling result, however, was the perception of overall growth in the twelve districts, which was "unchanged," "flat," and "little changed" from the last period, when the economy grew just 1.1%.

>Stocks. The extreme volatility we have seen recently means little to the Fed in itself. If stocks continue to trend lower, it will be one more reason to pass on a hike at this meeting.

Bottom line: It's not over until it's over with the FOMC, but a truly data dependent Fed should stand down unless there's compelling strength in the few remaining reports between now and the next meeting.

Greenspan Has Retired but His Ghost Still Haunts the Fed

Markets self-correct. So, why doesn't the Fed trust the labor market to self-correct? It's a question free market loving Alan Greenspan1 asked - rhetorically - in one of his first appearances as Fed Chairman.

He admitted no one really knew for sure, but then explained the prevailing theory: Wage inflation is different from other types of inflation. Think of rents as an example of normal price inflation. When rental demand exceeds supply, rents rise. But the rate of increase - the rental inflation rate - tends to stabilize. It isn't the same for wages, Greenspan claimed.

This speech was in the mid-80s, early in the first businesscycle expansion after Paul Volcker's painful three-year battle against inflation. Not surprisingly, Greenspan was more than a little preoccupied with the mistakes leading to the prior decade's inflation and the steep price paid to rein it in. The Fed still considers the cumulative policy decisions leading to double digit inflation its second biggest institutional mistake after tightening in the 1930s. Greenspan thought wage inflation is different because wages are income, and income powers consumption.

Hence, wage inflation might fuel price inflation, and that price inflation might lead to more wage inflation. Economists call this a wage-price spiral. It was convincing at the time, and while there is still no statistical proof of the theory working over the long term, it underpins the Fed's fear of full employment.

And yet, the wage-price spiral hasn't happened since the 1980s. There was no inflation in the late '90s (Greenspan's "conundrum") and the only inflation in the late '00s was cost-push inflation easily traced to China's insatiable appetite for commodities. The Fed was able to keep rates lower than they expected in the '90s as a result, and could have kept them lower in the '00s too, as quietly acknowledged in recent downward revisions to the Fed's historical natural rate estimates.

Greenspan offered conjectural explanations for lowerthan-expected late-cycle inflation - the global savings glut, China exporting deflation, etc. that are also unproven but are also firmly woven into the Fed's policymaking DNA. In the meantime, the labor market is already showing signs of self-correcting.

The unemployment rate is stabilizing, labor force participation is stabilizing, too, and immigration is picking up as job opportunities grow. There is a little wage inflation, but there is not much. As for price inflation, it remains stubbornly low.

Of course, preventing inflation is not the only reason to hike rates. There's always the risk of too low interest rates fueling an asset bubble. Setting monetary policy is difficult, fraught with uncertainly and inevitable tradeoffs.

Keeping rates low risks asset price appreciation and upsets savers; raising rates risks a slowdown in the real economy and upsets job hunters. There is no silver bullet.

Your Money - Ask Julia

I know that term life insurance is the least expensive, and that whole life insurance is the most expensive. Is there anything in-between?

What my clients like to do is get a life insurance policy that can, like whole life, build a cash account, and then add to it a term life insurance policy to cover the "what ifs" during the earlier years of life. The "what-ifs" usually include the possible loss of a breadwinner's income that is spent for housing and college educations. When the house is paid for, and the kids are through college, the term policy can expire with the whole-life-like policy still in effect.

The stock market is doing okay, but I'm older now, and I don't have time to recover from another big loss. How can I keep that from happening to me again?

If you leave your money where it is, you stand the chance of the same thing happening again. If you move your money to CDs and Money Market accounts, your money is safer, but when you factor in the low rates, taxes, and inflation, you're probably losing money. There are new and better places for your money. When you look at these, don't get caught up in "semantic biases." Here's what I mean. What's the first thing that comes to mind when I say, "Nitroglycerine." About half of you will say, "Explosives." The other half of you will say, "Heart-attack, life-saving medication." Neither is wrong; you're just expressing your "semantic bias." When looking at different places for your money, it really doesn't matter what the product is named focus on what it can do for you. The good news is that there are a couple of much safer places for you to put your money.

Is there an investment that I can rely on to get payments for my whole retirement lifetime?

You have several choices some safer than others. My clients usually either decide to invest in fixed/fixed-indexed annuities, or with fixed-indexed universal life insurance. Both of these product lines have changed tremendously in the last 5 years. Insurance companies that issue of these product lines came to realize the negative points that scare folks away from investing in them, so they have re-written the book. Now these products are packed with a variety of living benefits, and most, if not all, carry a promise that you can receive income for life.

We want to start a college savings plan for our children, but we've heard that some plans, including the 529, are

One way requires an investment of as little as $50 per month, and allows you to take a month or two off when money gets tight. (This is especially convenient for Christmas and for teachers who don't have income for a couple of months.) A second way to invest can actually provide tax-free access to the funds for your children, and/or for YOU in your retirement years.

Is there a way to offset the copays of Obama's "Affordable" health insurance plans?

There are 4 levels: Bronze, Silver, Gold, and Platinum. Copays on the Bronze are higher than the Silver level, which is higher than the Gold level, with the lowest co-pay at the Platinum level. You're going to pay higher premiums for lower co-pays. For more adequate coverage, you might want to check out supplementing with non-insurance medical discount plans and accident plans. When you own, manage and work in the auto repair business one thing you learn, and you learn quickly, is that you always have to keep moving forward. Sometimes people refer to us as "car doctors" and that is true...but I will say that although "people doctors" certainly have to keep moving forward with ever-changing advances in medications and disease control, "car doctors" have to keep moving forward to keep pace with the ever-changing vehicle! The human body comes in two makes and they don't change...cars come in several makes and models and they change all the time. Myself and my employees never stop training. If we stopped, we would soon be out of business because todays' vehicles are getting more and more sophisticated and computer/software run. It takes a whole lot more talent than being good with a wrench...we have to be computer experts to keep pace.

Being the owner of an auto repair business means much more than hanging out a sign. Owners have to hire the right talent to begin with...then we have to make sure that talent is willing to keep training. That is one of the hardest things we owners have to contend with...keeping our workforce inspired to learn more. Motivation is the fulltime job of ownership.

Thankfully, there are ways for me to keep training so I can manage my business to help motivate me and my staff. I recently completed training (for now) and graduated. Yes...I still have to go to school and graduate. The Automotive Service Association (ASA) held its Automotive Management Institute (AMI) graduation and award ceremony Saturday August 12th in Anaheim, CA. It was an awesome event.

I was honored to be included in the 1st graduating class, earning the new A.M.A.M. degree (Accredited Master Automotive Manager). 49 people graduated by accumulating 180 credits through many accredited management classes. Others in attendance earned the Accredited Automotive Manager (A.A.M.) degree with 120 credits as well.

I work hard to be the best I can be and support our industry. I just wanted my readers to know that we do this to better ourselves, motivate our staff and be the very best we can be for our customers. When a shop keeps striving to be the best, you will see many degrees and certifications hanging on the walls. Most of this training takes place after hours but it is so necessary. We can never rest on our laurels...we take a deep breath and then sign up for the next training event that comes along. Here's to always moving forward!

2nd Annual Dumpling & Beer Fest

SAN GABRIEL - San Gabriel is known for its delicious, authentic Asian cuisine and one of the hottest foods in the city is dumplings. Many of the amazing dumpling spots in San Gabriel have been recognized by restaurant critics and food bloggers including the Los Angeles Times' Jonathan Gold. The San Gabriel Dumpling & Beer Fest is an annual event that brings those two great loves together.

The festival offers dumpling vendors and craft beer tastings in the city's historic Mission District, making a fun night for the community to come together at #### our local twist on Oktoberfest. There will also be live entertainment. In 2015, the inaugural festival was a massive success and was the most well attended city event in recent memory. ### Duarte USD Receives Award With City Of Hope For Excellence In Educational Pathways

Duarte - Together with the City of Hope, Duarte Unified School District (DUSD) was honored with the Excellence in Educational Pathways Award by the San Gabriel Valley Economic Partnership at the organization's 25th Awards Gala held at the Sheraton Fairplex Hotel & Conference Center in Pomona, Calif. on Saturday, September 10, 2016.

DUSD was recognized for the innovative STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) programs that are currently being offered in partnership with the City of Hope Cancer Treatment and Research Center for students attending Duarte Unified schools in grades kindergarten -12.

"It is a tremendous honor to receive the San Gabriel Valley Economic Partnership's Excellence in Educational Pathways Award with the City of Hope,' stated Dr. Mucerino, Superintendent of Duarte USD.

"It is rewarding that we are being recognized for establishing a true partnership between a public school district and world renowned medical institution to provide authentic STEM learning delivered by industry experts in collaboration with our teaching staff. Together, we are creating the next generation of scientists, technicians, engineers and mathematicians.

"I am also excited that we will be expanding on the success of our current partnership to enlarge our programs with City of Hope to offer even more opportunities for the students of Duarte."

The goal of the collaboration between DUSD and City of Hope was to create a pipeline of students (especially underrepresented minority students) interested, engaged and prepared for biomedical research as a possible college and career choice.

This led to the development of a two-stage research education program for rising high school juniors and seniors, a professional development program for K-12 DUSD teachers and the establishment of a K-8 research education program now known as the San Gabriel Valley Science Education Partnership Award (SGV SEPA) Collaborative.

The SGV SEPA Collaborative programs offered by DUSD and City of Hope are funded in part by a five-year, $1.3 million grant from the National Institutes of Health.

Other offerings resulting from the unique DUSD and City of Hope partnership include the development of a genetics curriculum for elementary and middle school students. The curriculum consists of three units: Unit 1 for grades K-2, Unit 2 for grades 3-5 and Unit 3 for grades 6-8. Each unit contains four to five lessons. The genetics curriculum has been piloted in a DUSD elementary school, and is being finalized. The resulting curriculum will be available to all schools and districts.

Other professional development benefits afforded to DUSD instructors through the collaborative are teaching science in the context of Next Generation Science Standards and Common Core State Standards, and laboratory techniques and inquirybased experiments for middle and high school classrooms provided by City of Hope staff.

The SGV SEPA Collaborative currently has programs in place for second, fifth and eighth graders in DUSD, which are incorporated into the students' curriculum and include school visitations and academic field trips to the City of Hope campus.

City of Hope scientists visit every second grade classroom to teach the concepts of genetics and inheritance, and introduce the students to careers in research. As a follow up, second grade students go to City of Hope at the end of the school year to learn more about genetics and to tour the City of Hope campus.

Every fifth grade student visits City of Hope to do hands-on,

Summer Research Program provides students the opportunity to conduct innovative, original research in City of Hope's Community Teaching Laboratory during an eight-week program that runs from June to early August.

Students meet two days a week for three hours each day and learn to give high-quality presentations about their work and hear about college and career pathways in the sciences. Students who successfully complete the program receive a $480 stipend. There is also a SGV SEPA yearlong program for interested students who are partnered with a mentor-scientist in a field that the students are interested in exploring in greater depth.

DUSD Juniors and Seniors can also participate in the Career Technical Education (CTE) summer mentorship program at City of Hope that pairs DUSD students with staff members in all job positions at City of Hope to gain experience working in a variety of departments including human resources, library services and marketing.

"The City of Hope SGV SEP-AC Program is honored to receive the Excellence in Educational Pathways Award from the SGV Economic Partnership, stated Marisa Bowers, SEPAC Program Coordinator.

"Hard Edge painter" whose work reflected the relationship between color and form. He enjoyed early success in the 1950s with showings at museums and community galleries in Southern California, but the exhibit that put his work under an international spotlight and gave it a lasting label was "Four Abstract Classicists" in 1959.

Subsequently, Benjamin produced a critically acclaimed body of work that explores a vast array of color relationships. The work in "Close Values" is notable in that it comes entirely from Benjamin's family and friends, and breaks out of his usual practices while still exemplifying his style. He was also a teacher and taught public elementary and middle school. He was later named the artist-in-residence at Pomona College and taught art classes at the Claremont Graduate School.

A special opening reception will be held Thursday, Sept. 22, 4:30 to 7:30 p.m., in the Art Gallery, building 1B. Gallery hours are Tuesdays through Thursdays, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., and Tuesday nights, 5 to 7:30 p.m.

Mt. San Antonio College Opens Doors to ITT Tech Students

WALNUT - Mt. San Antonio College is developing a transition program to help displaced ITT Technical Institute students finish their degrees and certificates.

Because ITT Tech was accredited in a different manner than California Community Colleges, transferring credits from ITT Tech to Mt. San Antonio College will be challenging. However, administrators believe ITT Tech students can have a second chance by earning credit for equivalent Mt. SAC courses through a process known as credit-byexam.

"This is the right thing to do," said Dr. William T. Scroggins, president and CEO of Mt. SAC. "When it comes down to it, Mt. SAC's mission is to educate students and prepare them for rewarding careers. We share that mission with ITT Tech. They couldn't complete their commitment to these students, but we can help pick up the ball and make sure they can finish their education and earn a good living."

Mt. San Antonio College, a community college in Walnut, Calif., is working with the California Community College Chancellor's Office, U.S. Department of Education, the state Bureau of Private Postsecondary Education as well as ITT Tech administrators to assist the displaced students.

While the fall semester has already started, displaced students can begin planning their transition to Mt. SAC immedi-

Preparing Your Heating System For Winter

It happens every fall. We prepare for winter by replacing screens with storm windows, sealing cracks or leaks around windows and doors, cleaning gutters and shutting off exterior faucets. But what about our home heating system? The experts at the Luxaire<sup>TM</sup> brand of Johnson Controls encourage you to make these steps part of your winterization routine:

• Replace or clean the filters in your heating unit to improve airflow and efficiency. ENERGY STAR®, a program of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, recommends checking your filter every month, especially during heavy-use months, and if it looks dirty, change it. At a minimum, change the filter every three months.

• Consider installing a programmable thermostat like the Luxaire Touch-screen Thermostat with Proprietary Hexagon Interface, which allows you to remotely program your thermostat using your smartphone and lower your home's temperature when the house is unoccupied.

 Change the batteries in your thermostat to ensure it operates properly throughout the winter.

• Test your thermostat by turning it on in the heat mode. It should respond immediately, and you should feel heat coming from your air vents. Make a note of any sounds that seem abnormal.

• Inspect your ductwork for punctures, dents or disconnected sections. It's also a good idea to periodically clean your heating duct to allow heated air to flow efficiently to all areas of your home.

· Check the insulation in your attic, ceilings, exterior and basement walls, floors and crawl spaces to see if it meets the levels (measured in R-values) recommended for your area. It's also wise to insulate water heaters and pipes to minimize heat loss.

• Schedule an inspection of your system by a heating professional. Heat pumps and oil-fired furnaces need annual tune-ups; gas-fired equipment can be serviced every other year. Professional technicians are usually trained to detect leaks, soot, rust, rot, corroded electrical contacts and frayed wires. You might also consider the convenience of a service contract to ensure your system is properly maintained each year.

· Buy an energy-efficient furnace or heat pump. Gas furnaces in the Luxaire Acclimate<sup>TM</sup> Series offer an annual fuel utilization efficiency (AFUE) rating as high as 98 percent, while Acclimate split system heat pumps offer a heating seasonal performance factor (HSPF) up to 10. Ratings like these translate to significant energy savings and reduced utility bills.

How You Can Manage Knee Osteoarthritis Pain

Do you or someone you know suffer from knee pain? Let's face it, we're all getting older and with that comes the associated aches and pains your parents warned you about. One of the most common diseases associated within joint pain in nearly 27 million Americans is osteoarthritis.1

Most commonly found in the knee, osteoarthritis is caused by the wearing down of cartilage and loss of fluid cushioning in the knee joint. That wear and tear to the knee joint causes swelling, pain, stiffness and decreased range of motion. Many cases can be debilitating and make everyday living a challenge.

Knee osteoarthritis is prevalent in adults over the age of 45, and more likely found in women than men. It is also common in athletes and those who participate in extreme sports. Detection starts with a physical exam followed by xrays to look for characteristics in the body such as narrowing joint space between the bones, cysts and uneven joints.

Hyaluronic acid, also known as hyaluronan, is a natural substance found in joint cartilage and in the synovial fluid that fills knee joints and acts like a lubricant and a cushion in the knee.2 In knee osteoarthritis, the hyaluronic acid within the synovial fluid of the knee joint becomes diluted and breaks down, reducing its natural properties.2

Managing knee osteoarthritis pain is one treatment goal; however, the severity of that treatment is best for each patient. Pain levels are categorized as mild, moderate and severe. Exercising and maintaining a healthy weight can help alleviate mild pain. Moderate pain treatments include taking overthe-counter pain relievers or anti-inflammatory medicines. Severe osteoarthritis is detected on x-ray by bone touching bone and usually results in a total knee replacement.

pain determines which type of

However, some patients suffering from mild to moderate osteoarthritis knee pain have another non-invasive option for treatment. These patients may begin joint fluid therapy with hyaluronic acid products that are injected directly into the knee joint. These products are proven safe, effective and have been shown to relieve pain.

With GELSYN-3, patients receive a weekly injection in their knee over a period of three weeks. These injections contain a highly purified solution of hyaluronic acid to provide relief of knee pain and may also delay the need for total knee replacement surgery. A threeinjection regimen of GELSYN-3 delivers long-lasting knee osteoarthritis pain relief for up to six months.3 If you suffer from knee osteoarthritis, ask your doctor

Seven Safety Tips For Protecting Your Child

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, some 70,000 children under age 5 are injured every year by common household products and toys-but yours don't have to be among them.

Here are seven ways to keep infants and toddlers safer:

1. Cook safely. Never leave

7. Check window coverings for exposed or dangling cords, which can pose a strangulation hazard to infants and young children.

Parents with young children should replace their corded window coverings with the many cordless products.

2. Set your water heater to 120° F or lower. Infants and small children may not be able to get away from water that's too hot.

3. Use home safety devices, such as guards on windows above ground level, stair gates and guardrails.

4. Keep medicines, cleaning products and other toxic substances where children can't see or reach them.

5. Make sure children are properly buckled up. With a 90 percent misuse rate for installing car seats and boosters, parents should visit a car seat inspection station in their area to learn how to properly install and use them.

6. Always check the age label on toys. Small partswhether from toys, pieces of food such as hot dogs or grapes, or anything else-can become a choking risk for children who have small throats and tend to put things in their mouths.

Keller Williams Realty

By Jayam Rutnam

GLENDORA - Jana Jones, popular and well known realtor and owner of Ken Turner Real Estate in the Village in Glendora, has partnered with, what is purportedly the largest Real Estate company in the world, Keller Williams Realty. She will be moving into the Keller Williams office at the end of September 2016.

At the age of 19, Jana started a residential/commercial maintenance company for extra money while in school and ended up running it as a full service business for 16 years. In 1995 Jana decided it was time to make a career change. Always willing to take a risk and never afraid of a challenge, Jana sold her maintenance business, and pursued a real estate career and became a licensed realtor and went to work at Ken Turner Real Estate in Glendora.

Already having a clientele of homeowners from her prior business, Jana was able to continue her relationships and found a strong new way to fulfill their needs in a different capacity. This kind of out of the box thinking and a tenacious drive to serve her customers at the highest level within three years she became a managing partner. In 2004 her partners retired and Jana became sole Broker/Owner of Ken Turner Real Estate.

According to Jana, it was important to her that this kind of business move provided an even greater level of service with a larger platform that would include technology and marketing advances, greater listing exposure, along with a larger network of co-working agents. After researching several options she concluded that an alignment with Keller Williams Realty would be the perfect partnership.

Jana Jones is a Southern California native who has lived and worked in the San Gabriel Valley most of her life. She and her husband, Chris, currently live in La Verne and enjoy spending their free time with family which includes: son Jacob, his wife Andrea, daughter Joyanne, step-kids Cody and Kylie and her two year old grandson - Jack Henry.

Remembering The Past - Haynes Family Of Programs 70th Anniversary Reunion

ministrators who have guided La Verne's Haynes Family of Programs, formerly LeRoy Haynes Center and before that LeRoy Boys Home, get together to reflect on the facility's past and its many accomplishments at this month's 70th anniversary reunion and celebration. The event -- which included games, music and an inflatable water slide for the kids -- featured everything from a picnic to a program looking back at the history of the many Haynes services. On hand were former staff members, current and former volunteers, LA VERNE - Three top ad- alumni and their family with some former residents on hand who lived there in the late 1940s. The facility was founded in 1946 by LeRoy Haynes and has grown from its initial 10 residents to six cottages, each housing 12 foster children and youth. Today's campus also includes two specialized day schools, a transitional living program for "aged out" foster youth, a community therapeutic support program, mental health services, and even special education services to students in their home or school.

Aging In Place: What Smart Homeowners Are Doing To Stay Self-Reliant

Keeping the electricity on at all times can go a long way toward helping older Americans continue to live safely in their own homes.

More than 90 percent of older adults prefer to age in place rather than move to assisted living or senior housing, according to the National Aging in Place Council (NAIPC).

By choosing to stay at home into retirement, well homeowners are taking on more responsibility for maintaining their independence as well as maintaining their home. However, they may not be aware of the significant responsibilities, including home care that can require physical labor or the increasing dependence on reliable electricity to maintain health, communication and security needs. Additionally, the homeowner may not be aware of the myriad of minor upgrades needed to adequately modify the house for safe, secure and comfortable living.

When thinking about comfort and security, home automation is top of mind for today's modern house. This includes lighting controls and fixtures that cast more light for better visibility inside the home. Enhanced lighting and monitoring will also improve security and can alter the mood with just a touch of a button. Better lighting for an aging homeowner is a top remodeling upgrade, while eliminating cords from lamps can simultaneously reduce the risk of trips and falls in the home. These days, it's common to think about losing electricity due to storms and windy weather as well as diminished visibility in a darkened home. A backup generator can reduce these risks and can also be a lifesaver if the home relies on refrigerated medications or any kind of electronic monitoring.

Additionally, lifesaving equipment such as an oxygen concentrator, air-conditioning or heating throughout the seasons may be imperative. Common agingin-place home improvements, like the elevator or stair assist, are also electrical devices that may require backup power. A home standby generator can make sure these features remain usable and aren't cause for concern.

When deciding to age in place, it's smart to change the conversation from aging to accessibility. The comforts of home are only attainable when the features of the home are accessible, and without power, even the ability to communicate with family is at risk. The ability to live comfortably at home can mean healthier and happier living for years to come. Wellness, safety and independence are easier to achieve with a Generac home standby generator and an added peace of mind. (NAPSI)
