Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Responds to Mutual Aid Calls throughout California

by Carolyn Grumm

If a hiker twists an ankle one mile up the trail, or a mountain biker becomes lost near where they left their car, local search and rescue teams can usually staff these calls by themselves. But when operations get more complicated, teams call each other for assistance.

The Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team (SMSR) is one of eight teams in Los Angeles County, and one of dozens of teams in California. Each team has a local area they are primarily responsible for, but all teams work together in mutual aid when their neighbors need help.

The California Office of Emergency Services (OES) works with search and rescue teams to coordinate mutual aid. If a county needs 50 searchers to assist with a search for a missing hiker, they can make one call to OES who will handle the logistics of organizing the needed searchers from neighboring counties.

SMSR is ready and able to assist in these mutual aid calls by living up to their motto, "Anywhere in the wilderness that someone needs help."

In March SMSR participated in the search for Marine 1st Lt. Matthew Kraft. He was overdue from a ski trip in the Sierras, and the massive search area along his 200-mile long route was in dangerous terrain with high avalanche danger. The Marine Corps, National Parks, multiple aircraft, and search and rescue teams all responded. A SMSR crew was inserted by helicopter to their search assignment, and they searched for two days, spending the night in freezing temperatures before being extracted by helicopter. Unfortunately Lt.

Searchers happily returned to the command post after locating Sheryl Powell this July in Inyo County. Kraft is still missing.

In April SMSR participated in a mutual aid search with a happier ending. Teams were dispatched to assist the West Valley Search and Rescue Team to locate two overdue hikers near Mount Baldy. Thirteen members from SMSR participated alongside searchers from across southern California. On day 5 a crew of three SMSR searchers on a grueling 2 day assignment found boot prints leading to the subjects. Eric Desplinter and Gabrielle Wallace were found alive and well and extracted by helicopter.

In June, the Team again participated in a long search with a happy ending. When 73 year old Eugene Jo went missing near Mt. Waterman, the Montrose Search and Rescue team called for mutual aid. Over 300 searchers responded from as far away as Marin and San Diego counties. Throughout the week SMSR fielded 23 team members, logging over 650 hours, providing boots on the ground and support in the command post by running operations and by planning search assignments. On day 7 Mr.

Jo was found alive. In July, Inyo County Search and Rescue was looking for Sheryl Powell and her dog Miley who went missing from their campsite near the Bristlecone Pine Forest. On day 4 of the search, a crew from Kern County found the dog, which prompted the search managers to redirect several of the field crews. Shortly thereafter, a crew from SMSR located Powell who was then extracted by helicopter and flown to a local hospital.

Later in July, Wesley Welch and his dog Davie were reported overdue from a backpacking trip in Los Padres National Forest. The Santa Barbara Search and Rescue Team was aided by teams from across southern California, including SMSR, and early on day 2 of the search, Welch and Davie were found alive and well.

SMSR is proud to respond and help their neighboring teams in mutual aid. The Team is also grateful when neighboring teams respond when SMSR needs help.

Since 1951, the all-volunteer Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team has responded to calls for help in the local mountains and beyond. SMSR also provides a range of wilderness safety programs. The Team never charges for any of these services, and is funded entirely by charitable donations. For more information, to donate, or to arrange a wilderness safety demonstration for vour school or group, visit www.smsr.org.

Davie and his owner Wesley Welch were located in Santa Barbara County after being 2 days overdue from a backpacking trip.

New Veterans Administration Clinic Opens in Arcadia

Mayor of Arcadia April Verlato, VA facility director, VA director Robert McKendrick, Congresswoman Judy Chu, and Congresswoman Grace Napolitano at the ribbon-cutting ceremony. By George Ogden

ARCADIA - The San Gabriel Valley Community Based VA outpatient clinic located at 7 West Foothill Boulevard in Arcadia had its ribbon-cutting ceremony on Saturday, August 23rd. The facility will provide Primary Care, Social Work, Mental Health, Women's Health and basic laboratory services for nearly 2,000 veterans in nine cities. The hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Their phone number is 877 251-7295.

The event was attended by Congresswoman Judy Chu and Grace Napolitano along with Arcadia mayor April Verlato and interim VA director Robert McMenrick.

Judy Chu thanked everyone who helped make it possible including VFW Post 3208 who help spearhead the project and to get the facility open in the area. There were a number of other organizations that also were mentioned that gave their support.

The event was well attended by veterans from all over the San Gabriel Valley.

The Los Angeles County Development Authority (LACDA) is now accepting registrants for its Lancaster Homes public housing community. Lancaster Homes has 120 one- and two-bedroom units for elderly families, and is a smoke-free community located in Lancaster, California. Registrants may add their name to the waiting list through December 31, 2019, 11:59 p.m., by regis(626) 586-1845. This waiting list is not for the Section 8 Housing Choice Voucher Program.

"Housing helps to create independence and supports healthy aging for older adults," Monique King-Viehland, LACDA Executive Director, said. "We are excited to open the waiting list for Lancaster Homes to help lift up those individuals and families."

An elderly family is a house-spouse, or sole member is a person who is at least 62 years of age. The elderly family may include two or more persons who are at least 62 years of age living together, or one or more persons who are at least 62 years of age living with one or more live-in aides. Registrants will not be accepted for households that are non-elderly (61 years of age or Applicants will be selected from the waiting list in the order of admission preferences, followed by date and time. If the LACDA receives sufficient applications prior to the established December 31, 2019 deadline, the LACDA will notify the public through its website that the waiting list will close at an earlier date.

Citizens of the Year for West Covina, Vicki Sheliga and J. Ken Lund.

By George Ogden

WEST COVINA - In West Covina on Saturday, August 24, the Historical Society had their Summer Fest event where they recognized two people for Citizen of the Year. Vicki Scheliga and J. Ken Lund were selected for the top honors. They have both been very active in the city for years. The well attended event had Dr. Forest Tennant emcee the event. He gave everyone accolades for their service to the community.

What was missing were the council members who were requested to boycott the event. However, Mayor Lloyd Johnson did attend because he thought it was more important to "be there" for his friends and show his support for them.

The issue was, the West Covina Improvement Association nominated Brian Jobst for Citizen of the Year. He has been vocal about Singpoli and their intended project at the BKK site. He may be considering suing the city. It had been rumored that the city manager and the city attorney made the request that council and staff not to attend that event because of this issue. It was disappointing for the recipients not to have them there but the Mayor showed up and that seemed to smooth out their disappointment.

Holden Scores Early Victories for People | L.A. County Makes Increased with Developmental Disabilities

most advocates must wait until September or October for their proposals to be signed into law, efforts to help people with developmental disabilities have turned into early victories thanks to legislative and budget proposals by Assemblymember Chris Holden. The impacts of these victories will result in $400 million for developmental disability service providers, $3 million for speech-language pathologist training, and better standards for music therapy.

"I'm proud of the work we did to better align our legislative and budget priorities with the simple fact that people born with developmental disabilities possess the exact same human rights as all other members of our society," said Assemblymember Holden. "We could not have achieved these early victories without the energy and commitment of families, advocates, and service providers of

SACRAMENTO – While the developmental disability community.'

The new funding for developmental disability service providers will help the nearly 330,000 Californians living with developmental disabilities including autism, Down syndrome, cerebral palsy, and intellectual disabilities. These funds will enable service providers to continue their work helping people gain the tools to become successful and productive members of our community.

"Thanks to the work of these service providers, people are now living, working and thriving as members of our communities and it is essential these service providers remain open and funded at appropriate levels," said Holden.

The $3 million for speechlanguage pathologist training will help close the speech-language pathologist shortage the state is experiencing. The new funds will expand existing programs in California State University (CSU) system. Speech and language is one of the largest disabilities in students and is growing each year. Many of these students have developmental or intellectual disabili-

Lastly, Holden's music therapy certification bill, AB 1540, strengthens standards for music therapists to protect consumers from potential harm or misrepresentation from individuals that are not board certified music therapists. Music therapists are helpful to a wide range of individuals, from helping children with autism develop their verbal and social skills, to helping veterans manage Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, to working with stroke victims, and many others.

"We took big steps forward on behalf of the developmental disability community this year, but we still have more to do," said Holden.

Investment in Partnership with 31 Cities in Fight Against Homelessness

$8.2 Million in Measure H Funds to Bolster Vital Locally-Driven Efforts

LOSANGELES COUNTY -Building on their regional approach to tackling homelessness, the Los Angeles County Homeless Initiative and United Way of Greater Los Angeles announced the award of more than $8.2 million in Measure H funding to bolster the work of cities in implementing city-specific plans to combat and prevent homelessness. This funding award is a significant next step in supporting innovative local solutions and strengthening the collaboration between the County and cities in the region, which are united in their commitment to address this complex humanitarian crisis.

In September 2018, L.A. County and United Way of Greater Los Angeles' Home For Good Funders Collaborative issued a Request for Proposals for cityspecific projects in two key areas: Priority Area 1: to increase the supply of supportive and interim housing for people experiencing homelessness; and Priority Area 2: to enhance the effectiveness of County service systems for those experiencing and/or at-risk of homelessness.

More than $8.2 million has been awarded in a two-phase process, to fund 34 applications (covering 31 cities as some cities submitted more than one application), representing all five Supervisorial Districts. These include:

• 19 Priority 1/Housing proposals have been awarded a total of $5 million. Projects include feasibility studies for motel conversions, motel vouchers, modular housing, ADUs, inclusionary zoning and city-owned sites, property acquisition for interim and permanent housing, access centers and land use planning.

• 15 Priority 2/Service proposals have been awarded a total of $3.2 million. Projects include funds for case managers, housing navigators and homeless coordinators; safe storage and shower services; and social enterprise/employment training

"The homelessness crisis touches every one of our cities but there is no one-size-fits-all solution that will work for all of them," said Board of Supervisors Chair Janice Hahn. "Partnering with our cities to fund local projects means we can help each city address their unique challenges with tailored solutions."

"Thank you to the First District cities of Baldwin Park, El Monte, South El Monte, West Covina, Pomona, and Claremont, as well as the CEO Homeless Initiative, for your ongoing commitment to pursuing innovative and regional solutions to combat and prevent homelessness," said Supervisor Hilda L. Solis. "I look forward to seeing our cities' ideas come to life. Our continued partnership on these efforts will make a real impact to support and lift our friends, families, and neighbors out of homelessness. LA County continues to be focused on empowering our cities and ending this crisis." "From Burbank to Culver City to Pomona to West Hollywood, these city grants, funded by Measure H, showcase thoughtful private-public partnerships and tangible solutions," said Supervisor Mark Ridley-Thomas. "As we seek more housing opportunities and service collaborations throughout L.A. County, these investments and partnerships will propel our region forward to bring Everyone In!"

"The homeless crisis is so complex, our strategies and solutions must be nuanced and multi-faceted. I am thrilled that our cities have responded so enthusiastically to this Measure H opportunity and I am eager to see their proposals rolled out," said Supervisor Sheila Kuehl. "Supporting the efforts of our cities brings us closer to our shared goal of increasing the stock of affordable and interim housing, and improving services for those at risk of falling into homelessness. By working together, we can help get our unhoused neighbors on the path to permanent stabili-

"I am extremely proud of the high level of engagement that 5th District cities demonstrated throughout the City Grant process," said Supervisor Kathryn Barger. "The County will not be able to solve the crisis of homelessness on its own - our cities are integral partners in the work to combat homelessness and I look forward to continuing to collaborate on localized solutions and strategies."

"We know that homes end homelessness, and cities uniquely hold the key to more or less housing being built," said Elise Buik, President and CEO, United Way of Greater Los Angeles. "The proposals submitted demonstrate a serious commitment to ending homelessness. We could not be more excited for what's to come."

HJTA Defends Taxpayers Again!

message from the Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association (HJTA) letting me know ACA 1, a constitutional amendment, was floating around Sacramento and lobbyists were running door-todoor trying to round up the votes for this measure before it hit the Assembly Floor.

ACA 1 proposes to lower the 2/3 vote requirement to pass bonds and parcel taxes to 55%. HJTA argues that is almost a sure fired way to get another tax increase heaped on the taxpayers of California by making it easer to pass those types of taxes. "Lowering the two-thirds vote for bonds and parcel taxes makes it easier to approve debt that is included "below the line" on property tax bills and is not included in Prop 13's one percent cap. This can add hundreds of dollars a year to residential and commercial property tax bills, and last for decades."

I pulled out my last property tax bill and looked at the "below the line" charges. I did a little math and found out the "below the line" charges that include sewer assessment, various water taxes, flood control, trauma care, vector control, and a few others I'm checking back on, are reaching close to 50% of my tax bill. If one lives in an area with a landscaping and lighting improvement district, Mello-Roos taxes or home owner-association fees, those additions, with the others, may bring those "below the line" costs to that 50% or higher range on a property tax bill. One of those charges on my property tax bill is RPOSD Measure A. L.A. County voters' passed Proposition A, the Safe Neighborhood Parks Propositions of 1992 and 1996 and in November of 2016 approved Measure A, a parcel tax, to replace previous funding set to expire this year. This money goes to "... provide for public safety improvements to existing park, recreation, and beach facilities; acquisition of additional park land and open space; construction and development of senior centers and at-risk-youth, acquisition

Shade's Perspective Lois M. Shade

Former Mayor of Glendora and development of trails; restoration of rivers and streams, graffiti prevention, tree planting and other park & recreation enhancements."

Provides all things, to all people, with a lot of overhead costs, hard-to-track spending, and levying a tax rate of 1.5 cents per square foot of improvements on a parcel, with no expiration date, and done with a 2/3 vote. This gives credence to HJTA's comment not only about "last[ing] for decades," but we don't need to lower the approval rate to 55% making it easier to pass tax increases when measures like this pass easily with 2/3 vote approval. Ask yourself if you could afford increases like this one on all those "below the line" - sewer rate, water taxes, flood control, trauma care - at any rate increase proposed, with no sunset clause and only by a little more than $\frac{1}{2}$ of the voters or 55% making that

League of California Cities (LCC) is an organization most cities in California belong to and that advocate for those cities. Our local elected members of city councils from each member city may serve on various committees like housing, transportation and more to help set the organization's policies. LCC has been lobbying for the support of ACA 1 purportedly to support city governments

A memo from LCC says, "ACA 1 ... provides additional flexibility to local agencies by reducing the voter-approval threshold from two-thirds to 55 percent for cities and counties to fund critical public infrastructure and affordable housing." LCC tells us the 'financing and upgrading of infrastructure is one of the great challenges facing local governments.' I thought we just went through a battle over a gas tax increase "peddled" to "fix the potholes". Sacramento, with no public input, implemented the gas tax, and has $5.2 billion a year to improve infrastructure, along with a hefty $20 billion reserve fund.

LCC also mentions the "affordable" housing crisis. Chair of the Assembly Local Government Committee, Democrat Assembly Member Cecilia Aguiar-Curry (AD-4-Napa) is quoted as saying "...[she] understands the difficulties cities and counties face when ... [trying] to address homelessness and affordable housing ... and believes local governments need more flexibility to solve their own problems."

Aguiar-Curry saying, "... more flexibility to solve their own problems" is interesting tainted dialogue to get ACA 1 passed by state legislators. Her Local Government Committee sets policy on general plans, land use and housing. California Housing and Community Development (HCD) mandates the number of housing units cities are required to have developed based on HCD projected growth and need. Where does "flexibility" for local governments fit into this picture? And, why does Aguiar-Curry think housing affordability is a city's own problem? Better yet, how does she think increasing the ability to add new taxes make home ownership and rental units more affordable?

Special interest groups, as in the case of the 1992, 1996 and 2016 Safe Parks bonds, target specific areas and groups with "hit" pieces promising everything they could possibly want, but forget to tell them how much it will cost them. The more pressure the state puts on local governments to increase housing stock and affordability, the more promises you will see and in the case of ACA 1, more property taxes each year.

Those Dollar Stores. Might be Best to Stay Away.

Those Dollar and 99-Cent Stores are sometimes worth going to, or are they? How many times have you been there to buy just a few items and you leave with a shopping cart full of stuff you don't need?

Yes, they may have some good bargains, but if you noticed, for example, the 99-Cent Store, not everything is 99¢ anymore. But who cares? You're just going in for a few items. You get in and even though you're getting a few items, you still bring the shopping cart.

As you pass down the aisles, you start picking up things you "think" you need. Then, you pick up stuff you really "don't need" at all. What the heck, it is only 99¢.

cheap tools, sweets, yep, a lot of sweets. Those red licorice, you know, those red twisted vines. You pick up one of those, wait, let's get two of them. Well, let's be honest, you get five packages of those red vines. Oh heck, how did those cookies get into my shopping cart?

Moving on to frozen foods and produce area, you look at your cart full of snacks and sweets and this is where you make up for all of this. You get some produce and some of that fake cheese and some of the frozen fast food. You think this is going to make up for those sweets, it's not. You are just fooling yourself. This isn't going to justify a cart full of sweets and snacks. What the heck, you only live once.

You finally get to the checkout stand and you unload your cart. Guess what, you forgot your recycled bags, so you have to buy them. You end up with 10 bags of things you don't need.

You load up the car and you head home. Then you remember. The very thing you went into the 99¢ store, you flat forgot to get by Jane M. Orient, M.D.

Bernie Sanders is strongly promoting "Medicare for All," and claims to be its father ("I wrote the damn bill," he proclaimed to the nation during the second round of Democratic Presidential debates).

His plan does not look like Medicare at all. It appears that he hardly knows anything about Medicare. He probably has no experience with it. Despite his advanced age, he does not need to depend on it. Members of Congress are allowed to receive Medicare benefits, but unlike most other Americans, they can receive other benefits in addition.

Sitting members of Congress can get routine examinations and consultations from the attending physician in the U.S. Capitol for an annual fee. And military treatment facilities in the Washington area offer free emergency medical and dental care for outpatient services.

Members are also eligible for the Federal Employees Health Insurance Program, and they won't be kicked off as soon as they reach Medicare age. They do have to go through an ObamaCare exchange, but it is a small one, the DC Health Link, which reportedly functions well. There are 57 gold-tier plans to choose from, not one or two as in many states. Their portion of the premiums could be as little as 25 percent of the total premiums. Apparently, subsidies for senators don't run out just because their salary exceeds 400 percent of the federal poverty level.

Funding for Medicare for All will apparently be vacuumed up from all other sources of payment for "healthcare," and will go into the big collective pot. Then people can get everything without premiums, copays, or deductibles—so they say. This is not at all like Medicare.

Medicare Part A, for hospital care, is funded through the Medicare payroll tax: a 2.9% firstdollar tax—no deductions--on all employment income, half of which is paid by the employer. Seniors believe that they have been funding this through their working years, as they are constantly told. They have indeed paid, but their taxes were immediately used to pay for the care of older retirees. So, their hospital bill today will be paid from the wages of about 2.5 workers (say the persons pumping their gas, collecting their trash, and repairing their plumbing). Already that is not enough, so the IOUs in the "trust fund" are being redeemed from general tax revenues. That fund will soon be gone, according to the Medicare trustees, as Baby Boomers are flooding into the system. It would vanish in a nanosecond if we loaded in everybody, with or without illegal immigrants.

Medicare has long been implementing ways to curb runaway expenditures. From the mid 1980s comes the Prospective Payment System, or Diagnosis Related Groups (DRGs), under which payment has nothing to do with services rendered to a particular patient. According to my 1985 "Ode to DRG Creep":

"Now the pay's by the head, if alive or if dead,

Diagnosis determines the money,...

We need costs less than average, and discharges quicker We will get no advantage --

For care of the sicker." Since "quicker and sicker" discharges might cause a need for readmission, the government penalizes hospitals for readmission. One way to prevent readmission is to discharge to hospice or directly to the morgue. If Bernie were an anonymous Medicare patient, he'd get a consultation on POLST. That's Physicians Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment, which translates in the Newspeak Dictionary to "Legally Enforceable Orders to Terminate Life-Sustaining Treatment Including Food and Water."

Bernie might think he had been admitted—say he had an IV in a hospital room. But if he gets discharged before his second midnight, he might be classified as an outpatient, which is covered under Medicare Part B, and get a "surprise" bill for thousands of dollars, because of the "Two-Midnight Rule."

Or Bernie might expect to have a little rehab after an orthopedic procedure, but if he is in hospital for fewer than three midnights, rehab isn't covered. He might have the choice of paying out of pocket, or going home where he will be alone, unable to get out of bed.

Yes, Bernie on Medicare will have free choice of doctorsexcept for the ones who aren't accepting Medicare patients.

If Bernie himself were stuck on Medicare with no way out, he might think it not so wonderful. Has anyone heard him tell people about these Medicare prob-

"TIME JOCKEY" - Mission Days

By Joe Castillo

Spanish Arrival... When the Spanish arrived in Alta California in the 1760's with the intent to establish a series of missions in order to Christianize the local Native American inhabitants, the first order of business was to build sites which would house a military presence. These sites would become known as "presidios' and the Spanish established one in the northern and southern most locations, Monterey and San Diego. The "presidios" would provide military protection for the missions to be established between Monterey and San Diego, and would also be available to secure what was to be an anticipated highly traveled route known as "El Camino Real".

Gaspar de Portola guided the initial expeditions into Alta California and worked with Father Junipero Serra to identify potential sites for each of the missions. Also, on the expeditions was Pedro Fages, a Spanish military commander who Portola would name as the military commander of the Presidio at Monterey. Fages would later be a successor to Portola, and in turn would go on to become governor of Alta California.

After the two presidios were established and fortified, work began on establishing the next set of Mission buildings. The third Mission was San Antonio which was established in early summer of 1771 and was located south of Monterey. The fourth Mission was established in the southern part of Alta California and took the name of San Gabriel. It was founded in September 1771 near the campsite of where Portola had stayed in 1769.

Father Francisco Palou was a close friend of Father Serra's with a friendship going back to Serra's school years in Majorca, Spain. Serra asked Palou to write his biography and in 1787 Palou finished the work, which provided an insight to early California Mission history. According to Palou's biographic work of Father Serra, Fathers Pedro Cambon and Angel Somera left San Diego in August of 1771 with ten soldiers and muleteers, while also packing enough supplies for a lengthy trip. The group intended to follow the same route of Portola's 1769 expedition, and traveled north for approximately 140 miles until the group reached a river which was named San Miguel by the Portola Expedition. However, after a severe earthquake and its subsequent aftershocks, Portola changed the name to "Rio de los Temblores" or "River of Earthquakes". When the Father Cambon and Somera group came upon the "Rio de los Temblores" in August 1771, the soldiers renamed the river to that of a saint in order for them to have better luck and the river was renamed to the Santa Ana. Cambon and Somera stayed at the same location as Portola had done two years prior but this time encountered an aggressive Native

Fearing an attack by the local inhabitants, one of the Father's displayed a painting of the Blessed Mother Mary and immediately they laid down their weapons. As the Cambon and American population.

Somera group continued on to San Gabriel, upon their arrival at the selected site, they again encountered an agitated group of local inhabitants. Remembering what had happened along the Santa Ana River, the Fathers' again displayed the same painting of the Blessed Mother Mary.

As Father Palou wrote in Serra's biography, the local Indians remained in a mostly calm state, even when the Spanish soldiers were known to be abusive of Indian women, even raping them. The missionaries tried to protect the local inhabitants, even reporting the abusive actions to Governor Fages. Eventually the Mission San Gabriel was built with the immense labor force of the local Indian population and over the upcoming Labor Day weekend the Mission will be celebrating its 248th birthday as one of California's 21 Missions.....

Preliminary Injunction Reaffirms Oversight Panel's Position That Reinstatement Rules Must Be Followed

LOSANGELES COUNTY -

L.A. County Sheriff Villanueva's reinstatement of a deputy who was fired over credible domestic violence allegations caused concern to the Civilian Oversight Commission. After learning of this decision by the newly minted Sheriff, the Commission expressed uncertainty and emphasized the need for the Sheriff to follow the well-established county rules for the reinstatement of employees. The preliminary injunction issued by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Mitchell L. Beckloff yesterday reaffirms the Commission's position that employment and reinstatement rules must be fol-

"From the very beginning of this action taken by the Sheriff, the Commission has advised the Sheriff to cease and desist in reinstating a deputy who was fired for domestic violence," said Patti Giggans, L.A. County Civilian Oversight Commission Chair and Executive Director of Peace Over Violence. "The Court also agrees. Domestic violence abusers have no place in law enforcement."

The bench trial's final verdict will clarify the Los Angeles County's hiring and discipline processes and create a precedent for future employment-related actions.

"We will continue to work with the Sheriff's Department to explore solutions to repairing community confidence and building public trust in the Sheriff's Department," said Brian K. Williams, Executive Director of the Civilian Oversight Commission.

August Volatility Continues

With over 90% of companies in the S&P 500 having announced their latest quarterly results, annual sales growth is running at a +5.2% annual pace, while 75% have beaten consensus earnings estimates. That is above the 5year average.

Despite the recent gyrations, the foundation under the stock market remains very strong, since the 10-year Treasury bond yield, at 1.56% (after reaching a low yield of 1.50%) remains substantially below the S&P 500's annual dividend yield. When the S&P 500 yields more than the 10-year Treasury bond, which has only happened 8 times in the past decade, the stock market should be a screaming buy!

The stock market entered "no man's land" reflective of the recent sell-off (of 800+ points to start the prior week), with the S&P breaking its intermediateterm uptrend line and finding key support at 2,800. Fears of rising trade tensions and the global implications of such had been driving negative market sentiment.

As more tariffs on Chinese imports are being threatened to begin September 1 (some being delayed until December), the trade war also turned into a currency war, in which China was devaluing the yuan in an effort to offset the impact of U.S. tariffs. The U.S. responded by calling China a "currency manipulator," which threw more cold water on the trade talks. As China is still a Communist country, the ruling party in Beijing may think the free world's rules of fair trade and currencies don't apply to them. They don't have to answer to an election process or be accountable to investors; and thus, they are willing to absorb more pain to maintain the status quo in the long run. After China abruptly walked out of what seemed to be the closing of a deal, it really exposed their full intentions of not agreeing to changing their extensive, decades-old, egreWhat's up in the Economy?

& Former Glendora Mayor

gious behavior.

We may want to hope that the present trade friction will get resolved somehow; but the fact remains that in the past three months the situation has deteriorated notably (especially with new tariffs being imposed). Our President has good intentions when he sincerely wants to rebalance the out-of-whack trade relationship with the Chinese. However, China's Leaders have been "spoiled" by past accommodative American Presidents.

Economic Analyst

It is very hard to read the Chinese - and they surely want it that way. Furthermore, experts on China, traders on Wall Street and many economists think China is a "disaster waiting to happen".

China's Commerce Ministry formally announced recently that it halted all purchases of U.S. agricultural products and will not rule out levying import tariffs on American farm imports.

This announcement sent a mixed message, since if China is suspending imports of all U.S. agricultural products, then why would it levy tariffs on some U.S.

farm products? The answer seems simple: The U.S. is the breadbasket of the world and foreign producers cannot compete with the efficiency of U.S. corn, soybean, and wheat farmers, who typically can beat foreign competitors on price (primarily because U.S. farms are much larger, automated, and much more efficient). China is the world's largest consumer of soybeans, so it is doubtful they can boycott U.S. soybean farmers for long. Otherwise, that will make their cooking oil (a staple in Chinese households) too expensive! Furthermore, by purposely devaluing the yuan to the lowest level in over 11 years relative to the U.S. dollar, China is creating inflation on imported goods that probably will hurt Chinese businesses as well as consumers. But, the intent may also have been to reduce the demand for American imports. Recently Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin designated China as a "currency manipulator." The U.S. Treasury also immediately asked the IMF to boost its surveillance of China's currency manipulations.

In the meantime, now that China is being carefully scrutinized and monitored by the IMF, the Chinese government may be more reluctant to impose retaliatory sanctions on U.S. imported goods. Clearly, China does not want to be sanctioned by the IMF, since it would open endless trade disputes. It appears that China is walking a fine line and could be trying to appease the IMF (which wants to help facilitate global trade).

Chief Economic Advisor, Larry Kudlow, on CNBC recently said that President Trump has the upper hand in the Chinese trade dispute, since "the U.S. economy is very strong, theirs is not'. Kudlow added that "the economic burden is falling almost 100% on

However, that assessment ignores the ongoing plight of American agriculture interests! Economic pain on USA farms and orchards is very real. Hopefully China will agree soon to do what is mutually beneficial for both countries on trade. But, don't count on it!"

Your Money - Ask Julia

The Stock Market, trade wars, and possible recession is scaring me! My retirement is in my 401(k), and it took a hit. I'm afraid it won't have enough money in it for me to retire in 5 years. What can I do?

These are scary times financially. Many will have to work more years, and retire a few years later, in order to have enough funds. Because folks have a longer life expectancy, it's even more important to consider working longer, retiring later. Only put into your 401(k) what your employer matches. Some of your investment dollars should be in 'safe' investments. They don't make all the gains, but they suffer none of the losses. I don't put my clients' money into any investment that can lose money. (Based on the strength of the company.) As a result, none of y clients' accounts dropped in value (not even a penny) during any of the Stock Market downturns. Their accounts may have made zero increase, but with no loss, the balance doesn't have any catching up to do.

What should I be doing to prepare, just in case there's a recession?

Get out of debt, reduce your expenses, and save, save, save! Purchase some absolutely necessary items (not luxury items) that are already expensive before they go up in price. These might be food items, like spices, coffee, meat, or medications. Shop at thrift stores, yard and estate sales for gifts and clothing.

Why doesn't my bank mortgage guy tell me about more of the different types of home loans I see on the internet? Banks are only able to offer limited loan products offered by that bank, and are often slower to adapt to industry changes. Independent mortgage professionals are licensed mortgage experts who shop numerous lenders for the best options, lowest rates, and cheaper costs for you. These professionals undergoing continuous training, have lower overhead, and adapt to industry changes quickly.

How can I reduce the estate tax obligations for my heirs?

Life insurance is well known among wise investors to cover final expenses and taxes (inheritance, estate, property, etc.). Proceeds paid to beneficiaries from a life insurance policy are income tax free. Life insurance policies are typically settled quickly (unless there are suspicious circumstances surrounding the insured's death of course.

What is meant by the "annual reset" on an annuity?

Each year (on the purchasedate anniversary) the amount (principal plus interest earned that year) in the fixed or fixedindexed annuity contract is locked in. That amount becomes the new contract balance that you are guaranteed you cannot lose. Even if the index goes down, your annuity's contract balance does not go down. The worstcase scenario is that your balance stays the same. Conversely, if the market goes up, you'll only get part of the increase. This limit is called a "cap." With annual reset, your money does not have to make up for losses, yet can participate in gains.

I'm in money trouble. Too many bills, not enough money. If the landlord raises the rent, I'll have to move, but I can't afford to move. Help! It'll take some work and sacrifices, and you can take control of your finances. Make a detailed list of every penny you spend. Include any quarterly and annual bills, divided by 12 for the monthly amount. Look into refinancing student loans to a lower interest rate, or see if you can 'pause' payments for a few months. Transfer credit card balances to a zero interest rate card, and pay it off before the end of the zero-interest period. Get a second job.

The Concern With Obsolete Oil

California Department of Tax and Fee Administration Reports Cannabis Tax Revenues for the Second Quarter of 2019

SACRAMENTO – The California Department of Tax and Fee Administration (CDTFA) reported revenue numbers today for cannabis sales for the 2nd quarter of 2019. As of August 16, 2019, California's cannabis excise tax generated $74.2 million in revenue reported on the 2nd quarter 2019 returns due by July 31, 2019, and the cultivation tax generated $22.6 million.

Sales tax from cannabis businesses totaled $47.4 million in reported revenue for the same period. Retail sales of medicinal cannabis and medicinal cannabis products are exempt from sales and use taxes when the purchaser provides a valid Medical Marijuana Identification card and valid government-issued identification card. Sales taxes apply to sales of cannabis and other tangible personal property.

Total tax revenue reported by the cannabis industry is $144.2 million for 2nd quarter returns due by July 31, 2019. This does not include tax revenue collected by each jurisdiction. Previously reported revenue for 1st quarter 2019 returns was revised to $120.8 million, which included $63.1 million in excise tax, $17.1 million in cultivation tax, and $40.6 million in sales tax. Revisions to quarterly data are the result of amended and late returns, and other tax return adjust-

In November 2016, California voters approved Proposition 64, the Control, Regulate, and Tax Adult Use of Marijuana Act. Beginning on January 1, 2018, two new cannabis taxes went into effect: a cultivation tax on all harvested cannabis that enters the commercial market and a 15 percent excise tax upon purchasers of cannabis and cannabis products. In addition, retail sales of cannabis and cannabis products are subject to state and local sales

El Monte Union Board of Trustees Votes to Reduce Use of Styrofoam Products

Districtwide reduction of polystyrene to go into effect Jan. 1, 2020

EL MONTE – The El Monte vices Department, is prohibited Union Board of Trustees at its Aug. 7 meeting unanimously voted to reduce the use of polystyrene, a synthetic resin known by the brand name Styrofoam, from its campuses and administrative offices effective Jan. 1, 2020.

The product, which has been identified by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as the fifth largest source of hazardous waste, comes in various forms, including coffee cups, coolers, cushioning material in packaging and lunch trays. Polystyrene is not recyclable, takes at least 500 years to decompose, and is a main pollutant of urban areas, oceans, bays and other U.S. water sourcfrom purchasing, using and distributing polystyrene products in business or school activities; the District will seek more environmentally-friendly alternative alternatives to school polystyrene lunch trays. Faculty, staff and students will also be encouraged to reduce use of the foam product in favor of those that can be recycled or composted.

Under the resolution, the District, excluding the Nutrition Ser-

"On behalf of the Board of Trustees, I want to express our District's deep commitment to ensuring we do our part to reduce our carbon footprint and set an example to our students, families and community that fostering a clean, healthy and safe environment is vital to the sustainability of our planet," Superintendent Dr. Edward Zuniga said. "I want to thank our Board leadership for taking this step to promote cleaner waters, streets and communities for our students and District community."

El Monte Union is a Green Ribbon School and Energy Star leader, recognized by both the state and U.S. Department of Education for its pioneering efforts to maintain safe learning environments through environmental conservation efforts. El Monte Union has installed electric car charging stations at all of its comprehensive high schools and District Office. The majority of campuses also have new solar panel carports, which are expected to generate over 60% of the District's annual energy needs.

The use of obsolete oil is not something consumers think about when they get an oil change, even if they change their own oil. Lately though, this concern has been brought to our attention. Modern cars are designed with much tighter internal engine clearances than in years past so using the correct oil is critical.

If your star burst symbol oil label does not specify GF-5 SN it is not suitable for most cars newer than 2011. The labeling on the oil contains "obvious and unambiguous language" regarding its intended and appropriate use. I am sad to report many shops don't understand the consequences of incorrect oil labeling.

ALL cars have specific oil that needs to be used or damage will occur! This is why some cars' engines have 200,000, 300,000 or even 400,000 miles on them many miles. The use of incorrect oil can also dramatically lower fuel mileage and cause damage to systems that result in the increased emissions of toxic substances and damage to emission control systems, including catalytic converters and oxygen sen-

If you have heard the term "sludge" and I hope your never do in relation to your own car, it is caused by two things; waiting too long to change the engine oil or using incorrect oil for that specific application. Be warned also that European cars have even stricter additive packages that if not adhered to, will really wreak havoc on the internal parts of the engine.

Here is a link I hope you will use to educate yourself on engine oils: http://agriculture.mo.gov/

while others only get half that weights/fuel/pdf/ MotorOilsandLubricants.pdf

The automotive industry has no standards for servicing your car. Any shop can add any oil with no consequences, so it is truly a consumer beware industry when it comes to fluid standards.

I recommend knowing what oil is recommended for your car and asking questions when you arrive at your trusted automotive shop. AAA shops have to adhere to higher standards and are held accountable for their actions. Be an informed consumer, not one with a broken car.

West Covina's Former Mayor Mike Touhey Cited for Possible Assault

By George Ogden

MONTEBELLO - A former councilman and mayor of West Covina, Mike Touhey, got into a shoving match with an acquaintance at the Montebello Country Club Golf Course at a Friday, August 23rd charity golf event.

It appears that the acquaintance and Touhey are adversaries. They are connected through their work as lobbyists for businesses and property developers in the area. There is an on-going civil lawsuit that Touhey is familiar with and this has created the conflict. Touhey has allegedly been harassed by this individual over the last few weeks and it appears their paths crossed at the event and they got into a shouting match that escalated to a chest to chest confrontation. Touhey claimed that he pushed the man back away from him. Nobody was pushed down nor were there any punches thrown

At the final hole, the police were waiting for Touhey and they detained him. The acquaintance felt that Touhey was the aggressor and had the police issue a citation to the former mayor. The event is basically a civil issue because the police did not see any type of offence.

West Covina Unified Launches 2019-20 Year with New Programs, Facilities

WEST COVINA - West Covina Unified students returned to campus for the 2019-20 year on Aug. 15, ready to learn new languages, jumpstart their college education and strive for success thanks to expanded learning opportunities and the promise of new and upgraded facilities.

Many schools welcomed students and families with cheers and signs of encouragement, as well as backdrops for first-day photo ops. Clad in red shirts, West Covina High School's Link Crew greeted freshmen and made themselves available to answer questions and provide support throughout the day.

"West Covina Unified is founded on the belief that every student receive a rigorous, high-quality education that inspires college- and career-readiness and fosters positive community engagement," WCUSD Superintendent Charles D. Hinman said. "We are looking forward to furthering these efforts in 2019-20 and inspiring lifelong success."

West Covina Unified welcomed its inaugural Mandarin Dual Language Immersion kindergarten class for the 2019-20 year.

Mt. SAC Early College Academy welcomed its second freshman class this year, introducing a new group of students to the rigors of the District's flagship dual-enrollment high school. The Academy, which opened in fall 2018, provides students the opportunity to earn up to two years of transferable college credit as they pursue their high school diploma.

West Covina Unified also expanded its highly successful Dual Language Immersion (DLI) program by adding Mandarin instruction at Orangewood Elementary.

West Covina Fire Department Training

By George Ogden

WEST COVINA - Members of the West Covina Fire Dept. had some extensive training in Rope Rescue class recently in Anaheim. The training of our fire personnel in a technical rescue that requires special technics with rope and ladder will cover many of the possible rescues. Since the city has just about everything from hillsides, mountain areas, washes, high rise and much more, this special training will aid the rescuers to expedite victims so they can get emergency care. This is not just exclusive to West Covina, but with the skills they are learning, it will allow them the ability to perform a wide range of technical rescues

Breathe Easier, Have Your Kids Tested For Asthma

The school year can be a hectic time for the families of America's estimated 57 million schoolkids-but it's also a good time for parents to bring their children to the doctor to get tested for asthma.

Asthma Affects Academics According to the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America, Asthma is a leading cause for chronic absenteeism, which is defined as missing 10 percent or more of school days for any reason, excused or unexcused. It detracts from learning and is a proven early warning sign of academic risk. This affects young children in particular in ways that can shape academic outcomes for their entire school career.

Understanding Asthma

Asthma causes swelling and narrowing of the airways that carry air from the nose and mouth to the lungs. Allergens or irritating things entering the lungs trigger asthma symptoms. There's no cure, but it can be managed with proper prevention of asthma attacks and treatment. More than 25 million Americans have asthma, 7.7 percent of adults and 8.4 percent of children. Additionally, diagnosed asthma cases have increased since the 1980s.

Asthma Symptoms Asthma symptoms vary from person to person. A person may have infrequent asthma attacks, have symptoms only at certain times—

It's a healthy idea to get your children tested for allergies and asthma.

while exercising, for example—or have symptoms all

Asthma signs and symptoms

- Shortness of breath
- Chest tightness or pain
- Trouble sleeping caused by shortness of breath, coughing, or wheezing
- A whistling or wheezing sound when exhaling
- Coughing or wheezing attacks are worsened by respiratory viruses.

If your child shows any of these symptoms, it's even more important to have him or her visit a pediatrician for test-

How Asthma Is Diagnosed

In order to accurately diagnose asthma, a doctor will take a detailed medical history of the patient, conduct a physical exam, and test lung function with spirometry. A spirometry test measures the volume and speed of air that a patient can expel from the lungs, this helps determine the type of asthma and the optimum treatment plan.

Asthma Treatment Treatment generally involves a blend of medication and avoiding triggers such as pollen, chemicals, extreme weather changes, smoke, dust mites, stress and exercise.

The good news is your child can live a normal life with asthma as long as it's properly managed and monitored. Even many professional athletes have asthma.

More good news is that doctors now have better equipment than ever to help them accurately diagnose the condition. For example, the EasyOne® Air Spirometer created by ndd Medical Technologies and available through Henry Schein Medical, helps doctors make diagnoses confidently. Built for healthcare providers large and small, it uses TrueFlowTM ultrasound technology for unprecedented accuracy and reliable diagnosis.

A portable stand-alone

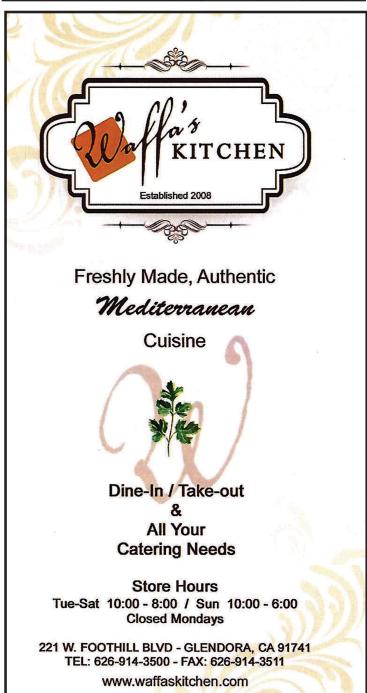

spirometry solution helps doctors stay flexible. The device is extremely robust and calibration-free TrueFlow technology provides a lifetime of worryfree operation. The color touch screen lets doctors view realtime curves, easily enter data, and navigate using a premium touch screen interface while it easily connects wirelessly via Bluetooth for real time incentives, data exchange, and electronic medical record connectivity. It's just one of the many medical devices available through Henry Schein Medical, a provider of medical and surgical supplies to health care professionals.

Windsong Southland Chorale Celebrates 25 Seasons of Song Concluding with Italian Tour in June 2020

"Requiem for the Living" concert, La Verne Heights Presbyterian Church, April, 2019

LA VERNE - Next June, to celebrate the conclusion of their 25th Season, Windsong Southland Chorale will tour in Italy, concertizing in Rome (including singing in the Sistine Chapel), Florence, and Venice. Singers, as well as non-singers, are invited to join the tour.

Born and raised on the East Coast, Founder/Director Dr. Janet Harms showed early musical talent and ability and was awarded a scholarship to the renowned Julliard School of Music at the age of thirteen. She earned a Master's degree from the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago, and a Doctorate from New York's Columbia University. She is an internationally-acclaimed organist and teacher.

Back in the summer of 1995, after directing church and community choirs for many years, Dr. Harms was approached by three different friends, suggesting to her that she start her own chorale. On July 26, 1995, an organizational meeting was held, and as an outcome, Windsong Southland Chorale was born. There was interest, and in the fullness of time, the Chorale grew from thirty singers to more than double that number. At one time, they nicknamed themselves "The Zip Code Chorale" because singers came from such a widespread geographical area of Southern California, from the desert, to the mountains, to the ocean, from Lake Arrowhead to Pacific Palisades.

As the years past, Windsong's reputation grew, and the Chorale was privileged to premiere some major works, including Rene Clausen's "Memorial", written in honor of the 9-11 victims. Windsong introduced that stirring piece to California, to Greece, and to Australia. Performing it in Carnegie Hall to New Yorkers was one of the most moving concerts in the Chorale's history, for those on-stage as well as audience members. There was scarcely a dry eye in the house.

Windsong also gave the first performance in Carnegie Hall of "Lux Aeterna" by Morten Lauridsen. Originally commissioned for the L.A. Master Chorale, this piece has become part of the international choral repertoire.

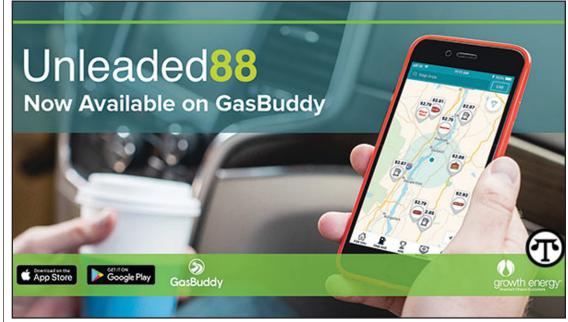

Windsong's home base is La Verne Heights Presbyterian Church in La Verne, where Dr. Harms serves as Director of Music Ministry, and is the organist, as well as church choir director. Dr. Harms promotes collaboration, and to that end the newly reformed and renamed "Bells of Windsong", under the direction of Joan Hamm, rehearses and performs there, as well as the Canyon City Brass, directed by Mike Edwards.

In addition to Windsong's seasons of local concerts, the Chorale has traveled by invitation to sing in Carnegie Hall four times, and on international tours to Greece, Scandinavia/St. Petersburg, Australia, Ireland, Austria/Czech Republic.

Windsong is a multigenerational community choir, ranging in age from college students to seniors, from 18 - 81. Their gifted accompanist is Nightingale Chen. The Chorale is known for its friendliness and new singers are always welcome. The Chorale rehearses on Monday nights from 6:30 -9:00 p.m. at La Verne Heights Presbyterian Church. After a summer hiatus, rehearsals will begin on Monday, September 9. If you have an interest in singing or touring with Windsong, please call 909 983-9879 to set up an audition, or for further information.

Hints To Help You Be Engine Smart, Earth Kind

Knowing where to look can help you save money at the fuel pump.

You can give both the earth and your wallet a boost when you fill up your car with cleaner-burning gasoline.

To help, Growth Energy and GasBuddy announced that drivers across the nation can now take advantage of Unleaded 88's affordable prices through GasBuddy's database and app. Unleaded 88 is a fuel with 15 percent renewable biofuel approved for cars 2001 and newer and, thanks to the recent lifting of outdated government regulations, is now available for sale at the pump all year-round.

GasBuddy is a smartphone app and website used by millions of drivers every month to avoid paying full price for fuel. It is the world's largest database of real-time, crowdsourced gas price data covering more than 150,000 North American gas stations.

This new partnership lets GasBuddy's app users access a comprehensive database of Unleaded 88 fuel at more than 1,800 retail locations around the country. Additionally, Growth Energy and GasBuddy have launched an advertising campaign within the app to promote the benefits of the renewable fuel to consumers.

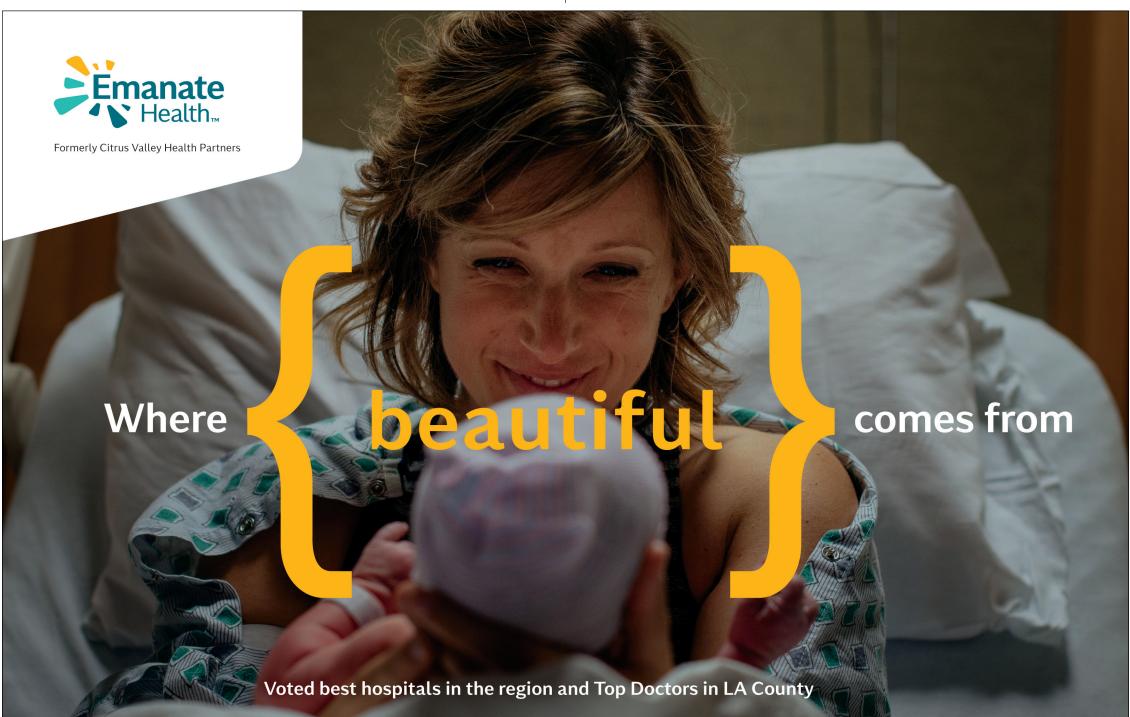

"With fuel prices constantly changing and varying between stations, GasBuddy's goal is to be the most comprehensive platform for drivers to make fuel-purchasing decisions and save money on every fill-up," said Patrick DeHaan, head petroleum analyst at GasBuddy. "By including the availability of Unleaded 88, we're continuing our commitment to our users."

Emily Skor, CEO of the world's largest ethanol trade association, Growth Energy, celebrated this new partnership and the opportunity for millions of drivers to find the more affordable choice at the pump with Unleaded 88 through GasBuddy's popular pricetracking app.

"We are thrilled to partner with the nation's leading and most respected fuel app to help more Americans access the engine smart and earth kind benefits of Unleaded 88," said Skor. "Drivers all over the U.S. rely on GasBuddy to fuel their lives and we are looking forward to giving them another option at the pump that is cleaner-burning and provides a savings of up to 10 cents per gallon."

Today, Kwik Trip, Sheetz, Casey's General Store, Cumberland Farms, Thorntons, Kum & Go, RaceTrac, QuikTrip, Rutter's, Minnoco, Protec Fuel, Murphy USA, Family Express, Royal Farms, Pump & Pantry, and Bosselmans offer Unleaded 88 at more than 1,800 locations across 31 states.
