ORDINANCE NO. 2025

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDORA, CALIFORNIA, AMENDING CHAPTER 9.60 OF THE GLENDORA MUNICIPAL CODE ENTITLED SEX OFFENDER RESIDENCY

THE CITY COUNCIL City of Glendora, California

WHEREAS, in November 2006, Proposition 83, commonly known as Jessica's Law, was passed, amending California law with regard to residency restrictions for registered sex offenders. As a result, Penal Code Section 3003.5 was amended to prohibit more than one registered sex offender on parole from residing in any single-family dwelling (unless legally related by blood, marriage, or adoption), and to prohibit registered sex offenders from residing within 2,000 feet of a public or private school, or park, where children regularly gather. Additionally, it provided that "nothing in this section shall prohibit municipal jurisdictions from enacting local ordinances that further restrict the residency of any" registered sex offender; and

WHEREAS, based on the authority provided by Penal Code Section 3003.5, many California cities, including Glendora, adopted sex offender residency restrictions. In 2009, the City adopted Ordinance No. 1923, adding Chapter 9.60, entitled Sex Offender Residency Restrictions, to the Glendora Municipal Code. The Ordinance prohibits any person required to register as a sex offender under California law from establishing a residence in a residential exclusion zone (i.e., within 2,000 feet of a public or private school, park, child care center, or recreational facility) in Glendora. The Ordinance further prohibits a registered sex offender from residing in (1) any dwelling within 2,000 feet of a school, or a park where children regularly gather; (2) a one-family dwelling already occupied by another sex offender unless the two are related; (3) a two-family dwelling already occupied by another sex offender unless the two are related; (4) any dwelling unit in a multiple-unit dwelling if any separate unit in that multiple-unit dwelling is already occupied by another sex offender; (5) any room in a hotel, motel or inn if any separate room in that same hotel, motel or inn is already occupied by another sex offender; and (6) any mobile home within a mobile home park if any other mobile home in the same park is already occupied by a sex offender. Since the Ordinance's enactment, the City has no record of the Ordinance

WHEREAS, Jessica's Law prompted a series of lawsuits throughout the State of California. In particular, two court decisions, one from the California Supreme Court (In re Taylor (2015) 60 Cal.4th 1019) and one from the Court of Appeal (People v. Lynch (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 524) have called into question the constitutionality of certain sex offender residency restrictions and the scope of the authority granted to cities under Penal Code Section 3003.5; and

WHEREAS, in March 2015, the California Supreme Court decided In re Taylor. The Court held that the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation's ("CDCR"), blanket enforcement of the 2,000 foot residency restrictions in Penal Code Section 3003.5 against sex offender parolees in San Diego County was unconstitutional. (In re Taylor (2015) 60 Cal.4th 1019, 1023.) The Supreme Court unanimously held that this Penal Code Section 3003.5 unconstitutionally infringed on the sex offender's rights of liberty and privacy, was not rationally related to the legitimate governmental interest of protecting children from sexual predators, and violated their right to be free of unreasonable, arbitrary and oppressive official action; and

WHEREAS, the Supreme Court observed the following facts with respect to registered sex offenders in San Diego County:

- Registered sex offender parolees are unlikely candidates to rent single-family homes; they are most likely to be housed in apartments or low-cost residential hotels;
- By virtue of the residency restrictions alone, registered sex offender parolees are effectively barred from access to approximately 97 percent of the existing rental property that would otherwise be available to them;
- The remaining three percent of multifamily rental housing outside the exclusion areas is not necessarily available to registered sex offender parolees for many reasons, including low vacancy rate, high rents, and the unwillingness of some landlords to rent to such persons;
- · Blanket enforcement of the residency restrictions had "greatly increased homelessness" among registered sex offenders on parole in the County;
- Rigid application of the residency restrictions results in large groups of registered sex offender parolees having to sleep in alleys and riverbeds, a circumstance that did not exist prior to Jessica's law;
- The residency restrictions place burdens on registered sex offender parolees that are disruptive in a way that hinders their treatment, jeopardizes their health and undercuts their ability to find and maintain employment, significantly undermining any effort at rehabilitation; and
- · The residency restrictions hamper "efforts to monitor, supervise, and rehabilitate such parolees in the interests of public safety, and as such, bears no rational relationship lo advancing the state's legitimate goal of protecting children from sexual predators.": and

WHEREAS, most recently, in August 2016, the Court of Appeal held that the residency restrictions in Penal Code Section 3003.5 apply only to parolees for the period of their parole term. (People v. Lynch (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 524, 528). Given the court's rationale, the ruling most likely means that any further restrictions which a local government may impose also would apply only to parolees for the period of their parole term. Therefore, Penal Code Section 3003.5, would, not, provide express authority for cities to impose residency restrictions on sex offenders who are no longer on parole. The City's Ordinance currently applies to "any person who is required to register under Section 290 of the California Penal Code, regardless of whether or not that person is on parole or probation." As such, the City's Ordinance likely is broader than permitted under the Court of Appeal's narrow interpretation of Penal Code Section 3003.5(c); and

WHEREAS, in addition, after the passage of Jessica's law, various studies, reports and statements from the National Criminal Justice Association, the Sex Offender Supervision and GPS Monitoring Task Force created to assist the CDCR, and the California Sex Offender Management Board, which operates under the jurisdiction of the CDCR, suggest that blanket enforcement of the 2,000 foot sex offender residency restrictions have not improved public safety and have compromised the effective monitoring and supervision of sex offender parolees. The evidence suggests that residency restrictions have the unintended consequences of increasing homelessness among registered sex offenders, thereby actually threatening public safety. Convicted sex offenders who are homeless are not only more difficult to supervise than those who have established residences, they are also more likely to re-offend; and

WHEREAS, the Supreme Court, in the In re Taylor decision, cited the 2010 CDCR report that found Jessica's Law (Penal Code § 3003.5) increased the rate of homelessness among registered sex offenders on parole, which makes it more difficult to monitor and supervise the sex offenders and puts the public at risk. The Court noted the report found: "homeless sex offenders put the public at risk. These offenders are unstable and more difficult to supervise for a myriad of reasons.'... Ultimately, the report recommended that 'residence restrictions as set forth in Penal Code section 3003.S(b) should be repealed in favor of targeted residence restrictions." The Court also stated: "CDCR has conceded in its briefs before this court that 'the evidence ... demonstrated that the dramatic increase in homelessness has a profound impact on public safety,' and that 'there is no dispute that the residency restrictions have significant and serious consequences that were not foreseen when it was enacted.""; and

WHEREAS, over the past several months, numerous California cities with ordinances similar to Glendora's have repealed or suspended their sex offender residency restrictions including Arcadia, Bell Gardens, Corona, Fullerton, Long Beach, Norwalk, Santa Fe Springs, Tustin, Temecula, Seal Beach, Covina, Pomona and numerous others, Upwards of over 40 cities in California have repealed their sex offender residency restriction ordinances. In virtually every case these lawsuits have been successful in getting the cities to repeal or revise their ordinances; and

WHEREAS, Glendora has been sued by an individual challenging the constitutionality of Glendora's Ordinance. (John Doe v City of Glendora, United States District Court, Case No.: 2:17-cv-03494-GW-GJS); and

WHEREAS, given these recent court decisions and the weight of the growing evidence from experts in the field, including those experts within California state government, suggesting that policies that further restrict sex offender residency could threaten public safety in our community, it is therefore recommended that the City amend Chapter 9.60 of the Glendora Municipal Code, relating to sex offender residency by striking a balance between current case law and child safety, and bring the City into compliance

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDORA, CALIFORNIA, DOES HEREBY ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS: SECTION 1. Chapter 9.60 of the Glendora Municipal Code, entitled "Sex Offender Residency Restrictions" is hereby deleted and repealed in its entirety. SECTION 2. A new Chapter 9.60, entitled "Sex Offender Residency Restrictions" is hereby added to the Glendora Municipal Code to read as follows:
