Notice of Intent to Circulate Initiative Petition

Notice is hereby given by the persons whose names appear hereon of their intention to circulate a petition within the City of West Covina for the purpose of repealing the recently enacted ordinance that established city council members will be elected on a by-district basis. A statement of the reasons of the proposed action as mentioned in the petition is as follows: 1) Proponents believe that the City Council has acted to implement a district based election system which undermines the voting rights of residents to have their voices heard by eliminating the right of each resident to vote for four (4) city council members. 2) Proponents further believe that the City Council has acted in total disregard of the voters by willingly ignoring the results of Ballot Measure "D" on the November 2009 ballot, whereas a majority of the voters affirmatively denied an initiative to implement a district-based voting system in the City of West Covina. 3) Finally, the proponents also believe that, now that the City Council is elected on a by-district basis, the City Council will no longer be responsive to the desires and needs of the residents as voters will be left few choices on the ballot and no ability to meaningfully engage members of the City Council who are elected from areas outside of their own district. 4) The proponents wish to have this initiative named the "Voters Rights Act of West

Return to At-Large Elected Council Members

INITIATIVE SUMMARY:

This measure seeks to return West Covina Council Members to being elected by all voters, rather than being elected by voters within City districts in Currently, City Council Members are required to be elected by voters in the district in which they reside. The current voting system was adopted by the City Council effective February 16, 2017.

Since the City's current voting system is a new one, the City has not yet been mapped into districts and no current Council Members have yet been elected based on any districts. District elections are not scheduled under the new system until the City's next election in November 2018. This measure would change the new system of By-District Elected Council Members back to the previously-existing voting system of At-Large Elected

Council Members.

Under the City's previous system, City Council Members were elected by all City voters, with the overall top vote-getters (corresponding to the seats to be filled) being elected to the City Council in each City election. The City's prior system was an "at-large" voting system.

Under the City's current system, the City is required to be divided into Council Member Districts, candidates run for City Council in the district where they reside, and only voters residing within that district may vote for the candidates running in that district. The top vote-getter within a district is elected to the City Council. This is a "by district" voting system.

The measure proposes to change the City's voting system back to the previously existing Directly Elected Council Members ("at-large" system). The measure modifies Section 2-20 of the City's Code relating to City Council elections. Modifications to the Code language which changes the City's overall voting system to "at-large" include the following: changing references to "by district" City Council elections to "at-large" City Council elections; requiring City Council Members only to be residents of the City, rather than residents of a district; and removing requirements in the Code relating to district boundaries within the City, the formation of districts, methods or timing of periodic changes to districts. By these changes, the measure proposes to make City Council members elected by all City residents ("at-large"), rather than being elected by voters residing in the district in which the candidates reside and run for City Council ("by-district").

- Severability. If any provision of this Ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of this Ordinance which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this Ordinance irrespective of the invalidity of any particular portion thereof.

Traumatic experiences happen-but when they happen to children, it can affect their view of the world, their sense of safety, their development, and even their longer-term physical and mental health.

According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Ser-Administration (SAMHSA), more than twothirds of children reported at least one traumatic experience by age 16. While not every child will be traumatized from a difficult experience, some potentially traumatic events could include abuse, neglect, disaster, violence (physical, sexual and community), bullying or school violence, terrorism, war, serious illness or accident, military family-related stress, human trafficking or the sudden loss of a parent or loved one.

The numbers are staggering: * One in four high school students were in a physical fight. * One in five high school students experienced bullying at school, and one in six were cyberbullied. * 54 percent of families in the United States have been affected by disaster.

* 19 percent of injured and 12 percent of physically ill youth have post-traumatic stress disorder, a debilitating mental health

The effects of trauma, when left untreated, can have a profound impact on a child. Some of the common responses in the aftermath include difficulty sleeping, isolation, trouble focusing, and even angry and aggressive behavior. Imagine, then, a traumatized child trying to learn in a classroom—wanting to be alone, distracted by memories of the trauma, and possibly having intense responses to teachers and students. It is important to understand what may stem from the trauma so that behavior shifts can be linked with what happened and appropriate support can be in place. If that doesn't happen, school performance, friendships and healthy development can be jeopardized.

At times, signs that a mental health concern may be emerging go unrecognized. For some children and families, it can be difficult to reach out for help with mental health. In part, this could Permanente. The study examined the effect of "adverse experiences," such as traumas, experienced in childhood, as reported by adult patients of a large health plan. The study revealed that for people who have five or more adverse childhood experiences, their life span was shortened by approximately 25 years. This is believed to be largely due to coping behaviors that are often used in adolescents and adult life to manage the emotional pain and social disconnection, but can

The ACE Study is just one of many examples that demonstrate the importance of prevention and action. When prevention efforts fail, responding quickly to ensure safety and establish support is very important to the health and future of children.

What You Can Do

While every child is different, there are some things you can do to help in the aftermath of trauma. Assuring and reassuring the child of safety will help to reduce anxiety and stress. Make sure the child knows that whatever happened isn't his or her knowbullying. (NAPSI) fault, as kids often blame themselves when something completely out of their control takes place. Being patient and listening without judgment will help the child to cope with what has happened, while giving you important insight into how the child is doing and managing what took place. And if you have concerns for your child's well-being or he/ she is not improving over time, consider seeking help from a trained professional. When needed, a mental health professional trained in evidence-based trauma treatment can help children and families cope and move toward recovery. Ask your pediatrician, family physician, school counselor or clergy member for a referral.

SAMHSA offers some practical tools that can be helpful to parents, guardians, caregivers and teachers when a child may have been traumatized—and some that are specific to the kind of traumatic exposure (e.g., mass violence, disaster and bullying). They can be found at www.samhsa.gov/child-trauma/ understanding-child-trauma. This page brings together useful information, from recognizing the signs of traumatic stress to where to find a mental health provider or other support.

Children exposed to trauma may have been a target of bullying or their behaviors may make them targets of bullying. Information specific to the trauma or distress associated with bullying found www.StopBullying.gov. SAMHSA also developed a free app to help prevent bullying called KnowBullying, which can found at http:// store.samhsa.gov/apps/
