GLENDORA -Citrus College paid tribute to trailblazing women throughout history, including U.S. Rep. Grace F. Napolitano, at a college luncheon to celebrate Women's History Month. The event, which included approximately 50 women leaders from communities throughout the San Gabriel Valley, featured keynote speaker, Dr. Elisabeth Ritacca, history faculty member at Citrus College. Dr. Ritacca presented "The History of Women's History," an overview of the emergence of women's history as a field.

According to Dr. Ritacca, as women became involved in various women's rights movements over the previous two hundred years, they also became more interested in their history. Ritacca highlighted changes within the field of women's history, saying, "The questions that future generations will ask will differ from our own, and thus the stories we tell today will be different from those told in the future." After her presentation Ritacca facilitated a short discussion with attendees about women whose stories they wanted to celebrate.

Guests also heard a special message of inspiration from Napolitano, who told her life story, from her childhood as the daughter of Mexican immigrants living in Brownsville, Texas, to her election to the United States Congress. She began her remarks by saying, "All of you are trailblazing women, because you are doing something others are not." Congresswoman Napolitano also offered the following advice: "If you run for elected office, you had better be prepared to dedicate your heart and soul, because that is what it takes."

In appreciation of Congresswoman Napolitano's vision and leadership, as well as her advocacy in support of students, Dr. Geraldine M. Perri, superintendent/president of Citrus College, presented a plaque to the congresswoman on behalf of Citrus College. In her remarks, Dr. Perri thanked Congresswoman Napolitano for the many individuals she has given a voice to throughout her career, including student veterans, students involved in STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) studies, and students in need of mental health services. "You are the embodiment of a trailblazer. Throughout the years, you have tirelessly contributed to the communities you serve and have been an exemplary role model and mentor to Citrus College students."

The Women's History Month Celebration Luncheon was the capstone event in collegewide activities to celebrate Women's History Month. Other activities included the screening of the film, Made in L.A. and a panel discussion featuring local trailblazing women, Dr. Geraldine M. Perri; Dr. Martha McDonald, vice president of student services, Citrus College; Dr. Devorah Lieberman, president, University of La Verne; and Rev. Karen Davis, councilmember, City of Glendora.

Questions on Illegal Immigration Interrupts Pro-Illegal Immigration Event Held By Congresswoman

Easter Egg Hunt And Activities At Via Verde Park Attracts Hundreds

SAN DIMAS - On Saturday, April 8, 2017 the Friends of Via Verde Park, and the City of San Dimas held an Easter Egg Hunt at Via Verde Park. There were also FREE activities for those attending, including a bouncer, face painting, balloons and of course pictures with the Easter

The event held Friday afternoon, April 14, held at Grace T. Black Auditorium, ended up in a shouting match, pushing and shoving, and a large police response to break up the fights. The Mayor ended up shutting down the meeting because it became a circus.

A number of people showed up questioning the right of the congresswoman to be spending our money on events like this and not supporting the laws that are already in place. People on both sides brought signs to the event.

Since this was a public forum and not a Council meeting, free speech is clear here. What many felt that the mayor should have done is to have those holding signs moved to the side of the room with their signs. However, Mayor Quintero basically stated that he was going to have the signs picked up which many protested that it would be a violation of free speech. This escalated both sides into a shouting match. It appeared the mayor lost control of the people that were attending. It appeared to be about 50-50 for those in support, and those not in support.

NO POST

El Monte Mayor Andre Quintero and Police try to break up an attack on a man who did not support illegal immigration.

There was already a large police presence in the town hall meeting, but things got out of hand. At one point a Hispanic lady attacked a white male and knocked his phone out of his hands. At that point he jumped up to see where his phone went and pointed out the lady to police only to be attacked by a large baldheaded male who pushed and shoved him away from his phone. The mayor was seen attempting to break up the fight by getting in between the two subjects as well as did the police officers. The victim of the assault was escorted from the town hall meeting.

He wanted to get his phone back which was on live stream and recording at the time. Another woman was seen picking up the phone via the live stream and stealing it. She did not turn it into the police. She was holding it as she was walking away with it still live streaming.

The victim was seen outside trying to make a police report on the two assaults. More police officers arrived with lights and sirens and they blocked off the street. It took a while to restore order, however there was chanting of "racist go home".

Overall, this type of event hosted by the congresswoman and the mayor did more damage than answer any questions about the illegals and undocumented individuals and their rights.

Many felt that it would've been more appropriate to have a town hall meeting that would assist those that are here illegally or undocumented on how to become citizens and to be in the US legally. Some hope that this was an education for the mayor and congresswoman for future events concerning immigration rights. Bunny.

The Easter Bunny was driven around the Via Verde area prior to arriving at the park for the Easter Egg Hunt. Escorted by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's and Fire Departments, the Easter Bunny handed out chocolate Easter eggs to children attracted by the caravan.

Volunteers from the HEROES Organization, Friends of Via Verde Park and the City of San Dimas Parks and Recreation Department kept things running smoothly for the two hour event. "When you see all those children with a big smile on their face and a basket full of Easter candy it just makes it all worth while," said Gary Enderle, event organizer. The event itself wouldn't have been possible without the support of its sponsors. This year's sponsors included Pediatric Dental Care of Via Verde, East Shore RV, Toyota of Glendora, Albertsons, and San Dimas Photography Studio, who provided the free pictures with the Easter Bunny. Other Via Verde businesses that helped sponsor were, Via Verde Dental, KinderCare, La Villa Kitchen, Dick McClelland Brokerage, Vons and Via Verde Prescription Shoppe. The event photographers were Stew Hunter and his grandson, Matt Warner. It was a great family event that left everyone glad that they attended.

It's time for that picture with the Easter Bunny.

American Legion POST 475 Honored by 18th District

GLENDORA - The American Legion POST 475 of San Dimas-Glendora was recently awarded an Honor Ribbon for exceeding 100% of their projected membership for the year 2017. Eighteenth District Executive Committeeman, David Whalen, presented the ribbon to POST Commander, Rick Leffler, as POST officers Joe Mercier, Adjutant, and Miles Butterfield, Chaplain, look on. The Honor Ribbon will be added to the many already gracing the POST flag. POST 475 was originally chartered in San Dimas in 1934 but was physically moved to Glendora some 20 years ago. It has been active in the San Dimas, Glendora and La Verne areas since that time. Although there have been varying levels of membership over the years, the level of participation has been waning as membership ages. This has prevented the POST from carrying out many of its stated goals of providing help to veterans and their families. Consequently, the POST is seeking younger, more active members in order to move the POST forward. Any qualified veteran interested in joining the organization to help fellow veterans may contact Commander Leffler at 626-533-6486 or Adjutant Mercier at 626-698-8153 or jnmaero@aol.com.

Bring your pills for disposal to the San Gabriel Police Department at 625 South Del Mar Avenue, San Gabriel, CA 91776. The DEA cannot accept liquids, needles or sharps, only pills or patches. The service is free home medicine cabinet. In adand anonymous; no questions asked. Last October, Americans turned in 366 tons (over 730,000 pounds) of prescription drugs at almost 5,200 sites operated by the DEA and more than 4,000 by its state and local law enforcement partners. Overall, in its 12 previous Take Back events, the DEA and its partners have taken in over 7.1 million pounds - about 3,500 tons - of pills.

This initiative addresses a vital public safety and public health issue. Medicines that languish in home cabinets are highly susceptible to diversion, misuse, and abuse. Rates of prescription drug abuse in the United States are alarmingly high, as are the number of accidental poisonings and overdoses. Studies show that a majority of abused prescription drugs are obtained from family and friends, often from the dition, Americans are advised that disposing of unused medicines - by flushing them down the toilet or throwing them in the trash - potential safety and health hazards.

Man Charged with 5 Counts of Attempted Murder in Covina Shooting Spree

By George Ogden

COVINA - Sean Vasquez, 20, who went on a shooting spree at the corner of Lark Ellen and Cyprus in Covina last week, he has been charged with five counts of attempted murder. He also took shots at the Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputies when they arrived on scene and most likely will be charged with attempted murder of police officers as well. He also has seven counts of assault with a firearm on police officers as well.

Vasquez, who is filled with tattoos and believed to have gang affiliations, was doing a live stream on Facebook during the attack and is actually seen shooting at deputies as they arrived. It is almost a miracle that nobody got hurt.

The deputies had every right to use deadly force to keep the community safe; however they worked diligently with the SWAT team to take the suspect into custody without killing him. A lot of credit has been given to all of the first responders that were able to make this happen and to make a safe arrest.

It has been said, that Vasquez, if convicted, can be sentenced up to 200 years to life in state prison. Originally, it was thought that the bail had been set at $10 million; however he's being held with no bail.

MENTAR

Trump Takes on the U.S. E.P.A.

President Trump has issued an Executive Order to curtail the overreach and power grabbing U.S. EPA. In California we've seen the EPA rules and regulations constrain the productivity and financial stability in the Central Valley and impact the cities in Los Angeles County putting all of them close to bankruptcy.

When President Trump signed the Executive Order, he said:

"The EPA's so-called "Waters of the United States" rule is one of the worst examples of federal regulation, and it has truly run amok, and is one of the rules most strongly opposed by farmers, ranchers and agricultural workers all across our land. It's prohibiting them from being allowed to do what they're supposed to be doing. It's been a disaster. The Clean Water Act says that the EPA can regulate "navigable waters" — meaning waters that truly affect interstate commerce ... "

For years the EPA has been supported and coerced by former President Barack Obama and the democrats for more "clean" with no demand for a clear definition of what clean is, what the EPA jurisdictional authority is and doing this using the 1972 Clean Water Act and a multitude of court decisions.

The battle between U.S. E.P.A. and the farmers of this country has been on-going since an amendment to the Clean Water Act was proposed revising the definition of the EPA's role and WOTUS – Waters of the U.S. That battle has become the battle of Los Angeles County and the cities in L.A. County when directed by US EPA to begin to implement the MS4 regulations at a cost of plus or minus $20 billion.

The Clean Water Act provides EPA can regulate "navigable waters." Most of us think navigable waters means something you can float a boat on ... oceans, rivers, lakes. But a few years ago U.S. EPA decided to expand their jurisdictional authority in the Clean Water Act by declaring it had the authority to monitor everything from irrigation ditches on farmland to puddles in parking lots.

Two years ago, despite the outcry during hearings concerning the amendment that would redefine Waters of the U.S. in the Clean Water Act, then President Barack Obama signed the rule expanding the definition of "navigable waters" to include "intermittent streams" or streams that sometimes had water in them and sometimes didn't have water in them.

Like rainwater that sometimes fills our parking lots and streets and drains to the storm drains or flood control channels into our settling basins, then into our Main San Gabriel Basin providing us with drinking and irrigation water.

U.S. EPA has required cities and counties to obtain a NPDES permit to measure and control discharges from pipes, manmade ditches and discharges from industrial and municipal sources, including parking lots, into surface waters. Cities have spent time and money implementing the order and creating plans with no clear assurance the US EPA has the authority to issue that directive to local government.

U.S. EPA under Phase II of NPDES, called MS4, or Municipal Separate Storm Sewer System, U.S. EPA issued an order requiring urbanized areas, like cities and counties, to create a Storm Water Management Program (SWMP) to reduce the contamination of storm water runoff from their jurisdiction to storm drains/channels/rivers and ultimately to the ocean. Cities in Los Angeles County are the only ones required at this time to take those steps.

Local electeds and city managers called a meeting held at West Covina City Hall with huge numbers thrown around the room and all of those numbers had dolHernandez, (West Covina D-22J), Chair, San Gabriel Valley Caucus. Senator Ed Hernandez promised to find a solution for cities under the burden of finding the hundreds of millions of dollars to implement the US EPA MS4 mandated regulations.

One of the solutions that has come forward is from the legislators in Sacramento and it is SB 231 by Senator Hertzberg (D-Van Nuys). Unfortunately, that proposal is another tax. Hertzberg proposes to change the definition of sewer service to include stormwater. First, Prop 218 gives voters the right to vote on new taxes with three exceptions: trash, water and sewer service. SB 231 would change the definition of sewer service to include stormwater despite the 2002 appeals court ruling that stormwater was not included in these exceptions. SB 231 would allow local governments to be the fall guys and to charge property owners for the cost of implementing the federal EPA MS4 mandate. If that passes, it could cost each of us homeowner $1,200 to $1,400 each year on their property tax bills.

When signing that Executive Order, President Trump said:

[The WOTUS amendment] ... was a massive power grab. The EPA's regulators were putting people out of jobs by the hundreds of thousands, and regulations and permits started treating our wonderful small farmers and small businesses as if they were a major industrial polluter. They treated them horribly."

"In one case in a Wyoming, a rancher was fined $37,000 a day by the EPA for digging a small watering hole for his cattle. His land. These abuses were, and are, why such incredible opposition to this rule from the hundreds of organizations took place in all 50 states."

"With today's executive order, I'm directing the EPA to take action, paving the way for the elimination of this very destructive and horrible rule."

And, hopefully relieve the L.A. County cities and homeowners of the financial burden of implementing the MS4 rules of an out of control bureaular signs in front of them. Front cracy pushed forward by a liberal

The Destruction Of The American Dream

I grew up with the deeply planted dream that had shaped America. We were a nation of immigrants, including the Bayers who came here from southern Germany, and the MacDonalds who came from Scotland. We were, and still are, a fairly young nation when compared to the lands from which we had come. My forebears, like most American families, had been captured by the dream that was articulated in the poem enshrined at the Statue of Liberty.

"Give me your tired, your poor,

Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, The wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,

I lift my lamp beside the golden door!'

Emma Lazarus

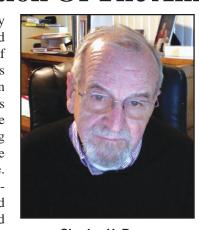

More than two centuries ago the dream had been made into a political reality in a Constitution. This dream had been planted in the fertile soil of democracy. Ours was to be as Lincoln later put it, a nation governed of, for and by the people. The Constitution was based on the proposition that all of us were created equal and endowed with unalienable rights. There were to be no aristocrats, but a community of equal citizens who cared deeply about each other and each other's welfare. Nobody was to be left out. Kindness and a mutual generosity were woven into the fabric that was America. While there was plenty of room for those who were smart enough or hard-working enough to prosper, even that right was embodied in an egalitarian ethos.

We belonged to the land, from sea to shining sea, and we pledged to take care of it for ourselves and for those who would come after us. Slowly the dream was made incarnate in laws that guaranteed universal suffrage, the rights of women, infants, chil-

Olympic Champion.... Jim Thorpe just may have been the greatest athlete of all time, an of the town. But in January 1913, athlete who excelled in track and field, baseball, football and even ballroom dancing. He grew up in the rural Indian territory of Oklahoma and attended Carlisle Indian Industrial School in Pennsylvania. Thorpe was a natural athlete and his skills showed while playing football, baseball and competing in various track and field events. Competing against better equipped and trained track athletes, Thorpe not only held his own but defeated all his rivals as well. In 1912, he was selected to represent the United States in the 1912 Olympics and won the Gold Medal in both the decathlon and pentathlon. dren, the poor, the disabled, and anyone needing a hand up.

Along the way there were several disastrous wrong turns. We systematically slaughtered those persons who had been here for centuries prior to our arrival. We polluted the dream by slavery, a bloody civil war and Jim Crow Laws. And from these misadventures we have not yet fully recovered. But the embodiment of the dream has persisted.

While we were to be the world's lighthouse, calling peoples everywhere to examine the dream, we were not to be engaged in the exploitation of other nations, nor were we to exercise political, military or economic hegemony over them, or make them servants of our national interests. "America first" was not to become our version of "Deutschland uber alles." While we have not always been faithful in following that dream, it has continued to re-emerge after it has been smothered in the name of patriotism. While no political party has perfectly exemplified the dream, it has often been refocused by "the better angels of our nature."

Consider the shock of discovering that an incompetent egomaniac has attempted to destroy that dream, and is supported by a collection of misguided followers who put party over rationality. These beguiled pawns do not now know how to get out of the quagmire they are unsure how they got into.

It was no secret during the campaign that Donald Trump was a narcissist and a demagogue who used fear and dishonesty to appeal to the worst in American voters. The Times called him unprepared and unsuited for the job he was seeking, and said his election would be a "catastrophe."

Still, nothing prepared us for the magnitude of this train wreck. Like millions of other Americans, we clung to a slim hope that the new president would turn out to be all noise and bluster, or that the people around him in the White House would act as a check on his worst instincts, or that he would be sobered and transformed by the awesome responsibilities of office.

President Trump has taken dozens of real-life steps that, if they are not reversed, will rip families apart, foul rivers and pollute the air, intensify the calamitous effects of climate change and profoundly weaken the system of American public education for all. His attempt to de-insure millions of people who had finally received healthcare coverage ... and his projected enactment of a massive transfer of wealth from the poor to the rich ... and he has proceeded with his efforts to defang the government's regulatory agencies and bloat the Pentagon's budget even as he supposedly retreats from the global stage.

In the weeks to come I will be detailing what I believe to be the central values that those of us committed to the dream must continue to honor.

He died a broke and desolate man, the complete opposite of the stature he achieved with his athletic greatness. In 1982, seventy years after his medal were taken from him, the IOC decided to return a replica set of Olympic medals to Thorpe's family. The rules of being an amateur had changed and Thope's actions in 1910 were no longer considered in violation of IOC and AAU rules. ## Control Your Darn Kids. What's Wrong with Parents Today?

Recently, after a Commission meeting in West Covina, we met at one of our fine restaurants in the area to grab something to eat. A Councilman, a Commissioner and I sat down for a meal at Denny's. We were surprised to see how busy it was. Large groups of nicely dressed people were coming in to have a quiet meal. However, across the room there was a family of six. The parents and four kids.

I know different cultures have different ways of dealing with things, but this was completely unacceptable. They had four kids, with maybe the oldest being around seven or eight years old.

The parents could not care less about what their kids did in the restaurant nor did they care about the people around them and the servers that were working. They let their kids scream at the top of their lungs, run loose throughout the restaurant and compromising the safety of the elderly and the servers by running wild. They did not supervise their chil-

These are the same children that will become adults later on and defy authority and most likely end up in our jail system. They let their kids run throughout the restaurant with the girl at the table screaming at the top of her lungs without any parental direction at all. The screamer, I guess was practicing for her future PMS episodes when she gets older. She was freaking loud and she was across the room bothering all of us. lutely nothing. At one point the kids ran back into the cooking area. This is where the servers have hot meals, coffee and are proceeding to carry food out to the customers. They were extremely busy this night. And again, the parents did not give a damn.

As far as I was concerned, these parents couldn't be ruder if they tried. Oh did I say parents, excuse me, I just misrepresented them.

As I made rather loud comments about their kids, the adults never picked up on it or didn't care. These people should've never have been parents in my opinion, because they are not. These were just two people that helped pollute a society of uncontrollable brats.

Most restaurants have the right to refuse service, and in my opinion, this is what should have been done for the protection of those patrons in the restaurant as well as their employees. Everyone was extremely lucky that night that somebody didn't trip over one of these little monsters and get hurt with either hot scalding food or breaking some bones. Let's not forget the injuries that could've happened to the young ones because the parents didn't retain responsibility whatsoever.

What is wrong with some of these parents today? I guess this is the future of America we must live with it.

Thorpe was part Irish, French, Sac, Fox and Potawatomi heritage but had little money to afford a good legal team to challenge the accusations. ## 60 Acts Of Kindness Campaign Launches In San Gabriel Valley

Goldrich Kest Marks 60-Year Milestone By Helping Less Fortunate

SAN GABRIEL VALLEY -Known for its many San Gabriel Valley apartment complexes including San Gabriel Villa, Fairvalley Villa, Las Palmas, Oak Park North, Walnut Ridge Apartments and Windwood Apartments, Goldrich Kest, one of the state's largest real estate development and management companies, is celebrating its 60th anniversary by launching "60 Acts of Kindness" campaign.

The company is seeking submissions from those in need who need a boost to improve their lives and/or the lives of their families and communities. Perhaps one's bicycle was stolen and that was their primary mode of transportation to and from work, a student needs a computer to help her with her studies, a senior citizen requires a wheelchair but lacks the funds to purchase one or a single mom needs help with childcare, etc.

"Goldrich Kest was built on recognizing "Goldrich Kest was built on recognizing and fulfilling the needs of a wide spectrum of people and philanthropy has been a bedrock of our 60-year history," said company President Carole Glodney. "We are excited to launch 60 Acts of Kindness and look forward to continuing our mission of helping those in the communities we serve."

To be considered for an "Act of Kindness", send a concise onepage description of your need to 60Acts@frankgroffinc.com

The Latest Conflict Between Markets And Fed Policy

One would think the Fed would like to get out of the spotlight and just read the data, meet every 45 days to decide to raise (or not raise) rates, state their findings, and then return to their cozy offices. That's how the Fed operated in the past. There was no pre-FOMC forecast, nor a litany of Fed Governor speeches at every high-dollar luncheon spanning the country. Although many of the functions the Fed conducts are routine, the big difference today from "years gone by" is how the Fed fails to speak with one voice. As a result, investors have to play a guessing game about Fed policy, resulting in more market volatility.

This past Friday the 10-year Treasury briefly traded under 2.3% before reversing higher, leaving U.S. Treasuries little changed. Some of last week's key U.S. economic data fell short of expectations (like the ISM Services index and non-farm payrolls). However, the U.S. GDP growth rate for the fourth quarter of 2016 was finalized at a +2.1% (seasonally-adjusted annual rate), revised up from the prior estimate of 1.9%. GDP forecasts for the first quarter had been all over the place with the Atlanta Fed's model forecasting 1.2% while the New York Fed's model shows 2.9% growth.

It's only the first week of baseball season and the Fed threw the market a sharp curve ball, bringing up the idea of reducing the central bank's $4.5 trillion balance sheet instead of holding assets to maturity as was the conventional thinking. This could have a material effect on future rates. New York Fed President Dudley said that the Fed could potentially pause rate hikes once it began that process. Other Fed officials have not discussed a serious pause, with nine policy makers seeing three or four rate hikes in 2018 on top of the generally-expected three rate hikes this year. Those forecasts do not suggest any kind of "pause" ahead, so perhaps Dudley is a minority of one.

Over the course of history going back to 1870 - the peak 10year Treasury rate was in September, 1981, at 15.3%. This led to a 35-year bull market in bonds, taking rates down to an all-time low yield of 1.5% in July 2016. In the 150 years since the Civil War, the mean (arithmetical average) rate was 4.58%, while the median (that point at which half the rates lie above and half below) was lower, at 3.87%. We are currently well below the mean and median, with a closing 10year Treasury rate of 2.30% last Friday.

Interest rates have been down so low for so long that the thought of the 10-year Treasury reverting back to its historical mean of 4.58% sounds very unlikely. That's about 2.38% higher than where the 10-yr currently trades. However, if the economy is humming on all cylinders in a couple of years, raising rates may not be a major issue as it would certainly provide the swelling numbers of retirees a decent savings rate and lofty bond vields.

Financial markets have been living the dream of an ultra-low interest rate market with low inflation, but now both are returning to a more normal level of 2%+. Investors should accept the possibility that interest rates may normalize in the coming years, given a healthier economy.

In her March press conference, when Chair Yellen said nothing has been decided with regard to the balance sheet, it turns out she meant nothing final had been decided. The March FOMC minutes laid out several scenarios for ending balance sheet reinvestment and clarified a few significant points. From the minutes, we know balance sheet normalization is likely to start toward the end of this year. Based on clues in the minutes and confirmation from San Francisco Fed President Williams, it should finish in about five years. The most important revelation is that the program is likely to be tapered, which will prevent a significant shock from an avalanche of paper rolling off in 2018. FOMC participants want to make the process gentle, predictable and as trouble free as possible. They are still sensitive to the financial market and the possibility of real economic damage. Once the balance sheet starts shrinking and everyone gets used to the idea, the Fed wants it to be background noise, something traders don't even think about.

In short, demand for U.S. dollars in the public domain alone implies that the Fed will need a much larger balance sheet than it had before the 2007-2008 financial crisis. The Fed would do well by the markets to explain these realities in rational terms - perhaps in conjunction with marketmoving headlines at a post-FOMC press conference. Two things would happen. Investors would better understand the scope and scale of the Fed's intentions and the stock market would likely enjoy a smoother ride.

Your Money - Ask Julia

My wife is employed parttime, and I am have been selfemployed for over 5-years. We want to purchase a home. We're being told I'll need to show 2years' tax returns. My income last year was considerably higher than the previous year, so they say we have to wait another year. By then, housing prices and interest rates will probably be much higher. What can we do?

They want to see that your income is "reliable" and that there's a great probability that you will be able to continue making the mortgage payments. There are some lenders who only look at 1-year tax return, especially when you have been in the same line of business for a number of years and it looks like you'll continue. Also remember that there are many loan programs, both fixed interest and adjustable, and downpayments from as low as 1-percent (sometimes matched by 2percent by a lender) for a conventional loan. There are VA loans with zero down-payment. And there are FHA loans.

I'm not sleeping well at night, thinking about what would happen to my retirement savings if the stock market took a dive. What should I do?

There are other places you could put your money, but you'd have to be willing to sacrifice some of the highest potential returns that could be possible in the stock market. In turn, you would gain the following advantages: You could have safety for your investment dollars, along with a promise that you cannot lose your investment (based on the strength of the company). Your gains could be locked in annually. You could possibly enjoy deferred taxes or even no income taxes. And, you could potentially receive lifetime income.

We're considering long-term care insurance. Some friends say it isn't worth it; others say they are very happy they have a policy. What do you have to say about it?

Differences of opinion usually come from different experiences. The friends who have long-term care insurance have probably seen, or personally experienced, the financial burden that befalls those folks (and their families) without an LTC insurance policy. If you are financially able, and you've decided that's where you want to spend your money, and your heirs' inheritance, then go ahead and consider self-insuring. At this time, in California, you can expect to pay between $45,000 and $65,000 per year per person. In 20 years, the cost is expected to be over $100,000 per year. The average stay in a nursing home is 5 years. On the other hand, if you are planning to rely on Medicaid/ MediCal, then you might want to determine when you think you might need this form of government welfare for your nursing home care, and set the date to spend-down your assets to coincide with the government's compulsory 5-year look back period. If you have other plans for your money and assets, you might want to consider long-term care insurance. Long-term care insurance premiums can be tax-deductible (within published limits). There are differences in the plans offered, so make sure to do your research.

My business partner and I are concerned that if something happened to the other, the survivor might not be able to keep the business going while looking for a competent replacement. What can we do?

The most common way to accomplish what you want is for the business to buy life insurance on each partner, with the business as the beneficiary. The expense of the life insurance policies can be a write-off as a business expense. Some insurance can be set up to supply retirement income, too.

Fake Tax Payment Checks Lead to Arrest and Conviction of Bogus Cars Through The Ages: 1931-1960 Home Loan Business Operator

SACRAMENTO – A Tax Recovery and Criminal Enforcement (TRaCE) Task Force investigation led to the prosecution and conviction of Carlo Hamrahi, 44, of Santa Clarita. His issuance of fake checks led to the discovery of his fraudulent home loan modification scheme for which he was convicted of two felony counts of grand theft and a white collar crime enhancement resulting in losses exceeding $100,000 on April 6, 2017, in Los Angeles County Superior Court in Norwalk. He was sentenced to three years state prison and ordered to pay $140,000 in restitution to his victims.

gan after the Board of Equaliza- es by fifty percent, lowering their tion (BOE) received fraudulent checks totaling nearly $900,000 issued by Hamrahi. After BOE discovered the checks were bogus, the TRaCE Task Force executed a search warrant at Hamrahi's home in March 2015. This turned up evidence that Hamrahi, using the alias Roberto Colleoni, was operating Colleoni Enterprises, a company offering home loan modifications.

TRaCE task force agents found that Hamrahi induced numerous unsuspecting homeowners to enter into home loan modifications, baiting them with promises of reducing their mortgage balancinterest rate by two percent, and extending payment terms to forty years in duration all while providing a money back guarantee.

Hamrahi collected fees and upfront money from the trusting homeowners, giving the appearance that the loan modifications had been executed to the extent of forging deeds and opening escrow accounts. Hamrahi even sent them fraudulent "payoff" checks containing stolen identities, which were eventually returned by banks as fraudulent. No homeowners received legitimate home loan modifications under Hamrahi's scheme.

Glendora Masonic Lodge To Celebrate Public School Month

By Kaveh Shokravi

GLENDORA - The Glendora Masonic Lodge invites everyone in celebration of Public School Month on behalf of the Grand Lodge of California.

In 1970, as California's public schools struggled to survive teacher shortages, California Masons led a community response. The fraternity proclaimed Public Schools Week, rallying communities in support of schools and raising the funds needed to improve the system. The Mason's of California still continue that tradition with Public Schools Month every April.

This year the Glendora Masonic Lodge is proud to honor four local students who overcame great obstacles, in their lives, to continue to strive in the educations.

The date is April 26th, 2017.
