Vacant Auto Dealership in Covina Up in Smoke

The car dealership, how it looked, before the fire and after the devastating fire. Totally destroyed.

By George Ogden COVINA - The former Dodge

Dealership and former Budget car rental facility in the 300 block of S. Citrus Ave., burned to the ground in a multi-alarm fire which completely destroyed the dealership. The fire was first reported around 8:45 p.m. on Wednesday, August 31.

Los Angeles County Fire Department responded and when they arrived, they were met with smoke and huge flames coming from the building. They immediately called a second-alarm around 8:55 p.m. The West Covina Fire Department responded and joined with them fighting the fire. The fire was brought under control around 9:35 p.m.

Firefighters fighting the fire went into defensive mode to protect any other structures nearby.

While fighting the fire, the roof came crashing down. No firefighters were injured.

Citrus was closed between Center and Puente streets as the firefighters made quick work of the spectacular fire. Residents applauded the firefighters for making such quick work of the huge fire and getting it out within an hour.

Firefighters were on scene all night long and they also searched the burned out building for any possible bodies that may be inside. There had been speculation that transients may have been breaking into the fenced in facility.

The fire is under investigation and authorities were called immediately because of the suspicious nature of the blaze. The facility had been vacant for about 10 years.

Why Investing In Real Estate Is Easier Than Ever

There is no shortage of reasons why investing in residential real estate can be a good idea: home prices declined during the recent financial crisis, the number of renters has skyrocketed, it's often considered a stable alternative to the stock market and the list goes on and on.

At the same time, residential real estate investing has shifted from a local proposition to one without geographic limitations. That's because of developments in technology, financing, services and processes that can make it easier for investors to search for opportunities, purchase properties and manage them from afar.

In the past, a long-standing issue with the single-family rental sector has been a weak debt market. Investors were generally limited to loans from Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae, which allow a maximum of four and 10 properties, respectively. Even worse was that these loans are highly dependent on the personal income of the borrower, not the income of the real estate. This limited obtaining attractive financing to only the wealthiest of investors. A new lending sector has emerged, however, that can provide financing for investors of various sizes and neither limits the number of properties available for financing nor underwrites the loan amount based on personal income.

Meanwhile, online auction marketplaces, property management software and crowdfunding may help to make more efficient decisionmaking and investing. "Small investors today don't have to rely on gut feelings about markets-they're empowered by high-quality market intelligence and have access to a multitude of service providers," explains

COMPUTER SERVICE & SUPPORT

With today's data analytics and services, single-family residential real estate investing has evolved from driving around neighborhoods and using intuition to viewing locations online to make factbased decisions.

Wally Charnoff, CEO of Investability Real Estate, Inc.

"Small investors can now diversify their portfolio," he says, "because they can research, acquire, finance and manage properties from afar." The single-family residential market can present opportunities for "mom and pop" investors, particularly those who consider five key points:

1. Understand the total costs: Operating expenses and fixed costs, such as taxes, can vary greatly from state to state. Property management fees are generally higher in less populated areas that have little scalability or no competition. Hurricane, flood or earthquake insurance can be expensive but may not be relevant in all markets.

"Investors often look for turnkey properties, which can make condos appealing, but monthly association fees can severely suppress yield and additional assessments could put the property in the red at a moment's notice," points out Dennis Cisterna, CRO of Investability Real Estate, Inc.

2. Choose your tenants wisely: If you decide to invest out of your local market (and even in your own market), consider using a property manager to identify and qualify tenants and detail exactly the criteria and standards required. Common metrics are a certain FICO score, no bankruptcy in the last few years and a minimum rentto-income ratio. Landlord references are also important, as is understanding local laws about tenant selection and advertising for tenants.

3. Know the market as if you lived there: Talk to local brokers, read the local newspaper to understand the economy and visit the area. Identify the drivers behind the housing market and know the history. A healthy, educated workforce and population growth are generally good indicators of longterm price appreciation. Lower home ownership rates may produce strong yields as there could be a consistent demand for your investment property, but appreciation may be lacking as the market fundamentals are not dynamic enough.

4. Choose either appreciation or yield or a little of both: Deciding which type of market you want to invest in will help with focus. Diversifying can be a reason to look beyond local opportunities. Some markets straddle yield and appreciation, and researching the long-term trend for market dynamics is especially important as these may quickly shift to only yield or appreciation.

5. Know your exit strategy: The number of owner-occupied houses is important because a higher rate of home ownership may make it easier to sell the home. The overall liquidity of the market is also important. Data now exists that can help investors understand the vibrancy of a market even without much buying and selling. Accommodating Mental Illness In The Workplace

For people with mental illness, getting and keeping a job can present some unique challenges. Unlike physical disabilities that can be seen and recognized, employers may not realize that a person is experiencing mental health issues or may not understand behaviors as stemming from an illness. They may also not know they have to provide workplace accommodations to help mentally ill people who require adjustments to remain employed and productive.

Not every person experiencing mental illness will have difficulty at work, but some will. "Hidden" disabilities such as depression, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), schizophrenia, obsessive-compulsive disorder, traumatic brain injury, and intellectual and learning disabilities (e.g., attention deficit disorder and attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder) can affect a person's ability to perform a job.

Also, shifts in mental health can trigger and recede without warning. When someone experiences a mental health issue, it can be difficult to focus, process, think clearly, remember details, organize thoughts and tasks, and stop and start activities.

For these individuals, Title I of the Americans with Disabilities Act Amendments Act of 2008 (ADAAA) requires employers to make "reasonable accommodations" to help people with mental health disorders do their jobs. The ADAAA does not list medical conditions that are disabilities, but rather gives a general definition of disability. A doctor may be required to validate the need for accommodation.

"Employers don't always know what a person is living with," says Beth Loy, Ph.D., who is a principal consultant with the Department of Labor's Job Accommodation Network (JAN). "There may be limitations due to medication, or a flexible schedule might be needed for a person to go to therapy appointments."

The JAN is a comprehensive resource for people who want to understand their rights regarding unique and may have different needs, there are many options for mental health accommodations. "Sometimes, small adjustments to how the work is organized, or the workday schedule, or headphones that help block out distracting noise can make a big difference," explains Carlton Speight, a public health adviser with the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration's (SAMHSA) Center for Mental Health Services. "Also, for a person who may be easily triggered or anxious, a ser vice dog can help with grounding."

Melanie Whetzel, MA, CBIS, the lead consultant on the Cognitive/Neurological Team at JAN, says, "Most of the mental impairment questions we receive relate to service animals, flexible schedules, and flexibility to leave the workstation if someone feels panicked and needs to get grounded. We also frequently get questions about private space to take breaks and ways to abate noise that can build anxiety or be triggering."

Most accommodations in the workplace can be established with little or no cost. They just require some flexibility and creativity, and can often be put in place quickly, if the need arises. Such accommodations may include:

• Creating a supportive environment. It is critical for individuals with mental health conditions to work with colleagues and leadership who provide posiquiet, provides space enclosures or a private office may be more comfortable and manageable.

• Adjusting the approach to supervising. It could be as simple as scheduling daily one-on-one meetings to see how things are going. Check-ins may also help people manage problems before they become stressful and _overwhelming.

• Offering flexible schedules. Flexible arrival and departure times as well as permitting the work to take place in other locations also allow individuals to perform duties where and when they can be most productive. Flexible or extended breaks may also help them manage stress or attend health care appointments.

With the ADAAA regulations in place, requesting an accommodation is designed to be a simple and straightforward process for employees. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission also offers some guidance on accommodation procedures.

When an accommodation is needed, it is often helpful for the employee to discuss the request with the employer to determine what will work and how that can be achieved.

"I think it is critical for employers to understand that workplace accommodations create substantial benefits for the organization," says Matthew Aumen, a program analyst in SAMHSA's Center for Substance Abuse Prevention. "Accommodations re-

Assemblyman Mike Gatto's Parking Bill of Rights Passes the Legislature, Awaits Governor's Approval

SACRAMENTO-Assemblyman Mike Gatto's (D-Los Angeles) fight for a more fair and affordable parking policy for California motorists received the approval of the State Assembly by a 67-7 vote, and will now be sent the Governor's desk for his signature. The California Parking Bill of Rights will substantially reform how cities and other local governments manage and enforce parking laws, providing common-sense reforms and relief from unjust citations. "When parking becomes a business for cities, the legislature must step in to protect drivers and their wallets," said Gatto. "Municipalities should be looking for ways to make parking easier for their community, not ways to profit off of them."

The reforms included in AB 2586 will be:

• Prohibiting cities from hiring private companies to act as parking "bounty hunters."

· Requiring cities to promptly make spaces available to motorists after street-sweeping activities have concluded.

· Prohibiting cities from ticketing motorists who park at broken meters. The current law governing this (authored by Gatto in 2013) "sunsets" (expires) at the end of 2016.

"Today is a victory for motorists who ask for a fair and just parking policy," added Gatto.

SACRAMENTO - Assembly a transcript fee adjustment. California has not adjusted the court reporters transcript fee in over 25 years.

> "Court reporters are trained and licensed at their own expense and fund 100% of the transcript production. AB 2629 advances a modest transcript fee adjustment staggered over five years to bring forward a more balanced and fair compensation for court reportsaid Assemblyman ers," Hernández.

Official court reporters employed by the courts are currently paid under a dual compensation structure in which the base salary of a court reporter is supplemented by the income from preparing required transcripts and providing other required transcription services.

The dual compensation structure protects the state from bearing the full cost of transcript preparation and other transcription services. This avoids the resulting consequences of overtime liability related to these services.

"Court reporters in California have been working evenings and weekends, without overtime pay, and receiving a transcript fee that has not been changed in 25 years. This bill simply ensures that these workers are not stuck at 1991 wages," states Brooke Ryan, President of the California Court Reporters Association.

Assemblyman Holden's Bills to Protect Wildlife and Increase Affordable Housing Options for Foster Youth and Veterans Clears Legislature

SACRAMENTO-Assemblyman Chris Holden's bills to protect wildlife, AB 2148; and increase affordable housing options for foster youth and veterans, AB 2442, cleared the legislature. The legislation now awaits Governor Jerry Brown's signature.

"There's no denying the rapidly increasing number of drones in public spaces," said Assemblyman Chris Holden. "Now is the time to take preventative steps to protect California's wildlife and natural habitats before it becomes a problem."

AB 2148 provides the National Resources Agency the ability to develop regulations regarding drone use on publically managed lands. Recent incidents have shown that drone use in close proximity to wildlife can have serious impacts. AB 2148 strives to create a cohesive, statewide system of rules governing the use of unmanned drones on public lands. The regulations can include conditional use or outright prohibitions when necessary to protect the safety of wildlife, natural habitats or visitors.

"Disabled veterans and transitional foster youth face a serious affordable housing problem," said Holden. "It is vital that we give our local communities tools to meet this challenge.'

AB 2442 allows housing developers to obtain multiple density bonuses from local government if the housing development sets aside ten percent for former foster youth, disabled veterans, or formerly homeless individuals. A multiple density bonus is a zoning tool that enables developers to build more units than normally allowed. AB 2442 expands state law relating to multiple density bonuses as a tool to address rising housing costs and a subsequent lack of reliable, affordable that plagues housing Californian's most vulnerable populations.

Assemblyman Mike Gatto's Legislation to Increase Drone Safety Flies to Governor's Desk

SACRAMENTO-Assemblyman Mike Gatto's (D-Los Angeles) Drone Registration/Omnibus Negligence-prevention Enactment (DRONE Act) of 2016, passed the State Assembly by a 43-20 vote, and will now make its final approach to the Governor's desk.

The bill's passage comes at a time of crisis. Drones have continued to interfere with firefighting efforts, delaying water drops and causing fires to grow, including three separate incidents this week at the Rey Fire in Santa Barbara County. Earlier this year, a Lufthansa Airbus A380 reported a near-miss incident when a drone flew passed the aircraft at 5,000 feet as it approached LAX. And today, the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) announced that a whopping 600,000 drones will be operational in the US in 2016.

The Act:

• Mandates that drones of a certain size equipped with GPS, feature automatic shut-off technology that would activate if approaching airports or designated fire zones. This technology already exists, and is critical to protecting commercial passenger flights.

• Requires drone insurance policies, starting in 2020, to ensure that if a drone hurts someone or damages property the victim can be compensated. This requirement is akin to the autoinsurance requirements under existing law.

• Requires all drone packaging to include the safety disclosures and FAA registration requirements.

"The DRONE Act seeks to protect our skies and our land. It further ensures that negligent drone operators be held financially responsible, whenever injuries, interference, or property damage occurs," said Assemblyman Gatto. "This is a practical measure that will increase public safety without harming the growth of the industry."

Assemblyman Mike Gatto's Aliso Canyon and Exide-Area Disaster Relief Bill Passes, Sent to Governor's Desk

SACRAMENTO – The State and community," said Assembly-Assembly voted 53-21 to approve Assemblyman Mike Gatto's (D-Los Angeles) legislation that would provide relief to victims of serious, catastrophic pollution from the Exide battery plant contamination disaster near the City of Vernon and the Aliso Canyon natural gas leak in Porter Ranch.

"This legislation will protect the victims of environmental disasters and make sure they are not taken advantage of by gross polluters who harm their health man Gatto.

AB 2748 would prohibit polluters from conditioning settlements on a victim agreeing that the polluter has the right to pollute again in the future. Unbelievable as it may seem, settlements like this have actually been demanded of Porter Ranch-area victims.

The measure would also extend the current statute of limitations for civil actions from two to three years for unknown or new injuries and exposures to a hazardous material or toxic substances. It would also provide victims of environmental disasters better access to remedies available through our judicial system.

"Polluting a community must have consequences," said Gatto. "This legislation will make sure that all of the families who are suffering can seek justice."

The measure will now head to the Governor's desk for signature.

Purchase Approved For County Library Site To Serve Monrovia, Arcadia, Duarte Area

LOSANGELES COUNTY-On a recommendation by Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich, the Board of Supervisors approved the purchase of a new library site in Arcadia to improve and enhance public library services for the residents of the San Gabriel Valley.

"The Board's approval of this vital acquisition is a step forward in securing and building a new library facility with the support of the Monrovia, Arcadia, Duarte town council, the city of Arcadia and our County Librarian all who have been active in the process of locating a new library site," said Antonovich.

With a purchase price of $2,170,000 from capital funds budgeted for the 5th District, the 22,000 square foot parcel is located at 22 West Live Oak Boulevard. The site currently has approximately 7,440 square feet of improvements.

A public hearing to receive comment and complete the proposed acquisition is set for September 27.

Trump: End the Flow of Illegal Drugs, Cash, Guns and People

By Lois M. Shade Former Mayor of Glendora

The truth is our immigration system is worse than anyone realizes. But the facts aren't known because the media won't report on them, the politicians won't talk about them, and the special interests spend a lot of money trying to cover them up.

Donald J. Trump, Arizona 8/31/16

That statement had an impact on me after watching Meet The Press this Sunday with Chuck Todd interviewing Mike Pence. More than once, Todd said he was confused or Trump was backtracking or backing down on immigration.

I've heard Donald Trump talk about the immigration issue several times and the three families at Republican National Convention who have become victims of criminal illegal aliens and today still suffer from the acts performed by those here illegally. Their loved ones died at the hands of illegal aliens! What doesn't Todd understand?

Breibart News, http:// www.breitbart.com/author/juliahahn/ Julia Hahn in July 2015 quoted Chuck Todd as saying, "We couldn't find a single study that links violent crime and immigration." It was easy enough for me to find. I just went to Government Accountability Office's Report, Criminal Alien Statistics. What is hard to find is updated and current information. The report sadly talks about latest and best information which is outdated and not sounding terribly "accountable".

• Homeland Security says in 2009 total aliens who are non-U.S. citizens is 23.3 million and 10.8 million have illegal status. That was 7 years ago!

• 2010, there were about 55,000 illegals in the state prison systems, an increase of 7% from 2005.

• 2009, there were 296,000 illegals in local jails, an increase of 35% from 2003.

An Open Letter To Jerry Falwell Jr.

Jerry Falwell Jr. is the son of the founder, and is the current President of Liberty University in Lynchburg, Virginia. As was his father, Jerry Jr. is a hardcore right-wing Christian fundamentalist. On August 19 he offered a full-throated endorsement of Donald Trump in an opinion piece printed in the Washington Post. The following is my response.

Dear President Falwell,

Having carefully read your opinion piece in The Washington Post, I respond as a retired pastor, who like you, is deeply interested in what is going on in our nation and in the factors shaping our public agenda. I have no need or desire to question your political stance or your right to voice your opinions. As are all Americans, you are free to spread your political concerns as far and wide as you can. My argument with you is about an entirely different matter.

Unless I have badly misunderstood who you are, I believe that your primary commitment and loyalty is to Jesus and the reign of God he proclaimed. Here is my question: Is there anything in Donald Trump's life that remotely resembles the vision Jesus had of the God-directed society centered on acceptance, how your political affection for this billionaire can possibly flow from the life and spirit of the one we both call Christ. Isn't Trump's life story well known to us:—his multiple marriages and a lurid reputation outside each of them? There is the underhanded way he became wealthy by steamrolling and cheating everyone who stood in his way, including his multiple bankruptcies by which he used the tax code as an excuse to abandon thousands who had worked for him.

I note you cited his "love for ordinary Americans and his kindness, generosity and bold leadership qualities." Where is the evidence for this love, kindness and generosity? His life story is a testimony to arrogance and greed, the polar opposite of how Jesus defined the faithful life.

Donald Trump's self-serving commitment is also the opposite of the blessed life Jesus outlined in the beatitudes. President Falwell, can you cite any evidence from what we know about the life and teachings of Jesus that suggests that Donald Trump either knows or understand the peace and justice? So I wonder nature of the God-committed life?

to love our enemies? I don't think by that he meant us to masacre them.

The decision to have a fully armed campus with allowable weapons discreetly carried and now available in every dorm room, says quite a bit about the political nature of your institution, but to call this a Christian policy leaves Jesus far behind.

The Jesus I know built bridges of understanding, while the world around him was content to build walls. The Jesus I know welcomed strangers and embraced his nation's outsiders and aliens; wrapped his arms around the non-persons of his day; honored those whom many of his countrymen distained and rejected.

I would be interested to hear anything you know about Donald Trump that flows from deeper Jesus-directed commitments. While the United States has been and continues to be a secular state, and while no politician or party platform can really approximate Jesus's ethical standard, there are those who depart so far from it that the ethic of Jesus is totally lacking. Certainly we have a right to expect that our leaders be grounded in a standard that flows from a deeper loyalty to the common good, and even perhaps from a religious reservoir. If there is the smallest shred traffic violations accounted for to appoint a Supreme Court 50% of arrest offenses.

GAO says 68% of the illegals are from Mexico. The Mexican government has published and distributes a pamphlet telling its citizens how to cross into the U.S. illegally and safely, and live here undetected.

Presidential Candidate, Donald Trump has a 10 point plan that makes total sense to me. It is fair and protects the average American legal citizen from suffering at the hands of these violent criminals with no right to be here.

1. Build a wall along the southern border and implement above and below ground technology to eliminate tunnels used for trafficing. Increase border patrol manpower.

2. End Catch & Release. Illegals, once caught, will be held securely and returned to their country, not released to roam the streets.

3. Zero tolerance for criminal aliens. Trump's updated statistics – 2 million criminal aliens now in the U.S. and 300,000 of those were released back into our communities since 2013.

Additionally, Trump wants to restore Secure Communities, a program providing fingerprint records from local jails allowing agents to identify those here illegally and request a hold on the detainee to be transferred to a federal custody. According to the L.A. Times, President Obama ended this program under the guise of a new immigration policy. California at the same time enacted policies requiring local law enforcement to limit cooperation and participation in this program.

4. No taxpayer dollars through federal block grant funding for Sanctuary Cities, those cities who refuse to work with law enforcement to capture and punish criminal aliens.

5. Cancel unconstitutional executive orders implementing amnesty by the Obama administration. The 2014 amnesty was blocked by the Supreme Court. And, please remember, the next president of the U.S. will have the opportunity Justice to take the place of Anthony Scalia who has passed. The potential swing vote on that court. Do you want a conservative Trump appointment or Hillary Clinton to make that appointment undoing the 2014 amnesty currently blocked?

6. Suspend visas until the applicants can be fully vetted. The Senate Subcommittee on Immigration and National Interest reports between 9/11 and 2014 at least 380 foreign-born individuals were convicted in terror cases occurring inside the U.S.

Trump promises, with help of Homeland Security and Department of Justice, to create a list of countries/regions from which immigration must be suspended until effective vetting systems can be created to prevent more terrorism activity on U.S. soil. Syria and Libya are already at the top of his list.

7. Ensure other countries will take back their people when we order them deported. Trump says 23 countries have consistently refused to take back their people, even violent criminals.

Additionally, Trump points out, "Due to a Supreme Court decision, if these violent offenders cannot be sent home, our law enforcement officers have to release them into our communities. Yet, despite the existence of a law that commands the Secretary of State to stop issuing visas to these counties, Secretary Hillary Clinton ignored this law

8. Complete the biometric entry – exit tracking system. Congress has required a biometric system that tracks the arrival and departure of foreign visitors but it has never been completed. It is an essential tracking system that not only tells us when visitors come in, but as important, when they leave. Without that system, there is no telling who has left or when they are suppose to leave. Trump says the 9/11 Commission made this one of its highest priorities and last year half a million people over-stayed their temporary visas.

9. Turn off the jobs and benefits magnet. Immigration law is not just to protect us from criminals but from all aspects of American life, says Trump. In Trumps speech in Arizona he said, "The Center for Immigration Studies estimates 62% of households headed by illegal immigrants used some form of cash or non-cash welfare programs, like food stamps or housing assistance ... those who abuse our welfare system will be priorities for removal."

10. Reform the legal immigration system to serve the best interests of America and its workers. In Arizona, Trump said, "We've admitted 59 million immigrants to the U.S. between 1965 and 2015. Many ... have enriched our country. But we have an obligation to them and their children to control immigration ... to ensure assimilation, integration and upward mobility. The time has come for a new immigration commission to develop a new set of reforms ... to our system."

1. Select immigrants based on their likelihood of success in society and ability to be financially self-sufficient.

2. Chose immigrants based on merit, skill and proficiency.

3. New immigration controls to boost wages and ensure that open jobs are offered to American workers first.

What about this 10 point system is confusing or unclear? You either support it or you don't, but don't dance around it pretending lack of understanding or confusion. Obviously, one media guru has no inclination to report the truth, the whole truth.

And, one thing is very, very clear! The next President of the U.S. will appoint a new Supreme Court Justice and looking at the age of some on the Court now, perhaps more than one. Who do you want making those appointments? A conservative, up front, straight talking Donald Trump or Hillary Clinton who can't differentiate confidential information on her home computer and part of a Foundation with mixed reviews that also needs some vetting.

How do you explain his promise to take torture far beyond water boarding, or to solve international problems by the wholesale killing of our enemies? Does this bare any resemblance of the call from Jesus that we are of Christian morality that has shapes Donald Trump, I have failed to see it and you have failed to submit it.

Most sincerely, Charles Bayer candwbayer@verizon.net

We need more options and cials - to take action and build opportunities for our youth. We need more paths that will lead our kids to successful futures. College preparation is great, but it is not the only path to success. Trades and skills offer vast opportunities for millions in the next generation. We must address the lack of skills and trade problem for our kids' futures and for America's future.

In 2015 the Manufacturing Institute and Deloitte published a report The Skills Gap in Manufacturing 2015 and Beyond. This report states that "Over the next decade nearly 3.5 million manufacturing jobs need to be filled. The skills gap is expected to result in 2 million of those jobs going unfilled. The impact is significant with CEOs and manufacturing executives around the world identifying talent-driven innovation as the number one determinant of competitiveness." The National Association of Manufacturers published an article Competing to Win where they report these needs: (1) organize manufacturers to speak with one voice regarding the workforce needed to sustain and grow manufacturing; (2) engage and align key stakeholders - community leaders, education institutions and local and state offimomentum and build a system that delivers a sustainable pipeline of strong, mid-skilled manufacturing talent; and (3) promote the use of industry-recognized credentials awarded at the secondary and postsecondary levels, and encourage industry partnerships to better align curriculum and apprenticeship, internship, and work-based learning opportunities.

First Amendment Question

I am left with one question for Mr. Ogden who wrote "49ers Quarterback Colin Kaepernick won't stand for our national anthem. It's a Black Thing.

Actually it's a first amendment thing. Mr. Ogden gets to write his article and share his opinion without fear and Mr. Kaepernick ships in our schools. Cory will be a workforce advocate in Sacramento, fighting for workforce development programs and funding.

Developing our local workforce is the backbone of our economy. We are more than just machines and computers. Our economy is about people and the potential we can unleash. Now is the time to embrace skills and trade resurgence to protect and preserve the economy and our quality of life.

Please join me in supporting Cory Ellenson for State Assembly - 48th District. When elected, Cory will fight for more jobs with legislative workforce development programs. For more information please visit www.CoryEllenson.com.

Are These People for Real?

By George Ogden

I am awestruck how dumb some people are, especially those who are breaking the law.

When police asked to search Jason Pauchay's apartment for drugs, he was not a suspect-in fact, they were looking for someone else. That all changed when they got a look at how his name was listed on his cell phone: "Jason Pauchay Drug Dealer."

When Stephan Crane broke into the Ravelli Republic (Montana) newsroom, he used the computers to watch porn, check his Facebook and email accounts. Then Crane doused the office with a fire extinguisher, took some candy, and left. It wasn't difficult to find him because he left his account open on the computer.

Recently, a woman in Fresno, California, was stopped at a DUI checkpoint and the officer quickly realized that she was drunk. Officers indicated how they felt she was, she got irritated and she offered up this info: "My husband's right behind me, and he's even drunker than I am."

A man had suffered a heart attack and thought he was going to die. So he confessed to a 17year-old murder, only to find out he wasn't going to die. James Washington, of Nashville was arrested, went to trial, and then was sentenced to life in prison as a result.

Anthony Kenneth Mastrogiovanni was impersonating a police officer when he pulled over another car for speeding. The driver quickly figured out that Mastrogiovanni was not a police officer since he too, was a police officer. Mastrogiovanni was arrested for impersonating a police officer.

I thought this was rather stupid... Most people hate their mugshots even more than the picture on their driver's license, but a Florida man, Mack Yearwood, found a wanted poster, while on line, with his picture on it. He decided to download it and put on Facebook - Good job, as it helped the police bust him, Stuart police responded to a battery complaint one night, and when they arrived at the scene, suspect Yearwood wasn't there anymore. Trying to find out more about Yearwood, police hopped onto social media and found his Facebook page, on which he had proudly displayed his wanted poster out of Citrus County, whose officials were after him for probation violation on two battery charges. Police returned the next day and arrested Yearwood on the outstanding warrants. To add salt to the wound, and an extra dose of bad luck as Yearwood was taken into custody: He asked the officers if he could put on a pair of jeans strewn on the floor, and as he got ready, a bag of pot fell out of one of his pockets. Added onto his woes: he was charged for the weed as well.

Meet a real idiot. 17-year-old Jason Hayes, who is charged with kidnapping and robbing an old woman at gunpoint. Police say Hayes entered the victim's home through a window and woke her up by poking her with a gun. When she didn't have any cash to give him, he allegedly made her drive to an ATM. Police say he wanted $2,000, but the ATM would only let the victim withdraw $460. Hayes allegedly held the victim and her husband at gunpoint in their kitchen for another hour or so before telling the victim to meet him in a parking lot the following morning with $1,500.

"Not that we would believe that a robber would have ever showed up for a scheduled appointment, but it was something we had to cover," stated detective Splain. Not only did Hayes show up, but he was wearing the exact same clothes the victims described from the previous morning. Unfortunately for him, it was the police and not the victim who was waiting for him. Hayes allegedly had $363 and what appeared to be the victims' watch on him when he was arrested. Police say Hayes threatened to kill the couple multiple times, including if they went to the cops. They are "scared to death" of him. Hayes is facing 11 charges, including robbery and kidnapping, in connection with the incident and is being held as and was tried as an adult. These people are all around us.

How Many Times Can The Fed Cry Wolf?

Year to date, the FOMC has done a terrific job identifying economic risks, just as it has done considerable work refining its natural rate "now cast" and forecast. As a result, the FOMC overrode an apparent consensus among participants to raise rates three-to-five times this year.

Still, Fed officials never abandoned their normalization plan. Despite lower natural rate estimates from current quarter to long-run, participants continue to believe rate hikes (including one or two this year) are necessary to prevent inflation from skidding above 2%.

FOMC participants also believe surprise rate hikes must be avoided. They think financial markets have enough problems to deal with without sneak attacks from the Fed adding additional pressure. And, maybe they're right. The bloodbath in global markets in the first six weeks of this year was at least in part a reaction to the December's hike and threats of more to come. As a result, FOMC members have invested considerable effort into talking up the market odds of tightening before meetings this year, despite never following through with a hike.

Two reminders (included in the most recent FOMC statement) that the Fed intends to raise rates are (1) participants claimed risks to the US economy have diminished, and (2) for the first time since the Great Recession-the statement made no reference to slack in the labor market.

Since the Fed believes inflation comes from a combination of labor-market pressures and inflation expectations, lack of labor market slack is a big deal, suggesting most of the FOMC believes the economy has achieved full employment, making it just a little more pressing to raise rates then it was in June, when the FOMC thought we were close to - but not quite at - full employment.

The recent GDP report complicates the picture, however. GDP was better, but barely. Growth of 1.2% is still lousy. Worse still, the pattern of revisions back to the first quarter of 2013 leaves the unmistakable impression of an economy running on the fumes from monetary policy accommodation.

The bond market did not react to the recent Fed statement, probably because traders are tired of being fooled. It did react to the GDP report, however. Data-dependence has gained considerable weight in trader calculations of rate hike odds, while Fed predictions of future smooth sailing have been significantly discounted.

There is a downside of FOMC members talking up the market odds of a hike before every meeting just in case they decide they might want to raise rates. People will stop listening after awhile, even though the Fed could still move the needle. As the September meeting approaches, beware of FOMC participants promising a hike this fall or before the end of the year. Watch out too for explanations of what risks specifically have diminished and which remain. No one - except maybe Esther George, who wanted to hike in March and again in July - is likely to abandon the ambiguity of datadependent decision making and go all-in for a hike. But by the same token, they are all likely to emphasize the need to raise rates eventually, and the need to resume hikes soon, especially if the implied probability in fed funds futures remains as low as it is now.

PAYROLLS GAIN OF 150K CUTS MARKET ODDS OF A SEPT RATE HIKE

Nonfarm payrolls rose 151k in August, 29k less than the official Street consensus. July payrolls were revised 20k higher and June payrolls were revised 21k lower, for a net revision of -1k. All of the major ancillary indicators-the unemployment rate, hourly earnings and workweekwere also weaker than expected.

Bottom line: Bloomberg News' headline: "August Payrolls Not Enough for September Hike" sums up the gut reaction to the August jobs report. But be careful. The economy added 697k jobs in the past three months, an average monthly gain of 232k. Fed officials are not likely to be nearly as dismissive as Bloomberg's headline writers. Watch for FOMC participants to talk expectations of a rate hike back up in the weeks to come, prior to the next FOMC meeting.

In the meantime, the August Payroll rise was under the 12month average by exactly as much as July was over it. This was a weaker-than-expected report, but it was not a weak report. LIVE LOCAL, SHOP LO-CAL - THIS IS THE TIME OUR MERCHANTS NEED US I welcome your questions and Never forget 9-11, when America was attacked! All those lives mattered.

Something else to think about regarding the 9-11 terrorist attack.

There are families in other parts of the world who are currently under terrorist attacks. When America was attacked, we had the power to take action. Some countries don't have that power. Some don't have life insurance, homeowner's insurance, help from government or philanthropists to help them move on with life. Do you?

Since 9-11 was a terrorist act / act-of-war, did insurance companies pay the death benefits to the beneficiaries?

From what I understand, after extensive internet research, yes, insurance companies did pay the death benefits to the beneficiaries. Those companies that resisted finally complied when asked by President Bush to go ahead and pay. Nowadays, a number of insurance companies have added a clause that says they will not pay under similar circumstances. Those survivors with no insurance, or who were under-insured, were left with adjusting their lifestyle by, among other things, modifying plans for their children's education, and possibly altering their retirement plans. Some life insurance policies with cash accounts would make those funds available to the beneficiaries, and some properlyset-up annuities would still pay out to beneficiaries.

Can our small family business pay our life insurance premiums?

In general, yes, your family business can pay life insurance premiums, and take the allowed tax deduction. Life insurance can be set up to protect the business from financial loss while replacing a partner who dies, or the policy can help the business buy out the family members who would otherwise become (sometimes unwanted) partners. Either way, it's a good idea to have life insurance on those individuals who are instrumental in the operation of any business. The right life insurance policy, as well as annuities, can also become part of a retirement plan.

I have more than $50,000 in CDs that mature in October. I don't foresee needing this money anytime in the near future. Is there a better place to invest?

Definitely! You have a couple of different options that would give you the safety you're used to, with good returns. Some of my clients choose fixed-indexed annuities (not variable annuities), while others choose to purchase paid-up life insurance. Both can have tax-deferred growth. The advantage folks like about using life insurance as an investment are: 1. The cash account of this life insurance can be accessible, tax-free, to you if you find you do want it during your lifetime, 2. the amount of the life insurance benefit is more than the amount of money you pay into it, so you're leaving more to your beneficiaries, and 3. your beneficiaries will receive these funds in a timely manner, and income tax free!

CAN System...Your Car Has One!

I have written articles many times about that fact that your car is really a computer on wheels. They have up to 100 million lines of computer code and that is more than many jet fighters! The most basic of vehicles have a minimum of 30 microprocessorcontrolled devices. We call these ECU's (electronic control units). Luxury cars can have 100 ECU's! These processors make it difficult for the average person to work on their own vehicle but it makes it easier for auto repair shops, such as Certified Automotive Specialists, as they have made an investment in the right equipment and diagnostic tools in order to translate trouble codes and determine what is actually wrong with your vehicle. What do all these ECU's do? They help meet emissions and fuel-economy standards, do diagnostics, simplify design and manufacturing, reduce wiring, provide safety features, comfort and convenience. Controlling your vehicle's engine is the most processor-intensive job and the engine control unit is the most powerful computer in your vehicle. It gathers data from dozens of various sensors and knows all that is going on. It performs millions of calculations per second. The processor in your car runs more efficient code than that in your PC. Each module communicates problems to a central module. The problem is stored and then a technician can read the code using an off-board diagnostic tool. There seems to be more and more technology going into our vehicles each year so more and more computer code will be necessary. This is all part of keeping our environment cleaner and reducing the amount of accidents. As we are moving toward the commercialization of the self-driving car we will find this will increase a great deal. The CAN (Controller Area Network) also known as CAN Bus enables all the electronic control units to communicate with each other...without a host computer. This lets the vehicle's electronic components; control units, microcontrollers, devices, sensors, actuators, and many more talk to each other on a single or dual-wire network.

Your engine management electronic control unit is connected to the transmission electronic control unit, which is connected to the anti-lock braking electronic control unit, and so on! There are essentially two wires involved; a CAN High and a CAN Low. Why is this important? They act as a backup for each other in case one fails. This is why your car can continue to run just fine with the check engine light illuminated. This is also why we tell you not to keep on driving miles and miles with the check engine light on...it really is telling you that your car needs attention. You are already down to one wire...if the other one fails you have a problem! Next time your check engine light illuminates, make an appointment and let our diagnostic technicians get your car back to excellent heath. NOTICE OF PUBLIC REVIEW COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM DRAFT CONSOLIDATED ANNUAL PERFORMANCE EVALUATION REPORT (CAPER) FOR FISCAL YEAR 2015-2016

Pursuant to the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) regulations, the City of Baldwin Park has prepared the draft Consolidated Annual Performance Evaluation Report (CAPER) for the 2015-2016 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program Year.

The CAPER provides an assessment of the City's performance in meeting Fiscal Year 2015-2016 housing and community development goals as outlined in the previously adopted Fiscal Year 2015-2016 One-Year Action Plan. Additionally, the CAPER discusses changes the City anticipates making in the upcoming year as a result of the assessment of FY 2015-2016 annual performance.

In compliance with the City's approved Citizen Participation Plan and the Consolidated Plan implementing regulation 24 CFR 91.105, this notice is hereby given that the City of Baldwin Park has prepared the CAPER for FY 2015-2016. A copy of the CAPER is required to be made available to the public for review and comment for a fifteen (15) day period. The CAPER draft will be available for public review from September 8, 2016 to September 23, 2016, at the following locations:

- Baldwin Park City Clerk's Office, 14403 Pacific Avenue
- Baldwin Park Community Development Department, Housing Division, 14403 Pacific Avenue
- · Citv website at www.baldwinpark.com
- Baldwin Park Housing Department Facebook.

The City of Baldwin Park encourages citizen participation in the CDBG process. If you wish to comment on the CAPER, written comments will be accepted during the public review period and should be addressed to the Housing Division. If you have any questions, please contact Dean Huseby, CDBG Program Consultant at (818) 457-7767.

AVISO DE REVISIÓN PÚBLICA

PROGRAMA DE SUBSIDIOS GLOBALES PARA EL DESARROLLO COMUNITARIO (CDBG) BORRADOR DEL REPORTE DE LA EVALUACIÓN DEL DESEMPEÑO ANUAL CONSOLIDADO (CAPER) PARA EL AÑO FISCAL 2015-2016

En conformidad con los reglamentos del Departamento de Vivienda y Desarrollo Urbano de los Estados Unidos, el Ayuntamiento de la Ciudad de Baldwin Park ha preparado el borrador del Reporte de la Evaluación del Desempeño Anual Consolidado (CAPER, por sus siglas en inglés) del Programa de Subsidios Globales para el Desarrollo Comunitario (CDBG, por sus siglas en inglés) del Año Fiscal 2015-2016.

El CAPER proporciona una evaluación del desempeño y rendimiento del Ayuntamiento de las metas establecidas para la vivienda y desarrollo comunitario durante el Año Fiscal 2015-2015 tal y como se delineó en el Plan de Desempeño Anual 2015-2016 previamente adoptado. Este reporte a su vez expone cambios que el Ayuntamiento anticipa llevar a cabo durante los subsecuentes años debido al resultado de la evaluación del desempeño anual del Año Fiscal 2015-2016.

Conforme al Plan de Participación de los Ciudadanos aprobado y con la regla de implementación del Plan Consolidado 24 CFR 91.105, por medio de este aviso se notifica que el Ayuntamiento de la Ciudad de Baldwin Park ha preparado el CAPER para el Año Fiscal 2015-2016. Se requiere que una copia del CAPER se haga disponible al público para su revisión y comentarios por un período de quince (15) días. Top Five Reasons Businesses Base Real-Life Decisions On Research Research isn't just for the lab anymore. Now more than ever, businesses use research that's already out there-or conduct research that isn't-and apply it to real-life business situations. Dr. Hinrich Eylers, Executive Dean, School of Advanced Studies at University of Phoenix, has five reasons businesses should use research for real-life decisions.

1. Evidence-based decision making. Research can be the kev to a company making good business decisions. Today's leaders should have a strong foundation of research skills. Even if they aren't doing the research them-selves, they need to understand it.

2. Learn from others' successes and failures. There is no need to fly blind. You can use existing, relevant research results to learn from and make decisions about your own challenges.

3. Stronger buy-in. Convince stakeholders of the appropriateness of your decisions with data from a study applicable to the business problem. When you can demonstrate to your organization's leadership why you made a certain decision, they are more likely to support you or buy into your recommendations.

4. Stand on the shoulders of giants-don't reinvent the wheel. There's an army of smart people generating data out there; use it to generate your business. Don't reinvent the wheel if there is already relevant research that applies to your business case at hand.

Dr. Hinrich Eylers, Executive Dean, School of Advanced Studies at University of Phoenix, says company leaders need to under stand business research.

5. Don't be a dinosaur. Acknowledge that organizations are looking to use data.

innovation "Today's economy requires businesses to be nimble and responsive to demands, which requires leaders who possess the ability to identify new ways to improve operations and implement efficiencies to ultimately improve a company's bottom line," said Dr. Eylers. "In my view, a key ingredient is companies having employees who are trained as leaders and know how to conduct organizational, market and industry research that informs creative actions to influence policy and guide decision making."

At the University of Phoenix School of Advanced Studies, putting research to work is something doctoral students are empowered to do.

Take Dr. Victoria Trapp, a change-management professional for a leading multinational athletic wear provider, for example. After receiving a master's in sports administration and juris doctorate, Dr.

Trapp completed her doctorate in management and organizational leadership at the University of Phoenix School of Advanced Studies. Throughout her doctoral program, Dr. Trapp focused her research on the influence of participation in organized sports on leadership abilities of women in the Csuite. Today, she applies her research and education to infuse change leadership into her organization's culture and serves as a regular presenter on change leadership. Dr. Trapp notes her disposition to coaching and mentorship began at a young age and credits her education at University of Phoenix with helping her learn new ways to approach her work.

Schooling, Safety And Savings

A smart investment now could save taxpayers billions a year and make the nation a safer, better place to live.

The investment is in education for prisoners. It may seem strange but the numbers show why:

According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, approximately 95 percent of prisoners are eventually released. This amounts to around 700,000 prisoners sent out into communities every year.

Since many of them have less than a 6th grade reading level, practically no education, a criminal record and little in the way of marketable skills, up to 80 percent return to prison in three to five years. Considering American taxpayers spend $70 billion a year providing basic services to prisoners, by educating just 10 to 30 percent of them enough to keep them from coming back, taxpayers could save $60 billion a year and make their communities safer.

What's more, it helps the next generation grow up to be good citizens. Many of these prisoners are parents. Since 1991, the number of children with a mother in prison has more than doubled. The number of children with a father in prison has grown by 76 percent.

About half these parents were the main earners for their children before going to prison. That leaves more single-parent & Co., 2014) and the "Prison households and damaged family ties--exacerbating chronic childhood poverty. It also leaves the taxpayers paying for the economic, mental health, medical and child welfare services for the incarcerated parents' children.

That's why books such as "College for Convicts: The Case for Higher Education in American Prisons" (McFarland

Many Boomers Surprised By Debt In Retirement

If you're like most people, retirement means more time to travel, play with grandkids and experience greater personal satisfaction in everyday life. But as Baby Boomers begin to retire, many will experience a different reality-one marked by debt. Fortunately, there are ways to avoid being among them.

The Problem According to a new study commissioned by Bankers Life Center for a Secure Retirement, more than half of pre-retirees think they'll pay off their debts before retirement, but only a quarter of retirees actually are debt free.

eight in 10 middle-income Boomers currently have some debt, and nearly 25 percent have more than 20 years remaining on their mortgage.

"We tend to prepare for costs that we can anticipate," said Scott Goldberg, president of Bankers Life. "Most do not foresee the amount of debt they will carry into retirement and other unexpected expenses, such as long-term care and various health related costs. Our studies show that only about half of Boomers feel they have a strong understanding of financial matters to overcome these hurdles."

relied on pensions and Social Security for income during their golden years. These income streams used to be enough to The same study found that live on comfortably. Today, fewer companies are offering pensions and benefits from Social Security are getting leaner just as a greater number of Americans are retiring.

> But as Boomers leave the workforce at what looks like lightning speed, they may not be prepared to continue paying off debt or other unexpected expenses.

> According to the study, middle-income Boomers are unsure of the best ways to maximize their income and find additional sources of income during retirement. Nearly 90 percent express some concerns about making their money last in retirement.

"More than ever, it is crucial that Boomers take proactive steps in advance of retirement and recognize the options available while planning for a secure future," said Goldberg. "From annuities to long-term care insurance to investments, the options beyond Social Security and pensions are increasingly tangible for middle-income Boomers."

The Good News

Thanks to advances in medicine, retirees are living longer, more independent lives. Therefore, being financially prepared for long-term retirement is more important than ever.

More good news: It's never too late for Boomers to meet with a trusted financial advisor to prepare and take the correct precautions that can set them up for a more fulfilling experience in their golden years. (NAPSI)

A Celebration Of Life... Martha Legault, A Son's Testimony

By Ron Legault

COVINA - On August 2nd, 2016 at 10:20 P.M., Martha Legault left this world to be with Jesus. Martha was born on October 7th, 1916 in Longuiel, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Martha worked hard at many jobs here in the United States including Woolworths, Pharmaseal Labs in Irwindale, Haus Coffee Shop in Covina to help support her family.

Always with a cheerful smile on her face and a happy personality, mom would brighten the room with laughter. People were happy to be around Martha and you would find her pastime swimming at her home in Rancho Cucamonga. Her hobbies were going to the beach with her sons, painting landscaped pictures, swimming, making clothes and mittens for us when we were kids, including Easter hats for her self which we thought were funny, but are in style today.

We took mom to the best restaurants where she enjoyed herself and always loved having a great time. Her nieces; (Sandy Padilla and Linda Herndon) too would come over and off we all would go to a fabulous restaurant that Martha would enjoy. Always trying to educate herself, Martha learned to speak three different languages fluently, French, Spanish and English.

On February 18th, 2009 Martha appeared to be in need of assistance at which point she requested that she leave her home in Rancho Cucamonga to be with her sons Gerald Legault and Ron Legault of Covina so that they would take care of her. Both Gerald and Ron assisted their mother daily with her needs, and took her numerous places. October 1st, 2015 Martha suffered a heart attack that kept her in the hospital for a couple weeks. But she managed to bounce back and was shortly at home again going out different places and to the beach and to Calvary Chapel.

On Easter Sunday 2016, Martha was at Calvary Chapel attending services. Mom (age 99 at the time) kept saying several times that she wanted Jesus during the alter call. Martha, went up and accepted Jesus as her Personal Savior on that day. Truly a blessing from the Lord.

At almost 100 years old, Martha went to sleep on that August 2nd night and her soul went to be with the Lord. Both her sons Gerald and Ron were by her side in her Covina home when she went for her final sleep. The Lord had different plans for Martha. Jesus wanted Martha in Heaven so she could celebrate her 100th birthday there at the Eternal Banquet.

Martha actively attended services at Calvary Chapel Golden Springs located in Diamond Bar where on August 24th, 2016 at 10:30 a.m. services were held by Pastor Dale Goddard for her. Martha had five children: Norman Legault of Kanata, Canada, Gerald Legault and Ron Legault from Covina, Susan Thompson (deceased) Francine Karmann from West Covina, six grandchildren and eight Great grandchildren.

Thank you Calvary Chapel for your kindness with the services / reception and all the kind people that made things happen. We thank everyone that had the pleasure of meeting our mother. I'm sure that she put a smile on your faces. We thank Citrus Valley Hospice of Covina for their doctors, nurses and staff that helped our mother over the last several months. We thank the San Gabriel Valley Examiner and the staff, Eugene and Inday Moses that had the pleasure of meeting Martha Legault

Four Tips About Medical Alert Devices

All year round, sons and daughters of every age search for a unique and thoughtful gift for their dad to celebrate a birthday, Father's Day, Christmas and other holidays. For parents who live with chronic conditions, such as heart disease, diabetes or COPD, and may live alone or may be at risk of falling, gifts such as a medical alert device may be valuable-not only helping to keep them safer but giving them and the caregiver a greater peace of mind.

American talk show host and caregiver Leeza Gibbons recognizes the hesitation that parents have when this topic is raised. Gibbons encouraged her father, Carlos, to get a medical alert device after his own medical scare at home-he was diagnosed with coronary heart disease. After this, Gibbons and her siblings gave their father a Lifeline HomeSafe to help him retain his independence while prioritizing his safety. This gift later helped save his life when he had a sudden heart attack and needed to call for helpconvincing him to be in full support of wearing a medical alert device daily.

For caregivers who want to Talk show host Leeza Gibbons and her father Carlos.

It's never too early to have this broach the topic of medical alert devices, Gibbons offers four tips:

• Feel Confident in Your Choice. A medical alert service provides access to help for your loved ones and lets them remain independent and stay in their home, but it also helps you as a caregiver worry less, knowing they're safe.

• Know the Facts. Before having the conversation with her dad, she says, she did a lot of research-on brands, on seniors' risk of falling, and on the benefits of having a device. Being aware of these pieces of the puzzle will help you have an honest and informed discussion.

conversation. You don't know what the future holds but you can take action now and make sure the ones you love have the care they need should something happen. It's OK to let them know you're worried and that this is something that's as much for you as it is for them. · Connect With Other Caregivers. Reach out to other caregivers going through a similar situation-it only makes us all more knowledgeable and comfortable about having this important conversation with the ones we love.

Six Truths About Having A Health Care Career

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, health care jobs are projected to grow to 2.3 million from 2014 to 2024. That would suggest that now may be a good time to start preparing for those positions.

There are a few things you should know, however. Explains Dr. Mark Johannsson, D.H.Sc, M.P.H., academic dean, University of Phoenix® School of Health Services Administration, College of Health Professions: "For those considering a career in health care, there are more opportunities than ever before. As someone who has spent 29 years in the health care industry, I have discovered several 'truths' that are especially relevant and im-

Don't be reluctant to share yours. • Develop your EI—your emotional intelligence. Hone in on your "soft skills." Be confident in your strengths and acknowledge your limitations. Learn how to take and offer criticisms professionally.

Mind Your Maintenance

To make your car last, you have to put it first. Sticking to the maintenance schedule for your specific car keeps it running properly and protects you from expensive repairs. Here are three of the top items to consider to keep your car in tip-top shape. • Oil changes—This is probably THE most important thing you can do for your car. Skipping even one oil change can start damaging your engine. • Preventative maintenance-Fluids, spark plugs, drive belts and more all need to be checked and changed at certain intervals, especially on higher-mileage cars.

To keep your car running smoothly, be sure to keep up to date with its maintenance schedule.

portant for those interested in working in health care. Understanding and embracing these truths will position you for a long and successful career."

Dr. Johannsson's suggestions on how to be successful working in the health care industry include:

• Be flexible and adaptable. The health care industry is constantly changing. New discoveries can forever alter how patients with a chronic illness, or even what was once a terminal one, can be treated. You have to be able to roll with all the changes you encounter.

• Let each experience make

• Remember, "Rome wasn't built in a day." Most people in health care naturally want to help others. That can drive people to try to do too much in an impossibly short amount of time. The health care industry requires diligence and patience. You can be the most productive and helpful by being thoughtful about your work and measuring your outcomes.

• Realize how health affects everything. Don't let your perspective become myopic. Health care has enormous reach and your area is just one small piece of a larger puzzle. Step back and evaluate how what you're doing opportunities from a high level is a talent that will serve you both professionally and personally.

• Be open to new opportunities. Because of how quickly health care evolves, new doors may open themselves to you. You could find yourself exploring opportunities in educating the new generation of health care providers, or using your knowledge to benefit research trials or government programs.

"Throughout my career, I have applied my credentials and experience to client management, leadership, higher education, health care privacy, compliance, community planning, and professional staff development in multiple settings," Dr. Johannsson said. "The diversity of my experience is something I've used to create a strong foundation and a realistic approach to health."

WEST COVINA - If you get up there in years, don't for a minute think that it is over. This group of guys gives testimony to the fact that it may never be over.

This is the West Covina Senior Softball players that practice and play at Cameron Park in West Covina. There are three players that are over 80 years old. They are all seniors and they will give the younger guys a run for their money.

These guys come from all walks of life, including politicians. Right now they are not looking for more players, however, next year they will be looking for some younger players, maybe in their mid to late 70s. If you aren't doing anything some Friday morning, swing by and check them out. You will be impressed.
