"I would have never thought a high school cooking class could help guide me and give me the push I need to grow as a person," said Aguilar, who is considering attending Mt. SAC or L.A. Trade Tech College. "I just want to cook and be in a workspace where I feel at home. Cooking is an important part of my life and I can't wait to see what is in my future."

The scholarships were awarded based on the results of a C-CAP preliminary cooking competition, held Feb. 7 at the Institute of Culinary Education in Pasadena, where students demonstrated their knife skills and prepare two dishes: a French omelet and a cucumber salad.

Doan, Gonzalez, Winata and Aguilar all advanced to the C-CAP Los Angeles regional final, which was to be held in April but was canceled due to the COVID-19 health crisis.

"I am so proud of my students," Arroyo culinary teacher Genevieve Wobrock said. "They have been working and training so hard and now we are excited to celebrate."

El Monte Union has a robust food science program, with full kitchen facilities at three District schools - Arroyo, Rosemead and Mountain View - and a partnership with C-CAP, which provides career technical education support for underserved students.

"El Monte Union's culinary arts program continues to reward our students with the knowledge and support they will need to enter a highly competitive field where hard work, skill and innovation determine success," Superintendent Dr. Edward Zuniga said. "I want to thank our tremendous instructors and C-CAP for giving our students the opportunity to explore potential careers and fulfill their dreams."

Don't let fraudsters take advantage of the health crisis to cheat you out of your money.

The warning bells are ringing. From regulators, law enforcement agencies and consumer organizations around the globe, the message is clear: Fraudulent schemes related to the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic have arrived, and they are coming in many forms, from investment fraud to fake CDC emails to phishing scams.

Job loss, financial strain, and social distancing are conditions that present fraudsters with an opportunity to pounce. A study by the FINRA Foundation, the BBB Institute for Marketplace Trust, Stanford, and the Federal Trade Commission found that social or physical isolation can increase anyone's susceptibility to schemes.

difficult to separate fact from fiction. Now is the time to move slowly, pay attention to details and not make rash decisions. Dramatic news coverage of viral outbreaks and pandemics can be an opportunity for scammers to pump inaccurate information into the marketplace to try to manipulate markets and investors. Following these hints can help you keep your money and personal information safe:

Tips for Avoiding Coronavirus Scams

1. Ask and Check. Before you make any investment decision, ask and check to verify information about any individuals you are dealing with and any investment product you are considering. You can use FINRA BrokerCheck, a free online tool, to get information on brokers and investment advisers.

2. Be skeptical. If an unknown company becomes the subject of press releases, emails, and promotional materials hyping the company and its products to cure the latest pandemic, hit pause. Be wary if you are flooded with information over a short time, especially if the communications only focus on the upside with little or no mention of risk.

3. Read a company's SEC fil-In times like these, it can be ings. Check the SEC's EDGAR database to find out whether the company files with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Verify these reports against promotional information put out by the company or third-party promoters. Exercise caution if they don't align. And be suspicious of solicitations to invest when products are still in the development stage, where no actual products are on the market, or if the company's balance sheets only show losses.

4. Question companies new to the "cure" market. Changes to the name or business focus of a company to capitalize on pandemic fears may be a sign that a company is engaged in, or the subject of, a potential fraud. These changes can turn up in company press releases, Internet searches and, if the company files periodic reports, in the SEC's EDGAR database.

5. Run it through the Scam Meter. Before you make any investment decision, the FINRA Scam Meter can help you tell if an investment you are thinking about might be a scam.

Our Malls Are Turning Into Ghost Towns, Businesses Closing for Good.

By George Ogden

WEST COVINA - The Mall in West Covina (Plaza West Covina) is a virtual "Ghost Town". With the government ordering businesses to remain closed after repeated promises to allow businesses to open, it is taking its toll.

Malls all over the country, where they are enforcing the lockdowns and closures, are all close. This is basically signing the death warrant for many of the businesses in these malls. It is not just within the malls, but all over.

So many people have lost their jobs. Those who had hoped to come back to their jobs after the government lifts the shutdown will no longer have to worry about it. Their place of employment is now gone.

The prospects of malls surviving seems very dim. If they do, it will be very rough for a long time, but in the end, they will

Remember Vietnam Veterans while Honoring Service Men and Women this Memorial Day

By Dr. Edward C. Ortell Citrus College Trustee, Area 3 Representative

"I am afraid that someday Ron will be forgotten."

These words, spoken by the widow of Staff Sergeant Ronald "Ron" Sagers, who was killed in action (KIA) in Cambodia in 1970, echo in the hearts and minds of Vietnam veterans and their families across the nation today.

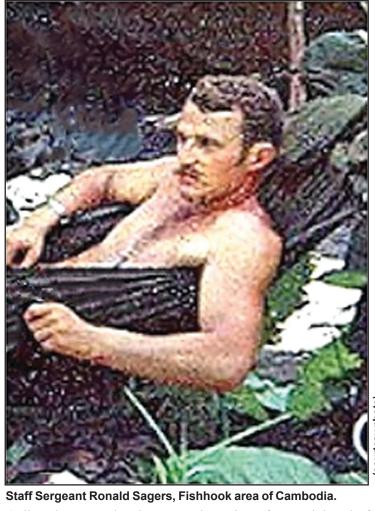

During hostile action, Ron, age 25, received multiple fragmentation wounds while treating and evacuating his men. He was posthumously awarded a Silver Star, a Purple Heart and several other military honors. I knew him as a school mate in the rural town of Maquoketa, Iowa. But, his sacrifice would no doubt have faded from my memory, had he not also been my cousin Ronnie.

All military veterans-those serving today and those who have served in the past-deserve our nation's heartfelt appreciation. While the memory of WWI veterans lives on in family lore and a few remaining WWII veterans highlight the service men and women of the Greatest Generation, the soldiers who served in other conflicts, such as Korea, are heralded less often. Those veterans who served in conflicts in the Middle East are part of the fabric of our daily lives as our friends, neighbors, co-workers and family members.

Many Vietnam veterans, however, are living out their days with little recognition of the tremendous price they paid in the service of their country. Fighting a long and unpopular war, they were vilified, booed and even spat on when they returned home. In the field, they experienced horrific conditions and witnessed extreme brutality.

On Memorial Day 2012, a presidential proclamation was signed giving Vietnam veterans well-deserved and long overdue recognition. However, thousands of Vietnam vets still battle PTSD, depression, alcohol abuse, domestic problems, homelessness and suicide.

Community colleges have become a resource for Vietnam veterans, providing them with a place to find veterans benefit information, access counseling and workshops and tap into other resources that will improve the quality of their lives. For the past 10 years, Citrus

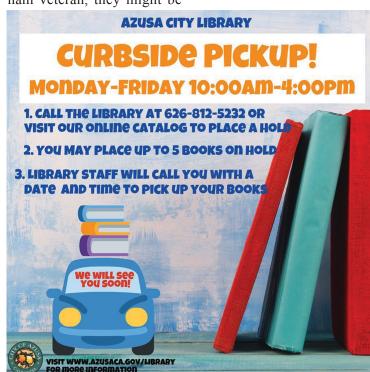

College has earned a place on the national Military Friendly Schools list, which recognizes colleges and universities that have a reputation for helping student veterans succeed.

This year, annual events honoring veterans may be canceled or postponed. So if you encounter a veteran, please take the opportunity to thank them for their service. If that person happens to be a Vietnam veteran, they might be deserving of a special nod of respect this Memorial Day.

nomically impacted during the COVID-19 pandemic through job loss, furlough, or reduction in hours or pay. Emergency rental assistance grants are rental payments made on behalf of an income-eligible household, up to $1,000 per month, for three months to maintain housing and/or to reduce rental payment delinquency in arrears. Over $3.7 million has been made available to residents living in the unincorporated areas of the First, Second, Fourth, and Fifth Supervisorial Districts. Residents can receive assistance by contacting 211 L.A. via phone at 2-1-1 or through their website at 211la.org/covid-rental-help. To be considered for this program, applications must be received by May 31, 2020.

Emilio Salas, Acting Executive Director of the LACDA, said, "The COVID-19 Emergency Rental Assistance Program created by the Board of Supervisors will provide a dual benefit for two segments of our communities that are hurting. For income-eligible renters that were impacted by the pandemic, it will provide a lifeline to assist in paying their rent. For our property owner community, many of whom are mom and pop providers of rental housing, it will provide help to meet their mortgage obligations on rental properties. The LAC-DA is pleased to work with the Board, our partner agencies, and 2-1-1 to kick off this vital program."

As funding for these federal programs relies on Census data, the County and the LACDA encourage all County residents to complete the 2020 Census and be counted. In addition to mailing it in, residents can complete it online this year at my2020census.gov. It is imperative that the County has an accurate count to maximize the receipt of federal resources.

For more information on the COVID-19-ERA Program, please contact 2-1-1 L.A or visit 211la.org/covid-rental-help. Additional resources for residents can be found at lacda.org.

Senator Chang's Proposal to Expand Paid Family Leave Unanimously Passed by Senate Committee

Legislation Aims to Help Parents With Children Displaced by School Closures

SACRAMENTO -Senator Ling Ling Chang (R-Diamond Bar) announced her bipartisan legislation to expand Paid Family Leave (PFL) benefits for parents with children dismissed from school due to the COVID-19 pandemic, was approved by the Senate Labor, Public Employment and Retirement Committee. The federal government recently enacted emergency leave programs for parents but it is limited and leaves some families without options. Senate Bill 943 will fill gaps in coverage left by the temporary federal programs. Nearly all of California's 10,000 schools - responsible for the education of 6 million students - have closed due to COV-ID-19. "Parents needed this benefit four weeks ago but I am pleased we are closer to ensuring all families can take the time to care for their children while out of school, said Senator Chang. "Parents didn't ask for their schools to be closed. We need to step up and support them."

SB 943 is supported by the California State PTA and the California Teachers Association (CTA). In a letter of support a PTA representative stated Senator Chang's bill, "provides critical support for families during these extraordinary circumstances in which parents are challenged to provide for the care and education of their children during school closures..."

Paid Family Leave (PFL) provides benefits to individuals who need to take time off work to care for a seriously ill family member and to parents who need time to bond with a new child. PFL is currently available to those who are in quarantine or who are caring for someone diagnosed with COVID-19. However, PFL benefits are not available to parents who need to stay home to care for a child whose school has closed due to COV-ID-19. SB 943 will make those parents eligible.

While the Federal government has authorized an emergency leave program it is temporary and leaves some parents out. Some of the families ineligible for the federal program include:

- Parents who work for an employer with 500+ employees;
- Some parents who work for an employer with fewer than 50 employees;
- Any Parent with children displaced from school longer than 3 months;

In fact, fewer than half of workers are covered by the Federal Leave program.

The COVID-19 pandemic has caused, and will continue to cause, unprecedented changes for all Californians. Senator Chang supported critical funding as a response to the crisis and will continue to work on mitigating the issues that present in the coming weeks/months.

SB 943 will next be heard in the Senate Appropriations Com-

Water and ESA on Caucus Agenda

Time to take a break from COVID 19 and talk about other serious issues affecting all of us in California. We are set to have one more spring shower this week before summer and the heat actually come upon us. Those who have been particularly hard hit, not just with the constraints of the virus, but with the continual battle over water are the Central Valley farmers. When President Trump managed to provide them with Bureau of Reclamation federal water, Gov. Newsom, through Attorney General Javier Becerra, immediately filed a lawsuit under the guise of saving the endangered fish.

Additionally, the Delta Conveyance Project was extended for four weeks for comments on the scoping report and California Environmental Quality Act review with no estimates yet on how the pandemic and proposed budget will affect the time line to proceed with the project. Delta Conveyance is the name, under Gov. Newsom, given to the former WaterFix project, under former Gov. Jerry Brown, and the infrastructure needed to ensure a clean, adequate water supply to the Central Valley and to Southern California. Under Brown's proposal there would have been two tunnels under the Delta area to send water to the state water project and Southern California and Newsom has reduced that project to one tunnel. The project has changed so all new environmental assessments and a redo of the design and engineering is required. The environmental review of this project will be well scrutinized.

California Department of Water Resources says this project will not be taxpayer funded or funded from the state's general fund but paid by the public water agencies which means water rates will go up. MWD, our source in Southern California for water, has not provided any cost projections lately. We are reassured by state agencies the cost will be less

Shade's Perspective Lois M. Shade

Former Mayor of Glendora than the original WaterFix proposal, but if there are legal challenges along the way as this project progresses, the cost of water will obviously increase.

It isn't just California that has been wrangling over water infrastructure and adequate supplies. There is now an organization called the Western Congressional Water Caucus that is made up of 75 bipartisan members from 34 different states and territories that has become involved. The Caucus was initially founded as an organization involving western states to support local communities and to fight off "federal interference with rural, agriculture, timber, water, energy and hunting values that had been a part of American Society for centuries." That basic set of American values apparently is supported throughout the U.S. for this Caucus to have grown this big.

One of the goals of this Caucus is to modernize the Endangered Species Act (ESA) by assessing the successes and failures since the 45-plus-year-old law was created. The Caucus view: "With a 3% recovery rate over 46 years, the ESA needs to be updated to better protect species, and to treat property owners, states and local stakeholders as partners rather than obstacles."

One bill being proposed by the Caucus is H.R. 3608, Endangered Species Transparency and Reasonableness Act (McClintock R-CD4 CA) that opens up the process and the information available to the public for their evaluation of the science being used on each listing and decision. This

• Requires the federal government to disclose all data prior to listing the ESA decision.

• Requires "best available" scientific and commercial data including that provided by states, tribes and local governments.

• Requires U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service to track, report to Congress and provide online information on funds expended on ESA lawsuits. That should include the number of employees dedicated to litigation, attorneys' fees awarded and settlement agree-

 Provides reasonable caps on attorney's fees by requiring the same caps as suits filed under the Equal Access to Justice Act. Prevailing attorney fees are capped at $125 an hour.

Over the years, the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC) has filed a flurry of lawsuits on issue after issue over projects regarding the Delta water systems and managed to use lawsuits to hold up much of the proposed infrastructure in that area. It is the scientists using new creative science-based management of the salmon that have sustained that fish. They've invented and provided new food sources, relocated their breeding grounds to colder water because of climate change and generally worked hard to protect the salmon during the on-going drought conditions affecting the fish.

This country has come a long way in 45 years and it is hard for me to believe our scientific communities are not able to review and create a better plan to protect and preserve all of our animal and fish wildlife for more generations to come. And, certainly finding a scientific based plan is a lot cheaper than the lawsuits hobbling any progress in any direction in California.

What We Learned From The Pandemic

It is impossible to prepare for a tornado. These monsters strike suddenly, and in minutes can turn a community into toothpicks. But you can prepare for a hurricane--or a pandemic. Warnings come every hour in the days before the assault, so there is time to board up the windows, ready the sandbags, lay in enough food, and secure enough medical supplies.

But what if the boss of the weather bureau declares that the whole thing is a hoax, and says it is only a harmless bit of wind, and in a few days it will be gone? No need to prepare. When it blows out the windows, floods the house and drowns the occupants the boss can blame it on China, the previous administration, the Democrats, Governors, the World Health Organization, or CNN.

The boss is what he is, and the chances that he will suddenly alter that deep-seated persona are zero. Fear not, his undoing will come in five months. Neither is it helpful to point out the blessings the storm might have brought. (I can't think of any at the moment, and will let you readers find your own version of the silver lining.) What we can all do, however, is see what that we might learn from the disaster.

There is one important lesson the virus has made clear. Why were we so unprepared while many of the worlds other nations got an early handle on the pandemic? A fourth of the world's deaths so far are Americans, and we still are the most at risk! Our lack of preparation sealed the fate of tens of thousands of our fellow citizens. In addition, millions have been economically decimated. Big industrial concerns will probably weather the storm, but many "mom and pop "enterprises may never recover. When you see a mile-long row of Americans standing six feet apart lined up in hope of getting food, the devastation produced by Covid-19 is even more obvious. Insurers, hospital systems, and private research companies are among the industries in tatters and the worst may yet be to come. So what did the other developed nations have we didn't, and what has the debacle taught

Health care may head the list. Every other developed nation had in place an effective comprehensive government plan. Bernie tried to move the nation in that direction with his "Medicare for all," but for reasons I have previously detailed, it would never have become law, and never candwbayer@verizon.net would have worked. Bernie could not even get most Democrats to promote it. Mayor Pete came closer in proposing a workable system with his "medicare for all who want it"-backed up by a government program built on Obamacare, and allowing private plans. That kind of dual system exists in nations throughout the developed world enabling them to be prepared for such a cataclism.

However you slice it or whatever you want to call it, we desperately need a single payer health insurance system, not just to protect us in case of another pandemic, but to give the nation a coordinated, cost-efficient way to take care of everyone. To leave tens of millions uninsured is a national disgrace. How is it that with so many Americans left out we still spent twice as much on healthcare as any other nation, while in most of the medical indexes we are not even in the top tier?

Bernie's greatest contribution may have been to make politically possible a single payer solution. But that depends on a Biden administration and a Democratic Senate.

No one knows when we may be hit with another pandemic or some other unforeseen natural cataclysm,, but part of our preparation may lie in the adoption of a single-payer insurance plan. This may be the number one lesson learned from the pandemic.

inter-city, inter-sectional rivalries in Los Angles and the United States and it is right here in our own backyard. It is the USC Trojans versus the UCLA Bruins. But it is more than sports, it is in academics, politics, medicine, law and nearly anywhere else which the best and brightest match wits against each other. This past week, two stories were published which exemplified the best of each of these prestigious universities.

In 1952, Tom Capehart received an athletic scholarship from USC for football, basketball, water polo and swimming. Capehart had graduated from high school in Kingsburg, California, a small farming community in the central valley near Visalia. Capehart competed for the Trojans in each of his sports and stayed firm in his commitment to athletics and scholastics. He worked hard during his four years at the University but when his scholarship money ran out, he was still four units shy of graduating. He took care of two units in completing an extension course and the two additional units he needed were only offered every two years.

As time went on, Capehart lost sight of the university's schedule and instead focused coach Pepper Rodgers passed Cheers for USC and on starting his own pension and accurately stated that he attended USC for four years but he never said he graduated from the university. As his business grew and he prospered, Capehart stayed true to his university and became a donor to the athletic program. In time, word spread that Capehart was two units shy of earning his Bachelor of Science degree in Education. Working with the USC administration, an equivalent 2unit course was identified which would fulfill Capehart's graduation requirements. But he insisted that he pay his own way, and would personally attend every class which he did.

> The requirement for the class was to write a 20-page motivational paper but Capehart wrote a 200-plus page autobiography. Needless to say, he passed the course and was selected to be one of USC's keynotes speakers for graduation. His closing line in the speech was "Remember, a winner listens and a loser can't wait for his turn to talk". At the age of 85 and after 68 years since he started his quest to receive a college degree, Tom Capehart can finally call himself a college graduate. All things come to those who wait.

His teams were efficient and innovative offensive machines and his enthusiasm brought strong high school players into the Bruin program. Rodgers coached players like Heisman Trophy winners Gary Beban and Steve Spurrier, along with future hall of famers Reggie White and John Riggins. The outstanding UCLA players coached by Rodgers included John Sciarra, Mel Farr, Wendel Tyler and Mark Harmon, now the star of the long running NCIS series. Rodgers used humor, energy and laughter to motivate his players and team but his innovative offense methods brought out the best of his players. He was once quoted that "I proved I could win with good players. I proved I couldn't win with bad ones". Win or lose, the UCLA football program was better for having Pepper Rodgers as its head coach and started an era which may have been

I have this foot doctor as I have some foot problems, including plantar fasciitis and ankle injuries that dates back to a helicopter crash. I also have a short fuse and often have anger issues that I sometime just don't let go. Also, I am working out PTSD issues. So, I have a doctor(s) for that as well. So, when he or she ask questions about my, let's say, my attitude, not sure what I should California is all jacked up and since we can't trust our politicians anymore, yeah, I have some issues. Then I get asked, "What do you think we should do about this?" Well, how in the hell am I supposed to answer that? I can't help but laugh at those type of questions.

The doctors ask if I need more medication. How the hell would I know... do I look like a doctor? That's their job. So, I say, "Yeah" ... so as a joke, I say a need some Viagra. You won't believe what I got in the mail... Viagra... just what I needed. What were they thinking by sending me this?

So, it is getting close to that time that my appointment is coming up for my proctologist. So how is this going to work out? Am I going to give myself a selfexamination over the phone? Let's just say all this is going too far. Self-examination, I think not.

The Top Priority of Citrus College

Since the outbreak of COVID-19, communities across the globe - including those in Southern California - have been faced with an unprecedented crisis.

In response, Citrus College closed its campus and transitioned to remote delivery of instruction and student support services beginning March 18, 2020. As superintendent/president, it was a difficult decision to make, but the safety and well-being of our students, faculty and staff will always be the college's top pri-

As this public health emergency has temporarily altered the way we live and work, finding inspiration while adjusting to these new conditions has been challenging. However, our dedicated and passionate employees know that student success and completion is the driving force behind what we do. It is not just our motivation, it is also our guiding philosophy and our daily inspiration.

I am proud to share that faculty and staff have managed to keep students actively engaged in their studies. Additionally, the Citrus College Foundation launched a campaign to help students access the equipment they need, the col-

These small examples demonstrate the remarkable work being performed by Citrus College during this time.

The positive attitude of our students, employees and governing board is a testament to the collaborative spirit of Citrus College. I am confident that, after we surmount this challenge, we will look back at this chapter and be proud that we did our very best to serve our students and advance the legacy of Citrus Col-

While some of the issues and logistics many of us face in this "new normal" are difficult, they pale in comparison to those afflicted with this illness. On behalf of the entire Citrus College community, I am thankful to those throughout the nation who are in critical leadership positions, as well as those providing health care and other vital services on the front lines of the pandemic. I also want to express my sincere gratitude to local communities for their partnership

Citrus College has existed for over 100 years, and it was the unwavering commitment of selfless individuals who turned it into the award-winning, nationally recognized institution that it is today. # Slow Awakening From Coronavirus Lockdowns

April was a peak for China's coronavirus lockdowns, not just in the US, but also worldwide. With lockdowns somewhat easing in May, a limited rebound is already underway. However. it will be at least another week or two before we have any idea how our recovery is going. For now, just about every data series offers a view of the abyss. What we do know about the coming recovery suggests it will be a hard climb out of where we are today (especially while 15 "blue" states remain in somewhat politically motivated partial lockdowns).

The jobs report from last Friday (May 8) likely understated job losses, but still shattered records. More people lost jobs (at least temporarily) in April than during any of the recessions over the past 50 years. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported 20,500k job losses; and, the unemployment rate rose to 14.7% (for April). Total job reductions were likely larger; but, the Bureau of Labor Statistics was hobbled by methodology, lockdowns (all their processing centers were closed), and no means of tracking all real-time job reductions due to business closures. The employment report was the worst on record, as expected, but it still takes your breath away.

As you might imagine, collecting data was not easy under a national pandemic lockdown. Huge job reductions, combined with a post-Great Depression high in the unemployment rate, may even understate the full extent of the damage in the labor market during April. The BLS made a huge effort, under trying circumstances, to catalog the damage. But, results likely fell

Statistics from JPMorgan were showing half of small businesses only had two weeks cash on hand before the lockdown. Apparently ignoring incoming guaranteed government PPP loans, it was inferred that many were not prepared for this challenge. Credit card data suggest a third of these businesses are at least temporarily closed. Bloomberg News notes a new survey (from the Society for Human Resource Management) which found 52% of small business owners fear that they may be out of business in six months. Another 14% are uncertain. That leaves just 34% of small businesses very confident they will survive the year. Among businesses that do survive 2020, some could return with smaller operations.

Recessions end in the month when GDP is at its lowest. As parts of our American economy reopen in May, and assuming still primarily closed state's businesses don't decline enough to offset the open states results, April should have been the low point in the USA, as well as in the free world. As a result, this very abrupt recession should be technically over right now. After all it is May, with 31 states previously allowing reopening of many businesses, and others now starting to do so in a more limited way. Several additional blue state Governors are allowing factory workers to return to work (with limitations) on May 11th. A greater percentage of Governors have also been relaxing limitations on other aspects of personal freedoms (related to religion and American's personal lives)!

Hopefully this ongoing positive momentum (toward historic economic and personal American freedoms) will continue, allowing all Americans, in all 50 states, to share in the pride of rebuilding the country we love! Together we can make that happen (assuming recent trends toward opening the country continue)!

However, it does not feel like it's close to being over; and, for many individuals the worst may be yet to come. While 78% of people furloughed in March believe their jobs will be there when the lockdowns end, sources see some temporary layoffs starting to turn permanent.

Early recoveries (from any recession) can be painful, fraught with setbacks, potential double dips, and (most importantly) further income losses. This recovery could be particularly slow, especially in the early months (while so many states remain partially locked down). A colleague of mine recently wrote: "If an economist tells you the recession is over, and the unemployment rate is still in double-digits, don't buy that idea". Many on Wall Street expect this recovery will take three years. (It probably is difficult to be optimistic when you live and work in the state which was "hit" the hardest by the Wuhan coronavirus.) While most of my Wall Street colleagues also feel somewhat better times will return before the end of this year, that prediction was easy. However, they don't expect everyone will feel better just because this COVID-19 recession is technically over. Stay Positive My Friends!

What's the difference between Memorial Day and Veteran's Day?

Memorial Day is to remember those who gave their lives while protecting our freedoms from enemies, foreign and domestic. Veterans Day is to honor all those who have served in the armed forces of the United States. Remember the families, too.

Are mortgage interest rates going to go any lower?

Maybe. Maybe not. I recommend you go FindAMortgageBroker.com to locate a non-bank mortgage professional in your area. Rates are very low now.

My husband is a recent Veteran. He's going to need longterm care for a while. Are there benefits for Veterans to help with long-term care expenses?

Yes. Qualifications include service, plus income limitations. After a review of his service, current needs, and income, he can apply for benefits. There are also benefits for the caregiver of a disabled veteran. Contact your local VA office.

Our daughter just graduated from college, cannot afford to live on her own, so she's moving back in with us. Do you have any suggestions on how to handle this?

She's an adult now and you'll need to see her that way and set your expectations accordingly. Even though she's going to be living with you, her parents, she's got some "adulting" to do! Issues to consider and communicate are length of stay, rent and/or contribution to household expenses, duties (chores), and mutual respect, freedoms, communication, employment and/or higher education. Be careful - don't sacrifice your own financial future. Make an effort to keep your sense of humor, express your love, and try to enjoy the extra time together. If you want to help her buy her own home, there are first-time homebuyer loans which allow 'gift' funds to help with that initial outlay necessary to purchase.

We have life insurance policies and retirement accounts that we haven't looked at for years. We really don't know what we have, let alone if or when they expire or mature, or even if we have the beneficiaries right. Would you be able to take a look, tell us what we've got, and advise us if we need to make any changes?

Throughout our lifetimes there are many changes, so it is wise and quite important to periodically review your insurance, investments, and goals. You could call each company for a copy of your most recent state-

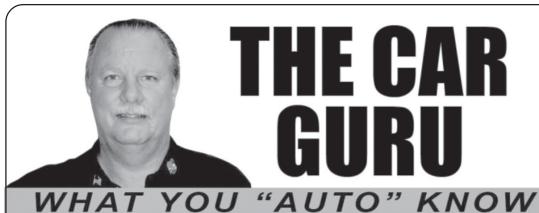

You talk about it, but are there really "safe investments"?

First of all, the safety of the investments I recommend to my clients depend on the financial strength of the company offering those investment products. Second, although you cannot lose vour investment dollars, vou also cannot gain all the "ups" of the stock market that these investments mirror (your money is not actually in the stock market). Picture two elevators. One can go all the way up to the penthouse and all the way down to the basement. That elevator is like the stock market; it can capture all the gains and suffers all the losses. Elevator number two can only go up to the 7th floor, for example, and it cannot go lower than ground level. This elevator is like the safe investments I talk about: it can capture some of the gains, but suffers none of the losses. Each policy anniversary, your balance is locked in. Ask yourself which elevator you want a good portion of your investment

Goodbye Spare Tire?

Remember when cars had a fix kit instead. full-size spare tire? Then they went to the small temporary spare tire called the donut. Now, in order to save weight, many manufacturers are doing away with the spare tire altogether on certain models. Certainly, less weight increases gas mileage. It is also easier and less expensive to shed weight from a car, than to introduce technology to save fuel. This year about 14 percent of new model cars in the United States have no spare tire.

The tire repair kit which replaces the spare tire, weighs in at about 20 pounds less than a spare tire and a jack assembly and do not take up much room either. But what should you do if you happen to get a flat? The car manufacturers are supplying a quick-

If you get a major blow out that is larger than a quarter of an inch, or if the puncture is on the side of the tire instead of the bottom, the repair kit won't do the job and you will need to be towed. The manufacturers figure that in most cases the repair kit will do the job as it should take care of flats 85 percent of the time.

The manufacturers also feel that TPMS (tire pressure monitoring systems) will alert you in most cases that you have a leak which you can fix before you have a flat. So, if the low tire light sends a signal, don't ignore it. If you buy a new car, you might want to look for the spare tire.

Manufacturers have been mandated by the Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) standards and are scrambling to get better gas mileage (an average of 54.5 miles per gallon) by 2025 and are doing all they can to make it happen. Not every manufacturer is using this method to help their cause but it is something you need to be aware of. You don't want to be stuck in the middle of nowhere and start looking for a spare that you aren't going to find.

There is nothing so final as death and when a person is too near to family, that person may not be missed. Sometimes people fail to say thank you and I love you. However, after death, that person has gone and cannot love or be loved.

Our beloved fathers, mothers, who gives attention and love will leave us, just as our grandparents will leave us.

How many people are depressed at this moment while missing the love of those who have left them? One day we all will leave, even if we are not ready. We are living in a time when death has never been as con-

LA County Assessor Jeff Prang Explains Governor's Order Extending Deadline

LOS ANGELES COUNTY-Gov. Newsom has signed an executive order that extends the filing deadline for the Business Property Statement without penalty until May 31.

Businesses faced a 10 percent penalty if they were unable to file by Thursday's May 7 dead-

California business property taxpayers are required to report their taxable business personal property with a combined value of $100,000 or more to assessors on an annual basis. Law requires that a 1 percent tax be applied to all business property valued (in total) of $5,000 or more.

Business personal property includes business equipment, supplies, as well as tangible assets such as printers, copiers, furniture, manufacturing and lab and restaurant equipment. In other words, everything but the land and the building. If a business has already filed, they still have until May 31 to file amendments.

Although assessors do not have the authority to waive penalties, not even in the wake of COVID-19, assessors throughout the state were working diligently with leaders in Sacramento to provide relief to those who were unable to meet the May 7th deadline.

"This is an important step on behalf of the taxpayer and I applaud Governor Gavin Newsom for his insight in providing such necessary relief to taxpayers during this very challenging time," Prang said. "This allows them more flexibility in filing this important statement. It represented $84.8 billion on last year's Assessment Roll. That translates into tax dollars that goes to pay for vital public services.'

If you need assistance in preparing the statement, the Assessor's Office recorded a webinar that can offer some tips. Questions can also be addressed to businesspp@assessor.lacounty.gov or 213-974-3211. Our offices may be closed to the public, but the Assessor's Office staff remain ready to help.

Los Angeles County Launches New Wifi Locator Tool To Help Residents Get Online During COVID-19 Pandemic

LOS ANGELES COUNTY

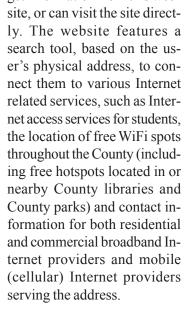

- The ability to access the Internet has become a critical necessity during the COVID-19 pandemic. Internet access is key to schools' online learning programs, and is the gateway that connects members of the public who are in need of Federal, State, and local emergency information and resources that are obtained online.

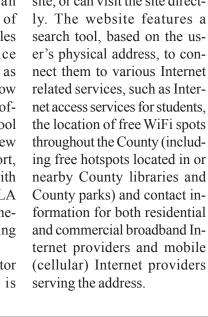

However, the reality is that this essential tool has remained out of reach for many. According to American Community Survey Data for LA County, approximately 210,000 children have a computer at home, but lack an Internet connection. Nearly 283,000 households do not have Internet access.

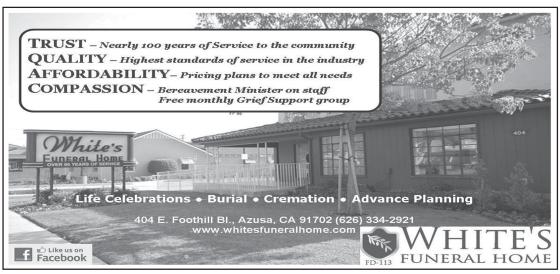

"Today, Los Angeles County is taking a step forward to bridge the gap of Internet access — an issue that during the COVID-19 pandemic can quickly become a matter of survival," stated Los Angeles County Supervisor Janice Hahn. "Disasters can act as catalysts, driving change in how programs and services are offered. The WiFi Locator tool is an example of that. Our new portal and outreach support, performed in partnership with 211 LA County, will equip LA County residents with a onestop-shop approach to getting Internet access."

Dairy Farmers Of America And Alta Dena Dairy Donate More Than 12,000 Gallons Of Milk To Those In Need Throughout Southern California

Surplus Milk Due to COVID-19 Being Put to Good Use

KANSAS CITY, Kan. -Dairy Farmers of America (DFA), a national cooperative owned by dairy farm families across the U.S, and Alta Dena Dairy worked together to donate local milk to multiple food banks and pantries throughout Southern California.

Kicking off in mid-April and continuing this week, more than 12,000 gallons of milk are being donated to more than 15 food banks throughout Southern California, including organizations that help fight hunger in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Bernardino and Ventura counties to name a few.

"Much like the rest of the nation and the world, COVID-19 has brought unpredictability and challenges to the dairy industry. As schools and restaurants have closed, overall demand for milk and other dairy products has decreased, unfortunately leaving us with a surplus of milk," said Gary Stueve, chief operating officer, DFA Western Area. "Knowing that millions of Californians are struggling right now and with food banks being a critical local resource to help feed those individuals and families, we knew that we had to figure out a way to help."

Together, DFA and its California farm families along with Alta Dena Dairy coordinated the processing of more than 108,000 pounds of raw milk into more than 12,000 gallons of milk. In addition, Alta Dena processed and donated an additional 5,000 gallons of milk for food banks in the area.

"It's heart-wrenching to see milk go to waste and not being used to help feed people who so desperately need it right now," said Melvin Medeiros, a DFA Board member and local dairy farmer from Laton, Calif. "As dairy farmers, we work hard each and every day to help produce food for our local communities, so I'm really proud to be a part of getting this milk to food banks here in California."

As demand for food assistance rises with the COVID-19 outbreak, Feeding America, with its more than 200 affiliates across the country, has projected a $1.4 billion shortfall in the next six months.

"Alta Dena Dairy and its over 800 employees are proud to support this combined effort to ensure our Southern California communities have fresh milk for all in need during this health crisis," said Terry Dana, Vice President and General Manger, Alta Dena Dairy.

Anxious About the Economy? New Survey Reveals Your Next Steps

Economic analysts increasingly predict that the U.S. will soon experience a recession, and a recent survey by CFP Board/ Morning Consult shows many Americans agree: 55 percent of respondents believe a recession will occur in the next year. Roughly three quarters of respondents said an economic downturn would affect their household, with more than a third projecting it would have a major impact.

Experts agree that developing and sticking with a prudent, longterm financial plan is key to protecting yourself against market swings, and the survey findings underscored the value of partnering with a financial advisor before and during a recession. Sixty-seven percent of respondents who are working with a financial advisor said they would feel prepared if a recession began in the next 12 months, compared to 38 percent of those not working with an advisor. In addition, 77 percent of people working with an advisor said they are confident their advisor would successfully manage their finances through a down market.

A Certified Financial Planner (CFP) professional can help you bring all of the pieces of your financial life together and provide confidence that your finances can withstand the pressures of an economic downturn. Of the survey respondents who work with a CFP professional, 73 percent reported feeling more prepared for a potential recession now than they did in 2008, during the Great Recession.

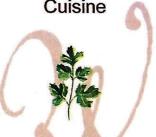

Trained to give you a "big picture" view of financial solutions and develop a plan that is tailored to your specific goals and interests, a CFP professional will help you set long- and short-term goals and will periodically review and adjust your financial plan as needed to ensure you stay on track to reach those goals. A CFP professional will also help you understand the implications of your financial choices, providing competent and ethical advice that supports sound financial decision-making and avoids impulsive actions. To find a CFP professional near you, visit www.letsmakeaplan.org.

Partnering with a financial advisor may be one of the most important steps you can take to protect yourself and your family from feeling the effects of a dramatic market decline. (StatePoint)
