ObamaCare Repeal vs. Reality

by Jane M. Orient, M.D.

The attempt by House Speaker Paul Ryan and other powerful Republicans to "repeal and replace" the Affordable Care Act (ACA or "ObamaCare") has run into a buzz saw of opposition from both sides. Most proponents of the American Health Care Act (AHCA) concede that the Act is "not perfect." But there is "political reality" to consider what can make it through the congressional sausage-making machine? Already Congress is telling us the most important consideration for them: staying in power. The 2018 election will be a "bloodbath" for Republicans if AHCA is not passed-or else if it is passed.

The outcome of the midterms supposedly depends on how unhappy the American people are. But the political reality is that the happiness of the donor class is far more important. Most of the donor class resides in the Swamp. Perhaps the best thing to say about AHCA is that it has the right enemies: the AMA, big hospitals, and some big insurers (who all favor ACA).

Leaving aside political reality and looking at actual reality, these are some facts:

It is very difficult to take away an entitlement, and ObamaCare entitlements have had 7 years to take root and spread. And while the media will be focusing on sad stories, the real losers with clout are not sick and dying individuals but the hospital/Pharma/managed-care cartels. Coverage is not the same thing as care. Denizens of the Healthcare Swamp adroitly confuse the two. Coverage often blocks care, as with narrow networks, and inevitably drives up the cost. Government cannot provide care. Increasingly, it cannot even finance care, as governments at all levels are mired in deficit spending. Its programs forcibly redistribute a decreasing pool of assets. Guaranteed issue (no "discrimination" against people with preexisting conditions) is not insurance. It destroys insurance; low-risk individuals will not buy it unless forced to do so. Ohio Governor John Kasich said, "We cannot turn our backs on the most vulnerable. We can give them the coverage,... and make sure that we live in a country where people are going to say, 'At least somebody is looking out for me.'

In fact, Gov. Kasich, your congressman, the CEO of UnitedHeath Group, CareSource in Ohio (probably the chief beneficiary of Ohio's Medicaid expansion), or the AMA are not looking out for you-but don't mind using you to promote their own interests. The Medicaid expansion brought in far more new enrollees than the 5.5 million predicted, including 11.5 million able-bodied adults. Since resources for providing care were not expanded, funds are being diverted from the disabled and needy.

AHCA does not get rid of the basic flawed premises of ACA. Arguably, it cements them further. But is it a step in the right direction? The answer to that question ultimately depends on whether it permits a free market to develop outside the comprehensive managed third-party pre-payment NONinsurance model. If it has competition, that model will fail, and vast resources now diverted to the rapacious Healthcare Swamp will be freed up for actual care.

The question is not whether people will "lose coverage." According to the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) analysis, most of the increase in the number of uninsured "would stem from repealing the penalties associated with the individual mandate. Some of those people would choose not to have insurance because they chose to be covered by insurance under current law only to avoid paying the penalties, and some people would forgo insurance in response to higher premiums."

In other words, millions of Americans see ACA insurance as such a bad deal you have to force them to buy it. They would choose to reject it.

There are a few good features and many bad ones in AHCA. Tax "credits" are subsidies if people don't owe taxes. But if credits refund payroll taxes, ending discrimination against people who buy their own coverage, that's a step toward fairness and freedom. So Freedom is possible only if people are responsible. The worst feature of AHCA is perpetuating the myth that "nondiscriminatory" coverage for pre-existings is insurance rather than a pipe dream.

We can hope that AHCA, if properly amended, might be a wedge of freedom rather than a way station on the road to a full crony capitalist/government takeover. The ultimate goal must still be the restoration of a free market. We need to get rid of the subsidies, mandates, and regulations that stand in the way, feeding the Swamp and propping up ObamaCare. ACA needs to die. The unshackled free market needs to kill it, before or after Congress repeals every last word.

SAN GABRIEL – San Gabriel

Unified School District has opened enrollment for its transitional and kindergarten programs at its elementary schools, providing robust opportunities for early learning, and social and academic rigor of the District's educational environment.

"San Gabriel Unified is dedicated to preparing students for personal, academic and professional success," SGUSD Superintendent John Pappalardo said. "We are proud to offer dynamic kindergarten and transitional kindergarten programs that nurture bright young minds into lifelong learners."

The District's transitional kindergarten program introduces children to a structured educational environment and jumpstarts learning with developmentally appropriate curriculum. The daily schedule includes class instruction and activities, small group instruction and independent hands-on learning experiences.

Transitional kindergarten classes are available at Roosevelt Elementary, which is home to the District's one-of-a-kind music immersion program. Once students complete the TK program, they will enroll in their home school for kindergarten.

Kindergarten programs are offered at all five elementary schools: Coolidge, 421 North Mission Drive; McKinley, 1425 Manley Drive; Roosevelt, 401 South Walnut Grove; Washington, 300 North San Marino Ave.; and Wilson, 8317 East Sheffield Road.

a dual-language immersion program for its kindergarten and first-grade students, which aims to help students develop a high level of literacy in both Spanish and English.

Deciding What to Do With Your Old 401(k)

Just started a new job with an employer who thinks you're as visionary as Steve Jobs? Or maybe you're between gigs and "exploring other opportunities." Either way, you need to decide what to do with your old 401(k).

It's been estimated that there are about 15 million such accounts left behind by former employees, mainly because of either inertia or plain confusion over strict rules for moving the money. And since the IRS doesn't allow procrastinating on a key decision -- if you withdraw even a dime, you've got just 60 days to reallocate into a different taxadvantaged account -- here's a rundown of your options to avoid what could be a costly mistake:

"Cashing out comes with an immediate price, both in terms of giving up potential future gains in your portfolio and in the IRS taxes the company handling your 401(k) for your former employer is legally obliged to withhold," explains Nupur Bahal, vice president for retirement at Fidelity Investments. "That's money you won't have for retirement." Yes, the government must have its cut. Specifically, 20 percent in federal income taxes, 10 percent in an "early-withdrawal penalty" for those under age 59?, and -- wait, we're not done yet -whatever additional percentage your individual state may or may not assess.

Feel free to imagine how much you'd be out if your account is fatter.

is the liberalization of health savings accounts-especially if people have savings because they are freed from requirements to buy expensive comprehensive coverage, and to pay for people who decline to purchase insurance as long as they are healthy. The AHCA penalties for failure to maintain continuous coverage—like those in Medicare Part Bwould help to discourage system gaming. However, any credits must go to patients, not third parties. And the government needs to stop dictating the terms of voluntary insurance contracts, including premiums.

* Option No. 1: Cash Out

Unless you're in dire financial straits and really, really need the bucks to live off, the consensus is this is a bad idea.

Translating that into real money, Fidelity's website (fidelity.com) uses the hypothetical example of a 36-year-old who decides to cash out the $16,000 balance in her account. After de-

Doing what's called a "rollover" is an easy way to keep your 401(k) savings together and growing tax-deferred.

But bear in mind: Investment options vary from plan to plan -as do fees. (And not all employers even accept rollovers.)

Which means you might want to do some comparison shopping before committing.

* Option No. 3: Move the Money Into an IRA

As with the previous rollover, you get to avoid the tax bite of cashing out. The difference here, though -; and these could be major plusses -- is that not only do IRAs offer more investment choices than the typical 401(k), but you're also able to make penalty-free withdrawals for qualified education expenses or up to $10,000 for a first-time home purchase.

"Especially if you already have other, non-401(k) accounts elsewhere, it may be simpler and more effective to consolidate everything under one roof," says Bahal.

* Option No. 4: Leave It With Your Ex-Employer

Penalty-free withdrawals are allowed for those who leave their jobs at age 55 or older -- as opposed to 59? for IRAs -- and unique investment options might warrant just letting things ride. But some people forget the account exists with the passage of time -- no, really -- and further contributions are verboten.

Whatever you decide, remember the clock is definitely ticking for you to contact your old 401(k) administrator should you choose to withdraw even that one dime. (NewsUSA)

These programs and projects are required to primarily benefit low- and moderateincome residents for a given year. This Action Plan will appropriate CDBG and HOME funds for 2017-2018 fiscal year, which the City anticipates to be approximately $1million.
