How Some Of The Toughest Guys On The Planet Can Get Help Caring For The Ones They Love

ber who is aging or ill can be tough—but you don't have to do it alone. Just ask actor Danny Trejo, who stars in a new PSA (public service advertisements) campaign supporting male caregivers.

"I've helped care for a friend of mine who had cancer, so I know how hard it can be," explained Trejo.

The Facts: Men Are Providing Care, Too

Men represent 40 percent of the more than 40 million unpaid family caregivers in the U.S., representing 16 million sons, husbands and friends caring for an adult loved one in need.

Men are doing more than just managing finances or running errands. Sixty-three percent of male caregivers are the primary caregiver for their loved one, according to AARP, the nation's largest nonprofit, nonpartisan organization dedicated to empowering Americans age 50 and older. Many of these male caregivers help their loved ones with personal care such as eating, bathing and dressing, as well as medical and nursing tasks. More than half find it difficult to help

Taking care of a family mem- loved ones with these intimate care needs and feel unprepared.

> To help family caregivers, AARP and the Ad Council launched the Caregiver Assistance Campaign, directing people to free caregiving resources at aarp.org/caregiving. The latest PSAs are specifically targeted to men, because they are less likely to see themselves as caregivers or to reach out for help.

> Celebrating the inner strength of caregivers, the TV ads feature Danny Trejo, an actor known for his "tough guy" persona. While Trejo performs feats of strength and daring, a caregiver performs acts of care for his father, such as preparing dinner and helping him shave. In a twist, Trejo praises the caregiver as "the toughest guy on the planet." The PSAs feature the tagline "caregiving is tougher than tough" and remind caregivers that they can find help and support.

> "Caring for someone else is one of the toughest jobs there is," said Danny Trejo. "There's no shame in getting some help if that's what you need to stay

> The majority of caregivers (60 percent) juggle their caregiving responsibilities with a full- or part-time job, and that percentage is even higher for men. Juggling work and caregiving responsibilities can be highly stressful, putting caregivers at risk for depression, anxiety, and heart disease. A few quick tips to help caregivers in this role in-

- Create a daily caregiving checklist and check off items daily. You'll stay on-task and communicate more easily with others involved in your loved one's

Check Your Dollars: You Could Have A $1 Bill Worth $10,000

They get shoved in pockets and run through the laundry. Jammed in and spit out of vending machines. And grasped by many hands as they make their way across the United States.

Dollar bills take a beating. In fact, the average life span for a $1 in circulation is only 5.8 years, according to the Federal Reserve. Compare that to a $50 bill, which circulates for 8.5 years, or the $100 bill, which hangs around almost three times as long as the humble single.

Nevertheless, your hardworking dollars could be working even harder for you. That's the idea behind an online banking and investing financial services company's "Hardest Working Dollar" campaign. An anonymous shopper will travel the country, spending 7,500 of the hardest-working dollars in mom-and-pop shops, cafes, and other locations in 15 U.S. cities.

Once in circulation, the value of these George Washingtons could increase. Some will be worth $100, others will be valued at $5,000 and one will be particularly prized: It will be worth $10,000. Consumers can visit www.allyhardestworkingdollar.com and enter the serial numbers of their singles to see if theirs is eligible to win.

"The Hardest Working Dollar campaign is a continuation of our efforts to 'Do It Right' for our customers and all consumers by encouraging them to think about their money differently," explains Ally Chief Marketing and Public Relations Officer, Andrea Riley.

The company will also celebrate hard-at-work individuals in key markets across the US. Costumed George Washingtons will thank employees on their way to work, show their appreciation for hardworking first responders, and honor dedicated volunteers at nonprofit organizations.

Ultimately, every consumer has the ability to make any $1 bill the hardest-working dollar. A new investing product, Ally Invest, offers several convenient online options for putting your money to work, including low-cost trading for investors looking to trade stocks, options, bonds and ETFs themselves, as well as managed portfolios, which are professionally designed, continually monitored and rebalanced automatically, for those who prefer a hands-off approach to their finances. Together, investing combined with the bank's great FDIC-insured savings rate is designed to help consumers make their money work harder.

"We believe being an ally for our customers' financial wellbeing means encouraging people to focus on the products and services that will improve their financial lives for the long run," says Diane Morais, president of Consumer & Commercial Banking Products at Ally Bank, Member FDIC. "By saving at a higher rate of interest, using a cashback credit card and investing with affordable fees, people have the opportunity to make their dollars work harder."

The "Hardest Working Dollar" sweepstakes kicks off the week of June 5 and runs through July 31.
